The Knell of a Broken Heart. In the shops of the C. H. and D. R. R.

It was attached to a locomotive presided over by a strong. manly, handsome engineer, whose great objects of pride and adoration were first his sweetheart and then his faithful engine. He loved them both devotedly, though of course in quite different ways. One day at Hamilton he stood in the cab of the engine, bell rope in hand, ready to move the lever and start the train, when he saw a bridal party approaching.

He glanced at the bride; it was the girl he loved. His heart stopped beating, he gave a groan, and droppeddead. As he fell with the bell rope in his hand he gave the bell a loud ring that cracked it from top to bottom, and it was found afterward that he had died literally of a broken heart. The bell in the shops at Hamilton is still called "the Mrs. Carrie Brown, the murdered woman. bell of the broken heart."-St. Louis Re- The body was immediately conveyed to

THE RIPPER CAUGHT.

The Crime Fastened Upon "Frenchy" No. 1.

ALMOST POSITIVE PROOF

That He is the Man Who Murdered and Disembowelled Carrie Brown in One of New York's Slums-Chain of Circumstantial Evidence Strongly Against Him.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Inspector Byrnes years. believes that he has at last fastened the crime for the murder of the woman, Carrie Brown. The murderer is supposed to be Frank Sherlick, (Frenchy No. 1) who was arrested Friday night. On the night the murder was committed Frenchy No. 1 and Mellen, those against it being Lawoccupied room 33 in the Fourth Waru horence and Gillett. The rising vote was 81 tel with a woman by the name of Mary Ann Lopez. This room was across the hall from that occupied by the woman Brown and her unknown companion. From information in the possession of the police it appears that the murdered wom-an's companion had left her some time be-fore 1 o'clock on Friday morning. Frenchy No. 1 had been at one time a lover of the old woman, but for some reason had become insanely jealous of her. He heard her companion leave the room, and shortly afterward got up and, leaving the Lopez woman asleep, crossed the hall and com-mitted the awful crime. This is the story Come close up to her like, and—tho' perhaps of the police. It is substantiated by the following facts:

The Man Who Committed the Crime. We discovered, he said, that Frenchy was with the woman "Shakespeare" on Wednesday night, and slept with her in the East River hotel. During the following day he was in her company nearly all day. On Thursday night, about mid-night, "Shakespeare" left the barroom, where she and Frenchy were drinking, and a little later she was seen to go up stairs with a strange man. Soon afterward Frenchy asked for a room, and was ssigned to one directly opposite that occupied by "Shakespeare.

When Frenchy was arrested he had no underclothing on. He wore a coarse shirt, a pair of dirty trousers and a pair of filthy socks. Blood was discovered on the shirt. On the floor of the hallway, between the cooms occupied by the Brown woman and Frenchy, several spots of blood were disovered. On the inside of the door of Frenchy's room were blood marks. The blanket in the room had clots of blood apon it as if a person had wiped his hands

The inspector says Frenchy No. 2 was rrested early Sunday morning, but it was discovered that he had spent the night at place nearly five miles distant.

Late yesterday afternoon a mysterious prisoner was called before District Attorey Nicoll. Later he was removed to police headquarters. This man in all particulars answers to the description of the man who rented the room at the East River hotel with the woman Brown. It was afterward ascertained that his name is Joseph Franks, and that he is an Arabian.

Mr. Mellen offered a resolution, which was referred to the judiciary committee without debate asking the opinion of the attorney general upon the legality of the proceedings by which Clarietta Johnson is now held in prison. The resolution is prefaced by a ong preamble in which the differences between Judge Carpenter and Gen. Butler are rehearsed.

Mr. Mills opposed the bill to require the collection of data showing the residence, occupation, nativity, age and conjugal condition of every person who opens a savings bank account within a year after Nov, 1, 1891, and also to show whether the depositor is an employer or employe. If the person is a minor, similar facts must be given relating to the parents; if a voman, similar facts relating to her husband. Mr. Bennett thought it was a bill o make savings banks ridiculous,

Mr. Mott, as a savings bank man, opposed the bill because it was too inquis torial regarding the depositors. He thought it would drive away depositors. Mr. Mellen said that the bill had been drawn by Chief Wadling of the labor bureau and by the Savings Bank association of the state. It was desired to know how far the savings banks were being used by rich people. A large majority of the money in them, he said, belonged to people not wage-earners, while a large majority of depositors were wage-earners. Patrolling About the Residence of Dr. Graves in Providence.

PROVIDENCE, May 1.-It is definitely learned that Dr. Graves is shadowed. All night long a man paced back and forth in front of his house on Benefit street or stood about in the shadows of the big elms across the street. Down in the alley between the tenement where the doctor lives and the court house, another man kept watch all night, occasionally going around into Hopkins street, which also commands a view of the rear of the doctor's residence.

These men are not residents of Providence, or, at any rate, are not men connected with the local police force or detective agency. They are supposed to be men sent on by Inspector Byrnes from New Ed Bennett, the Adirondack guide, declares that there was a big conspiracy in the Barnaby murder case, with Dr. Graves at the bottom.

MISSING "OLD HUTCH."

Business Men Inclined to Think He is on a "Painting" Trip.

CHICAGO, May 1,-One of "Old Hutch's" sons said yesterday that their father was in Florida, and that a person had been sent to see that no harm befalls him. He added that his father was out of debt and was well off vet.

The Produce Exchange men yesterday were very sceptical as to the reported failure of Hutchinson. They did not believe n his insanity either. They rather believed that the old man was on a gorgeous picnic, and that he would turn up all right at the proper time. Word was received that C. B. Congdon & Co. would assume all of Hutchinson's open trades.

Bought by Bostonians.

MOLINE, Ills., May 1.—It is stated that Lee, Higginson & Co. of Boston have about completed the purchase from Deere, Mansur & Co., manufacturers of corn planters, the Deere manufacturing works and the Moline Plow company, with an aggregate capital of $2,400,000. The plan is to unite the plants, recapitalize them and place the securities on the market. It is said that nearly all the capital has been taken in Boston.

WHY THE REWARD?

A Dramatic Incident in the Career of the French Minister Brought to Mind by Mis Transfer to the Spanish Capital. WASHINGTON, May 1.—The transfer of M. Roustan, the French minister, who has M. Roustan, the French minister, who has for the last seven or eight years represented the French Republic in Washington, to a similar post in Madrid, is a promotion in the way the diplomatic service is graded abroad by the titular rank of the representatives sent. The opposite would be the case if one of our ministers should be transferred from the corresponding posi-tion in France to Spain. M. Roustan in Madrid will hold a higher diplomatic rank than he did here. Count De Montholm will be transferred from Athens to Wash ington to succeed M. Roustan. M. Roustan's promotion recalls a rather striking incident. Three years or so ago, near the close of Mr. Cleveland's administration, when Secretary Bayard was agitating the subject of securing sion of St. Nicholas Mole from Hayti for a coaling station, a French man-of-war, bearing the flag of the commodore of ing the French squadron, in West Indies. suddenly appeared off the coast of Florida and at the same moment the French min ister started for Pensacola, and it was said was about to embark on board this vessel to return to France.

The little flutter occasioned by this movement was quieted down by semi-official assurance that the admiral of th French fleet was a brother of the French minister; that they had not seen each other for many years, and that this was only family meeting to settle up some pri affairs. It was noticed, however, the French minister carried down to Florida ponderous packages; that the French admiral immediately sailed back to Hay waters, and that, whereas the adherents of Hippolyte, now the president of the Haytian Repub had previously been profuse in their declarations of intention to cede the desired coaling station to the United tion and transfer have anything to do with this rather dramatic incident.

Some of the Socialist memorials in Paris breathe bellicose sentiments, and Anarchists appeal to the troops to assist them in a revolt. One Anarchist manifesto is very revolutionary, and calls upon the people to destroy, burn, use dynamite and aces and the pawn shops. The Anarchist organ, Pere Berrard, admits that the Anarchists want a row in the streets, so that they can join in killing the enemies of the people and of anarchy. Throughout the leading cities of France, the workingmen will hold demonstrations, but the police ppear prepared to maintain order.

Raum's Case Before the President. WASHINGTON, May 1.—Secretary Noble will, it is said, bring the case of Pension Commissioner Raum to the president's attention again on his return. The secretary is said to be dissatisfied with the way the commissioner has conducted himself, officially or unofficially. He does not think Raum answered the charges against him satisfactorily. He thinks, too, that the commissioner, being a subordinate for whose actions he is responsible, ought to have consulted him before making any answer to the charges. Noble has been unfortunate in his commissioners. Pension Commissioner Tanner had to go. His successor has been constantly in hot water. Land Commissioner Groff had to resign, and Indian Commissioner Morgan is on the most distant terms with his chief. Text of the Lesson, Amos iv, 4-13-Commit Verses, 6-8-Golden Text, Prov. xxix, 1-Commentary by the Rev. D. M.

Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadel-

God's love for His people Israel is seen not only in His bringing them out of Egypt and placing them in the good land of Canaan, but also in His sending them His servants, the prophets, who showed them their sins and pleaded with them to turn from their sins unto God (chap. ii, 9-11).

The prophets were in themselves weak Third Quarter 1 8:51 Quarter 15 p.m. and fallible men, but God gave them a message for His people, and they had only to deliver that message faithfully in His name. But there were many false prophname. But there were many false prophname. ets, who spoke lies in the name of the Lord and perverted His word (Jer. xxiii. 28-32, 36)

IT WOULD seem that the Representative who caused the water bill to be recommitted yesterday, who by the way was one of the dissenters, had very small ground for such action. Perhaps, however, he wants to get on the popular side, and when the bill is reintroduced he will be recorded in its favor. Whether or not the clause is incorporated in Section 1, the city will have the rights. The clause is superfluous, for the rights are given by the act, and should the city purchase the present works in addition it would also acquire the company rights. The action is only an indication that every possible stumbling block will be thrown in the path of the bill.

THE HOSPITAL Aid Association is in an unfortunate dilemma. It has been decided to hold the annual fete on the Seventeenth of June in Merry Mount Park, and now the ladies find that under the deed by which the land was given the city for a park no admission can be charged. May Be Affected. NEW YORK, May 2.—The labor troubles which were predicted for May 1 in this city, amount only to strikes by the Housesmiths and Framers' unions. These two unions include about 6000 men, a very small portion of the workmen of New York, still they can, by keeping away from their work, throw 25,000 men out of em ployment. The housesmiths want eight hours a day at current wages, and most of the employers cannot see their way to on their contracts. All the unions engaged in the building trades—the carpenagreed to stop work if non-union men are employed to take the places of the union housesmiths. These men have eight hours and good wages; but they are determined to give up work rather than work with non-union men. Yesterday passed off very quietly. The workmen held meetings in plenty, but they were all orderly and not an arrest of any kind is reported. The great feature of the afternoon was the parade of the Hebrew unions. The paraders numbered about 10,000. They carried all sorts of flags and mottoes, and ach branch was headed by a band. The united furniture workers held their unnual May meeting and listened to

It was estimated that 12,000 perons were present when the speaking began. As early as 7 o'clock the various labor organizations began making their appearance and in an hour's time the uare was crowded. The meeting was held under the direction of the Socialistic labor party and the Central Labor federa-

Coal Shaft Destroyed by Incendiaries-Strikers' Warning Was Unheeded.

OTTUMWA, Ia., May 2.-Every miner in this section dropped his shovel yesterday and will stay out until the eight-hour day is granted. At Mystic, Oskaloosa, Keba, Iver, Flagler, Foster, Albya and some other points miners went out according to the dictation of the executive committee of the Iowa Iron Workers' union. Every thing is quiet and no depredations have been committed except at Oskaloosa.

Fire in the Consolidated Coal Company shaft No. 7 destroyed the plant, including a 250-horse power engine and three 400orse power engines. The loss is fully $10,000 and no insurance. The fire i thought to be the work of incendiaries. An attempt was made to set fire to shaft No. 6, but was unsuccessful. The miners at these shafts were the only ones here who were not going out yesterday on a strike. They had been warned by the striking miners that unless they went out there would be trouble.

Illinois Miners Out. DUQUIN, Ills., May 2.-Every mine in this neighborhood, except one, was closed vesterday, and 1400 miners and mine labor ers came out on a strike for eight hours a day and weekly payments. Only one mine is now running, the Egyptian, and it is Cessoo paying the demand and working under prices. ontract. Fully 4000 people are directly interested in the strike here. All of the miners south of here are out.

A Disastrous Explosion. GREENVILLE, O., May 2.-While firemen vere putting out a fire in Mrs. Creager's stable last evening, a tremendous explosion occurred. The engine was lifted eight feet into the air and dropped into a big hole. Natural gas had collected in a fire cistern, and ignited from the engine. Many persons were injured by flying debris. One boy is yet unaccounted for, and it is feared that he is in the bottom of the well under the engine.

Event of War.

Illustrating the Trend of Commerce Between Uncle Sam and Italy-No Information as to the Spanish Treaty's Character Obtainable at Present.

Washington, May 2.—The question is often asked if the severance of our friendly relations with Italy, growing out of the New Orleans affair, should progress one step further, still stopping short of an ac-tual declaration of war, what would be the result to the commerce of the two countries? We have not reached the stage of a suspension of diplomatic negotiations.

Our relations are simply abraded, not broken. Should Italy carry out the threat which Baron Fava's translation of the original Rudini dispatch conveyed, and actually recall its minister, the next move in the diplomatic game would be an embargo on commence. Our commerce with Italy has been gradually increasing for the past fifteen years. It was $15,500,000 in 1876; it was about $33,250,000 last year. We imported from Italy dutiable goods in 1890 as follows:

Fruits (mostly oranges and lemons)..$5,459,992 Hats, bonnets, hoods and material for. 875,069 Marble and manufactures of 512,926 Olive oil 304,030 Ground sumac ...

Gloves of kid and leather 285,870
Manufactures of slik 246,432
We exported to them in return of domestic products of the United States as follows: Cotton unmanufactured...... Mineral oil.... Tobacco leaf.... Cottonseed oil... 1,784,154

832,373 644,525 Wood and manufactures of Provisions It will naturally attract attention that outside of unmanufactured cotton, coal oil and tobacco, the chief exportation to Italy was cottonseed oil. We sent her $832,000 worth of that wholesome commodity and received in return $385,000 worth of "genu-ine Lucca oil." That is to say, we got back in the shape of olive oil, $440,000 less in value than we shipped to Italy in the form of cottonseed oil. Other countries have obviously received the benefit of this sur-

It is apparent that Italy would suffer more from cutting off the oil supply than would the United States. Florida and the Pacific coast could possibly stand it if the Messina oranges and lemons should be shut out. There is nothing we import from Italy, except statuary marble, which we could not get to equal advantage elsewhere; but Italy would miss greatly American cotton, tobacco, petroleum and breadstuffs.

Some interesting statistics have also been prepared with regard to another great exportation from Italy, that is immigrants. These have increased far more than other products. From 3000 in 1877, the number of Italians imported has grown to 52,000 in 1890. Of this number, 33,000 are classified as miscellaneous; that is, without any definite trade or occupation, most of them being set down as "laborers." Nearly 15,-000 are given as having no occupation at all. This includes, it is supposed, women and children. The Spanish Treaty Awaiting an Examination by the President. WASHINGTON, May 2.—The Spanish treaty, recently negotiated by Special Commissioner Foster at Madrid, is in the hands of Secretary of State Blaine. Mr. Foster, who arrived yesterday, called at Secretary Blaine's house and with him went carefully over the proposed agreement. Secretary Blaine, however, said that he could say nothing whatever on the treaty, which is of such a nature as to preclude publication until the president shall have had a look at it. He also declined to state whether or not the document was a treaty or an agreement under the recent tariff law. This is an important point to be determined, inasmuch as a treaty would have to go to the senate for ratification and would therefore run the chances of rejection, whereas a tariff agreement such as those that have been made with the South American countries can be put into operation at once by means of a proclamation by the president.

Finances in Good Condition. Washington, May 2.-Secretary Foster, in speaking to an Associated Press reporter concerning financial matters, said that in his opinion the government would be able to take care of all its obligations, and that in addition to the $236,000,000 of bonds already retired by this administraton, it would, in his opinion, add a considerable amount in the two years that remain. Concerning the $100,000,000 legal tender redemption fund in the treasury, the secretary said he did not expect that any condition of affairs would arise which would make it necessary for the government to touch it. He intimated, however, that this fund might be used without legislative action in case of absolute necessity to prevent any discredit to government obligations.

About Public Bars-President Sprague's Ruling on the Point of Order-House Denies Itself an Increase of Salary.

Boston, May 2.-In the senate, the first matter in the calendar was the house bill to prevent sales of liquor except to guest resorting to the licensed premises for foor or lodging. Mr. Donovan moved t stitute a bill which repeals the public-law clause of the existing statute with a proviso prohibiting the use of tables in mons where the selling of liquor is the only or principal business. Mr. Champlin raised the point of order that the substitute could not be entertained, because the judgment of the senate had already been upon the question, because a bill substantially the same had been passed by the senate, because the substitute germane, and because the substi beyond the scope of the governor's message, upon which the pending bill is based

President Sprague read an opinion, in which he ruled that i as the substitute bill provided in effect that liquors may be sold only in certain cases, it was only a partial repeal of the public bar statute, and therefore not essentially the same as the bill sent to the house. In regard to the third and fourth reasons adduced by Mr. Champlin, Mr. Sprague said: "It seems to the chair that the substitute bill must be regarded as within the scope of a reasonable inter tation of the language of the address and would seem to have been so treated in the other branch." He concluded: chair for these various reasons finds him self compelled to say that none of the reasons assigned are sufficient to justify him in refusing to entertain the substitute bill offered by Senator Donovan, and h consequently decides that the point of or der is not well taken. Mr. Donovan's bill was then substituted without opposition.

Foreign endowment companies are remonstrating against any legislation to prevent them from doing business. The remonstrances came from Brookline, Hudson, Cambridge, Westboro, Woll Worcester, Templeton, Gardner, River, Cohasset, Chelsea, Lynn, Marlborn, Framingham, Lowell and Attleboro. When the salary bill was reached, Mr. Bill of Paxton opened the debate, oppos ing the bill on account of the large outl from the state treasury, and because would fail absolutely to raise the standard of membership. Doubtless some members were worth $2500 each to the state,but an average sum must be voted. Salaries in the past were fixed as follows: In 1852, $2 a day; in 1857, $3 a day; 1861, $300 a year 1864, $450; 1865, $4 a d ay; 1867, $5 a day 1871, $750 a year; 1876, $650; in 1879, $500;

New York, 11; Philadelphia, 8. PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—The Phillies had a bad case of rattles in the third inning today and the New Yorkers jumped heavily on Esper, scoring six runs, only one of which was earned. Then young Kilroy was substituted for Esper and the Quakers made a brace and knocked out six runs in the seventh and eighth. Clark was injured in the first and had to retire, O'Rourke taking his place. The latter could not hold Rusie and Welch went into the box. He was hit hard and he, too, was Strange Find of Jewels.

While two young ladies of Gainesville, Ga., were gathering wild flowers near Cox's mill a few days ago, in the loose dirt they found a number of silver Masonic jewels of very fine workmanship, including a square, a plumb, a level, keys, etc. The oldest members of the Masonic fraternity of Gainesville do not all, her elders are asked him to go out. Henry now sues remember to have ever heard of the lodge at that place losing any such artiat not to do and say?" and will prove that his cough stopped cles. as fast as possible. These Goods will be sold very low as it will be the last we shall handle. We hope to retain a large portion of our present customers in our line of goods, as we shall sell goods at BOSTON PRICES, and save money for those who can and will pay CASH.

With less expense and no bad bills, we are going to convince the people of Quincy that goods can be sold CHEAPER, and the cash trade will not have to help pay the losses. All those wishing our team to solicit their orders on the above-named basis, will please notify our drivers or clerks at the Market, which we shall be very prompt in delivering.

We shall make our reductions in prices May 1st. Thanking our many friends and customers for past favors, we hope to merit a share of their future patronage.

WHOSE HANDWRITING IS IT?

Dr. Graves Suspected of Having Directed the Poisoned Package to Denver. DENVER, May 2.-Investigation into the Barnaby murder mystery is being prosecuted vigorously. A genuine sensation was produced here yesterday when the handwriting upon the inscription upon the poison bottle was compared with the signature of Dr. Graves taken from the hotel register of the Gilsey house.

From Mr. Worrell's statement, it is clear that Dr. Graves used a stylographic pen, and his handwriting on the hotel register looks unmistakably as if written by a stylographic. Neither the inscription nor the signature shows the slightest light or shade, and the slope and general style of So they called in a monkey to decide the the handwriting certainly appear similar, case. with the noticeable fact that the writing on the inscription is evidently much more careful and finished.

The features that attract attention are these: Every "E" in the inscription is written in the Greek Epsilon, and every "E" in the signature is in the Latin style. Every "R" in the inscription is one style and every "R" in the signature another. The "I's" are exactly the same in both cases; the "S" also exactly the same in both, especially in the words "Woods" and 'Graves." There is a resemblance in the 'T's" and capital "P's."

The cross on the word "accept" in the inscription looks like one of those thick blotches referred to by Mr. Worrell, and the mark after the first initial "T" in the signature also looks like the mark that would be made by a stylograph, and not OUINCY. the dot of an ordinary pen.

A "CHRISTIAN" RIOT.

Greeks Pillaging Houses of Jews in the Hebrew Quarter of Zante.

ATHENS, May 2.-A dispatch from Zante, capital of the Ionian island of that name, brings news of a serious religious riot which is taking place there. May day is observed by the Greek Christians as the Greek Good Friday, and part of the ceremonies of the day consisted of a procession of Christians, which marched through the principal streets. The processionists, however, were not contented with a peaceful demonstration. When they neared the quarter of Zante which is known as the Hebrew quarter, the Christians practically beseiged that section of the town.

THE CATS AND THE MONKEY.

Like Other Fables It Presents a Moral for Serious Consideration. Two hungry cats, having stolen some cheese, could not agree how to divide it.

"Let me see," says the monkey, with an arch look, "this slice weighs more than the other." With that, he bit off a large piece, in order, as he said, to make them halance.

The other scale was now too heavy. This gave the upright judge a fine pretense to take a second mouthful.

The Country Week.

The Boston Young Men's Christian Union has issued the Sixteenth Annual Report of the "Country Week," a charity which has for its object to give summ vacations of ten days, or more, to the poor children of Boston, and, in certain cases, to adults. Since the inauguration of the work in 1875, 29,674 persons have enjoyed its privileges. The number sent out during the first season was 160; and there has been a steady increase from that time until last year, when 2,927 children and 327 adults were recorded (total, 3,254), the average expense for each visitor being $2.39 per

To Walk Round the World.

Round the world on foot, except where a fast steamer will be needed to bridge continents, is the programme which a French citizen of thirty-four summers has just drawn up. He will try to accomplish the feat within the space of 250 days, walking, at least in Europe, twentyfour leagues per diem. M. Droz, the hero of this adventure, on quitting Paris will turn his face in the direction of Moscow. Traversing Siberia, still on foot, he will take ship on the shores of Kamtschatka for San Francisco, whence he will tramp to New York. Crossing the Atlantic to Havre, he will walk from that town to Paris.

M. Droz was formerly a non-commissioned officer in a cavalry regiment. He is of the middle height, lithe and muscular. He has already several pedestrian performances to his credit, but that which he is about to undertake throws everything of this kind into the shade. He reckons on walking fourteen hours out of twenty-four, keeping the remainder of the day for rest and refreshment. -London Telegraph.

The Duty of the Church to the Poor. I do not hesitate to say that the development of the power of self help, self respect and self dependence can be and should be the work of the Christian church in all her branches. If Christianity cannot, to this extent, leaven the masses of the wage workers, it has failed, and, at least temporarily, must continue to fail. The wild ruin resulting from that failure may recall the church of Christ to a field that her faithless disobedience has led her for a time to aban-

His words and acts are perfectly plain; he never contemplated the abolition of all poverty, but he did distinctly command that men should, us they valued his gospel or professed obedience to himself, draw near to each other, forgetting and ignoring those things that for a short time made them to differ.

He declared that the innermost and eternal verities of our nature all men have in common, and that his followers were to make much of these, while they were to make less of their differences of possession and attainment. Weakness, failure, poverty were to draw us to our brother, not drive us from him, for in the prevalence of these drawing, uniting, loving forces over the sundering and disuniting forces lay the hope of our race-he called it the coming of the kingdom of the Son of Man.—Rev. Inhumanity Shown by the Troops at Fourmies.

MANY MILES OF WORKMEN

PARIS, May 4.-The details of the labor trouble at Fourmies has immensely heightened the political importance of the incident. The fact that six women, sev- trades unions were present. Resolutions eral children and eight men were killed on the spot, while twenty were seriously wounded, several fatally, gives the affair the character of a massacre. The soldiers were merely exposed to stone-throwing, but they replied with successive volleys from their Lebel rifles, inflicting frightful wounds on their victims. The houses exposed to the fire were riddled and there is every sign that reckless and wanton inhumanity was shown by the troops. The local popular commotion is intense, and it finds a response in the growing excitement in every working center.

Fourmies is practically in a state of seige, cavalry patrol the street, and are everywhere greeted with yells of reproba-tion from excited groups of men and women. The tension of feeling may be judged from the fact that the military are hailed with cries of "Vive Prussia.

The funeral of the victims was fixed for vesterday, but the enormous number of workmen arriving from other industrial centers caused the government to send reinforcements and to order the postpone ment of the funeral until to-day. The prefect yesterday refused to receive a deputation asking for the removal of the regiment that fired upon the crowd.

A section of the Left and the Socialist and Boulangist deputies join in demanding a vote of censure against M. Constans, minister of the interior, as responsible for the slaughter. A motion to that effect will be made in the chamber of deputies. A majority of the Right and Left approves generally the measures of repression taken by M. Constans throughout the country, out will advocate an inquiry into the con duct of the troops at Fourmies. Parlia-mentary circles view the affair as shaking he position of the ministry. Labor centers throughout France are profoundly moved, and public meetings here and at Marseilles, Lyons and elsewhere are being organized to protest against the precipitate action of the authorities.

It is learned that the sub-prefect of Fourmies ordered the firing on the crowd. It would have been still worse had not the | ton. mayor risked his life and rushed between the combatants and implored them to stop fighting. This is the first time that the Lebel rifle has been used against human Traffic along the line of march vas blocked for several hours. John Burns, Thomas Mann, the president of the Dockers' union, Benjamin Tillett, the Avelings and Mr. Graham, the Socialist member of parliament, were among the speakers, who were assigned to twelve different platforms, which had been erected in the park. Money is rapidly coming into the miners' hands, and its effect was shown yesterday at several mass meetings, which were attended by men from Jimtown and Kyle, who promised to come out to-day on assurances of support.

Some 600 evictions will be made this week, in order to make room for the new men coming into the region, but labor officials say they will be able to prevent the bulk of them from going to work.

The Situation at Gotham

NEW YORK, May 4.-Sunday in this city was not a day of rest for the strikers. The men met in saloons and on the corners and discussed the situation. They say they will not give in to the bosses. The Central Labor union held a meeting in Clarendon hall and delegates from a great many were passed upholding the strikers. The boss framers also held a meeting and deeided to advertise for 700 men. They laughed at the report that twenty-seven of their number had signed an agreement with the strikers. A general meeting of bosses will be held to-night.

The Law Defied.

BOSTON, May 4.—The Central Labor union voted yesterday afternoon to march to Franklin park on the Fourth of July and to hold a meeting there in defiance, if necessary, of the city authorities. This is the most radical step ever taken by this body, in which the conservative labor ele-ment is strong, and there is danger that it may lead to trouble of a kind from which Boston in the past has been almost wholly

CHANGES IN DOGMAS.

Rev. Dr. Bridgman Talks to Madison Avenue Baptists on the Subject.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Rev. Dr. Bridgman said nothing in his sermon yesterday, which referred to his resignation of the pastorate of the Madison Avenue Baptist church, and but little which could be con strued into connection with the views which led to his resignation. Here are the only sentences which seemed to have to do with his resignation:

See what dogmas which were believed established are now changing; but there have always been changes in creeds. Religious ideas are never fixed and permanent; they are constantly changing, the new idea is ever born from the old. This is to be expected in the future. Further changes are coming; new light is to be given, but it will be developed from the old. What I now hold, itself a deve opment of my former faith, I believe will no final: God will unfold what is greater der, better. Men won't be saved by bein told they're lost.

A Murderess Sentenced.

PARIS, May 4.-The trial at Moulins of Mme. Achet, a young widow, for the murder of a notary named Lepine, has filled the court daily with a crowd of ininterested spectators. Mme. Achet, while confessing the killing, said that she acted in self-defense, Lepine hav-ing attempted to assault her. Other testimony showed that she had killed Lepine because she owed him money. She was sentenced to twelve years at hard labor, and to pay 2000 francs, to the relatives of

PANAMA, May 4.—The following respecting the Chilian revolution comes from a correspondent:

CALLAO, April 12.-Iquique revolutionary organs publish items received from Valparaiso and which state the government agent in Europe has offered a premium of £10,000 if the ironclads Erraztarriz and Pinto are ready within one month. It is also stated that soldiers have been shot at Santiago for mutinous conduct and that many are being arrested in the capital and in the departments. Among those in prison are Col. Gutier-rez, Aide-de-camp Barahona and Col. Ezequiel Fuentes. A number of professors of the school of medicine have been discharged, due to their siding with the revolution. Many revolutionary fly sheets are circulated in Valparaiso. Valparaiso has been converted to a castle. Many of the guns captured in Calloa during the last war have been mounted. Three companies of the Quillota regi-ment revolted at Quillota. The revolt was suppressed and the lewlers shot.

STRUGGLE AT NEW ORLEANS

Union Men Will Endeavor to Drive Italian Longshoremen Out of Busines Question of Labor and Race.

NEW ORLEANS, May 4. - During the height of the Mafia excitement here, when the anti-Italian sentiment was strongest, was suggested that the business of unloa ing fruit vessels ought to be taken from the Sicilians, and that if this was done would materially reduce our Italian colony Nothing more was heard about this proposition until last week, when it was announced that the Stevedores and Longshoremen's association, including many thousand members, had determined to ac on the suggestion, and that a very strong effort will be made to get possession of this business. The association does all the unloading of vessels at this port, except those laden with fruit. When the fruit importation business was started some years ago it was of so little importance that the associat did not think it worth while to inter and the Italians were allowed to control It has grown to great importance since then, and the association has decided to try to drive out the Italian laber. The Italians absolutely monopolize this but ness, and, while they have no organiza tion, or, at least, profess to have none they manage to freeze out every one else. The Stevedores and Longshoremen's association declares that whenever the im porters have employed other labor they have fared better than with Italians, and will insist that only union labor shall employed. There is no question of tarif involved, as the men are thoroughly satis fied with the wages paid. They simply propose that union labor be employed preference to the Italians, and announce that a demand to that effect will be made upon the importers in a few days. The Italians will not abandon this bust ness without a struggle, and it is a strug-gle where the question will not be simply one of union and non-union labor, but race as well, and the feeling in regan the Italians has by no means subs The struggle means a great deal t fruit trade of New Orleans and to t Italian colony, which will be cut down one-half if the stevedores and longshon men succeeding in crowding the Italians out of this business.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE MAN.

Charles W. Taylor, Whose Humorous Sketches Have Been Widely Read. Few American humorists of the pres ent day and generation are more widely known to the reading public than the Chicago Tribune man. The tales of the joys and sorrows of the McSwat family, and the touching romances in which Bolivar Pike and Buenavista McCorkle, George Ferguson and Laura Kajones, Emersonia Howiames and Young Brodweigh are mixed up, are important contributions to the stock of current humor. their doctrine. Fearing that It is unnecessary to enter into any minute analysis of these sketches. They least, if she joined her sister are popular because they are extremely some of which, particularly Vic- funny. Maudlin sentiment is held up toria are strong protectionists, she re- to ridicule in these short burlesques of life and manners, and there is a powerful combination of genuine wit and the literary art of the trained descriptive writer who knows how to put in an offective background of pathos.

The first sketches of this sort which appeared in The Tribune were from the pen of Henry Ten Eyck White, who wrote the "Lakeside Musings." It not infrequently happens, therefore, that Mr. Taylor is supposed to be their author, but it takes little study to discover that the two styles are entirely different, although dealing with the same subjects. Mr. White stopped humorous writing several years ago. Mr. Taylor succeeded him in 1886, in what perhaps may be termed an accidental manner. He was at that time city editor of the Peoria (Ills.) Transcript. He left the paper on account of his health, and while recuperating sat down one day and wrote half a column of paragraphs, which he sent to the Chicago Tribune. To his surprise they were printed, and an order arrived for more. In the next eight months he became a full fledged "funny man." Finally he went to Chicago, secured a place on The Tribune staff, and has been there ever since. Mr. Taylor has a wife and three children, and leads a quiet life, being little known personally outside of his own immediate circle. He is forty-six years old and was born in Sciotoville, O. Since early childhood he has resided in Illinois. His father was a Methodist preacher, and his boyish recollections are of the frecase in Italy, for a closer union quent movings incident to an itinerant calling. He entered a printing office early in life and began writing in 1872. Up to the time he went on The Tribune ne was engaged in various journalistic enterprises in Illinois, and owned and edited several papers.

New Orleans Massacre.

From a Commercial Point of View, Undertaken by Germany and Austria-Exposure of an Extraordinary Financial Swindle in London

ROME, May 4.- The Green Book on the New Orleans lynching comprises twentyour dispatches from March 14 to April 28. t shows that the Italian government from the commencement persevered in asking that criminal proceedings be taken against the lynchers, and that an indemnity be paid to the families of the victims.

The expression "brought to justice" recurs in the official dispatches as well as in Baron Fava's private letters. The principal communications have already been

After Mr. Blaine's note of April 14, the volume concludes with the telegram from the Marquis Rudini to the Marquis Imper

I have now before me a note addressed to you by Secretary Blaine April 14. Its perusal produces a most painful impression. produces a most painful impression upon me. I will not stop to lay stress upon the lack of conformity with diplomatic usages displayed in making use, as Mr. Blaine did not hesitate to do, of a portion of a telegram of mine comnunicated to him in strict confidence in order official documents, which alone possess a diplomatic value. Nor will I stop to point out in reference to this telegram of mine of March 1914 but the telegram of mine of March 1914 but the words with the stop of 24 that the words "punishment of the guilty in the brevity of telegraphic language actually signified only that prosecution ought to be commenced in order that the individuals recognized as guilty should not escape punish-

Far above all astute arguments remains the fact that henceforward the federal government declares itself conscientious of what we have constantly asked, and yet it does not grant our legitimate demands. Mr. Blaine is right when he makes the payment of indem-nity to the families of the victims dependent upon proof of violation of the treaty; but we shrink from thinking that he considers that fact of such violation

Still Needs Proof. Italian subjects acquitted by American juries were massacred in prisons of the state without measures being taken to defend them. What other proof does the federal government expect of a violation of a treaty wherein co stant protection and securities of the subjects of contracting parties is expressly stipulated? We have placed on evidence that we have never asked anything else but the opening of regular proceedings. In regard to this, Baron Fava's note, dated March 15, contained even he formula of the telegram addressed on the ame day by Mr. Blaine, under the order of President Harrison, to the governor of Louis-iana. Now, however, in the note of April 15, Mr. Blaine is silent on the subject which is for us the main point of controversy.

We are under the sad necessity of concluding that what to every other government would appear to be the accomplishment of scrict civil duty is impossible to the federal governnent. It is time to break off this bootless corroversy. Public opinion, the sovereign judg will know how to indicate an equitable s eral government reflect, upon its side, if it is expedient to leave to the mercy of each state of the Union irresponsible to foreign countrie liberty, with the outside are thoroughly American in tone, and the efficiency of treaties, pledging its faith and honor to entire nations The present dispatch is addressed to you ex-clusively, not to the federal government. clusively, not to the federal government. Financial Scheme in Which Stockholders Were Robbed by Wholesale.

LONDON, May 4.-A sensation has been caused by disclosures arising from the petition for the wind up of the Anglo-Austrian Printing company. Evanech Hansard was its promoter. Managing Director Bottomley of Hansard's union, now a bankrupt, received £88,500 out of £93,022 received from shareholders as part of the price of business he was supposed to have acquired in Austria. In addition Bottomley asked for a total purchase money of £600,000. Sir Horace Davey, in applying for an order for the compulsory wind up of the Anglo-Austrian company, declared that Bottomley had never any usiness of any sort in Austria to sell. The directorate of the concern, of which he recent Lord Mayor Isaacs is chairman. in September declared a dividend of 15 per cent., although the company never possessed any business. Bottomley and the directors, within a single year, divided among themselves the whole share of the capital subscribed. An inquiry being threatened, they formed a committee, which appointed a liquidator controlled by the directorate. The judge before shom the petition was made has ordered he compulsory winding up of the com pany's affairs, and has dismissed the liqnidator. A crop of prosecutions arising from the affair is impending.

TO ISOLATE FRANCE.

French Ministers Alarmed at the Atti-PARIS, May 4.-The movement of the German and Austrian governments to isolate France commercially begins to alarm the French ministers more seriously. Dispatches from the French embassy at Vienna state that Germany has opened negotiations with Russia with the view of arranging for Russian co-operation in he projected commercial union. Concert with Russia at first sight appears improbble, but under the German-Austria treaty provision is made to treat other powers re iprocally. Both countries can offer Russia the benefits of a differential tariff. Switzerland and Servia will send delegates to the Vienna commercial conference. Russia has been invited, but has not not yet replied. A semi-official note in yesterday's Freimdenblatt of Vienna proclaimed the wide economic and political bearing of the German-Austrian treaty and expects that other powers will be forced to make similar arrangements. Even France, the note says, will find it impossible to remain isolated and will be compelled to return to the treaty system.

Quicker Than Lightning.

"Quicker than lightning" is a phrase olloquially used to express the maximum of rapidity. But, according to a contemporary, electricity itself is outstripped by that old fashioned machine, the human body, by which it appears power can, so to speak, be generated in the brain, transmitted through the nerves and developed cut. Peach, plum and cherry trees are in in the muscles in an infinitesimal fraction blossom in all the southern sections. A of a second. It is stated that a pianist, in playing a presto of Mendelssohn, played The prolonged dry weather has had a 5,595 notes in four minutes and three seconds. The striking of each of these, it has been estimated, involved two movements of the finger, and possibly more. Again, the movements of the wrists, elbows and arms can scarcely be less than one movement for each note. As twenty-four notes were played each second, and each involves three movements, we would have seventytwo voluntary movements per second. Again, the place, the force, the time, and the duration of each of these movements was controlled.

All these motor reactions were conditioned upon a knowledge of the position of each finger of each hand before it was moved while moving it, as well as of the auditory effects to force and pitch, all of which involves at least equally rapid sensory transmissions. If we add to this the work of the memory in placing the notes in their proper position, as well as from Jackson's Hole, in the Snake River the fact that the performer at the same time participates in the emotions the selection describes, and feels the strength and interesting story of the event, which indi- weakness of the performance, we arrive at a truly bewildering network of impulses, suspicion held by many people in the east that Hamilton is not dead. I cannot grudge an old man his pipe, but I think cobacco often does a good deal of harm to the health-to the eyes especially, to the nervous system generally, producing head-ache, palpitation and trembling. I myself gave it up many years ago. Philosophically speaking, I think self narcotization and self alcoholization are rather ignoble substitutes for undisturbed self consciousness and unfettered self control.

Population of the World in 1890.

In the proceedings of the Royal Geographcal society for January, 1891, it is estimated that the population of the world in 1890 was 1,487,600,000, representing an average of 31 to the square mile, and an increase of 8 per cent. during the decade. Rudini's Note. ROME, March 24, 1891.

Italian Minister, Washington.
Our requests to the federal government are very simple. Some Italian subjects acquitted by the American magistrates have been murdered in prison, while under the immediate protection of the authorities. Our right there-fore to demand and and obtain the punishment of the murderers, and an indemnity for the families of the victims is unquestionable. I wish to add that the public opinion in Italy his defiance of the press. THE REPORT OF THE PARTY OF THE

FORCIBLY BOUNCED.

A French Deputy Brings Disgrace Upon Himself.

AN INVITATION TO ITALY

To Join the Commercial Alliance Between Germany and Austria-People of Fourmies Greatly Excited Over the May Day Massacre.

PARIS, May 5.-It had been announced that a section of the Left would join with the Socialist and Boulangist deputies in demanding .a vote of censure yesterday against M. Constans, the minister of the interior, on the ground that the latter was responsible for the slaughter of the men, women and children shot down by the troops at Fourmies on Labor day.

M. Constans yesterday, after replying in explanatory terms to a question as to the Fourmies affair and giving his version of the matter, holding that neither the government nor the troops were to blame for the disaster, was astonished to see M Roche, the deputy representing the Seven teenth electoral district of the Siene, spring to his feet an I shout fiercely "Murderer! A tremendous sensation followed. Mem bers shouted at and threatened each other vigorously.

Finally order was restored and the chamber voted that M. Roche should be excluded from any further participation in the day's session and that he should be declared censured by the chamber for the term he had applied to the minister of the interior.

No sooner was this course of action decided upon than Mr. Roche again sprang to his feet, and shaking his fists at those of his associates who had been most active in bringing about his proposed expulsion and censure, the angry deputy yelled: "You are a lot of valets worthy of your master." This was more than the presid ing officer could submit to, so he ordered M. Roche to be removed by force from the chamber. This was eventually done, amid one of the scenes of wildest excitement ever witnessed in the chamber of

ITALY ASKED TO JOIN. Proposed European Alliance That May

has become a topic of comment by the press generally. In its interested ulterior consequences, it bids fair to become a matter of the greatest concern to the people of the United States. It is announced that Germany and Austria-Hungary have invited Italy, Switzerland and Belgium to join in a convention at Vienna, for the avowed purpose of forming a coalition of Quincy. the central European states against protectionist countries. But why states whose customs tariffs are constructed so uniformly for the purpose of protecting under interests as are those of Germany, Austro-Hungary and Italy can give out as the reason for the proposed coalition the protectionism of other countries is a puzzle to those who have carefully studied the situation. It is not yet known that Italy has consented to join the convention at Vienna for the puriposes of considering the subject. If she should, it would seem that the political ties of the triple alliance are stronger than her commercial necessities, for among her best friends, commercially considered, are

France and the United States Since the commercial treaty with France expired in 1887, Italy's exports to France have fallen off largely, but France still reexports to Austria and Germany have fallen from 197,000,000 francs in 1885 to 181,-000,000 francs in 1889. In the latter year France bought of Italy 164,000,000 francs. In 1890 the United States bought 130,000,-000 francs. The effective value of the league depends on the adhesion of Italy. Without it it would fall far short of the importance it would gain by her adher-

DYNAMITE FOR SOLDIERS.

Revengeful Feeling of the People of Fourmies - Military Commander Assumes Responsibility for the Troops. FOURMIES, May 5. - The situation of affairs here is one of great gravity. The greatest excitement prevails throughout this town and in the villages which are situated in its vicinity. The actual state of public feeling can be best judged from the fact that many of the leaders of the popular avement, the best known representatives of the labor party, have started for Belgium in order to collect arms and dynamite for use against the troops stationed here and especially against the infantry regiment which used the rifles with such fatal effect upon the populace on Friday last. A report has reached here that 300 kilogrammes of dynamite, destined for the people of this town, has been seized while being smuggled across the frontier from Cavalry pickets were stationed all along the route of the funeral procession of the victims of the May day massacre, for such is the term applied to the tragedy by the people of Fourmies. The cavalry along the route received instructions to act promptly and effectively in the event of any trouble arising. Paris, May 5.—The commander at Four-mies, Cacarrie, in a report to the ministry of war on the May day troubles, assumes full responsibility for the action of the troops. He says he only ordered firing when the troops were in danger of being killed or disarmed, after thrice summon ing the mob to disperse.

A Fine Place to Live.

LONDON, May 5.—The Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent says that 153 students have been expelled from their schools for taking part in the procession on the occasion of the funeral of Schelgounow the Russian political economist, on Saturday last. They are accused of belonging to a revolutionary society. Other students are awaiting severe punishment. Professor Tratschebsky has been dismissed from the university, and other authors of Saturday's demonstration have been expelled from the city.

FOR THE TABLE

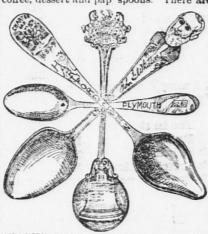

Floral Decoration That Lends Poetry and Grace to the Setting of a Feast. The fashion of table decoration grows every day more varied. The tasteful fancy of one hostess is to adorn her feasts with garlands of flowers, knotted with ribbons sometimes the dishes are wreathed with roses, or sprays of white lilac blossoms are strewn amid the wax candles. Always satin ribbons of pale tints bind the clusters

The table is a poetic confusion of porcelain figures and flowers. At the ends and in the center stand magnificent vases, filled with exotic

The latest Parisian fashion is to surround the fruit dishes with thick wreaths of roses or violets, traceries of flowers are scattered over the tablecloth. Heraldic devices, coats of arms, ships, baskets, wagons, wrought in flowers, are also seen at fashionable dinner tables The menus, surrounded with ribbons, are pinned on sprays of flowers. This abundant use of blossoms gives an incomparable poetry and grace to for hours, rehearsing his part, with the setting of the feast. Near His Country Home. Away up in the hills of Norfolk county, nestled among the woods, about a mile and a half from the town of Walpole, there stands what is now known as the Cobb Farm, but at one time this was the home of the lamented tragedian, Lawrence Barrett, and as such it is known for miles around.

Baron Fava's Previous Sensation. It has long been a standing joke among the diplomats that it was well nightimpossible to even catch Baron Fava at his apartments. Outside his door is always hanging a little sign, "Out," and very few ever seemed to have had the good fortune to call when it was reversed to read "In," if it ever did read "In."

On the night that he failed to appear at Mr. Wanamaker's dinner there were a good many telephone messages sent around by some of the other foreigners who were present to endeavor to remind him in time of the engagement. None succeeded in reaching him until very late, and when the answer came it created some consternation. The person who repeated the message from the Wanamaker telephone announced that "Mr. Fava was dying at home." After the message was repeated again several times it was discovered that, far from any such dreadful state of affairs, the baron was only "dining" at home .-Boston Journal

THE JURY'S REPORT

NO INDICTMENT IS FOUND

Against Any One Concerned in the Killing, as the Act Involved and Had the Sympathy of the Entire People of New Orleans-Conduct of Detective O'Malley and His Associates Vigorousiy Denounced-At Least Three of the Jury in the Hennessy Case Bribed.

NEW ORLEANS, May 6 .- After six weeks investigation, the grand jury completed its labors on the Hennessy case and the killing of Italians at the parish prison, by presenting the following special report at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon:

GRAND JURY ROOM, May 5, 1891. To the Hon. Robert Marr, Judge of Criminal District Court of the Parish of Orleans, Sec-

When this grand jury entered upon its term of service there was pending in section B, this tribunal, the trial of nine men, indicted for participation in the assassination of the late superintendent of police, D. C. Hennessy, on the night of Oct. 5, 1890. The enormity of that crime, executed at the midnight hour, created unusual interest throughout the whole country, while in our own city, vitally concerned in the administration of justice, as deeply affecting her social, political and material welfare, the sentiment of the populace had crystallized into the concrete form of expression that justice be rendered through the recognized channels of criminal jurisprudence, that the guilty perpetrators, whoever they were, be tried by an impartial jury of American citizens, and meet with a righteous conviction.

It is not to be wondered that attention It is not to be wondered that attention should be directed to the trial during the many days of its progress, in the selection of jurors, the evidence of witnesses, the arguments of counsel, the charge of the judge, and finally concentrated on the twelve men who. handy concentrated on the twelve men who, by virtue of their solemn oath, sat in awful judgment on their fellow men. The verdict is now of official record, bearing date March 13, 1891. We cannot be mistaken in the assertion that the renunciation of allegiance to his native country.

It is a noteworthy fact in connection with that the verdict was startling, amazing, a bitter disappointment, shocking to public opinion, provoking the repeated accusation that some of the jury had been

Unfaithful to Their Office. not possible for any observer to fail to realize the comments made on every side, touching the action of some members of the jury, when the case should be submitted; charges and speculation abounded, coupled with the wellknown cennection of certain parties of un-enviable authority, as shown by their presence daily in the court room and building, arousing the suspicion that the most subtle, dangerous and powerful influence known to the practice of criminal law were being exercised in behalf of the defense. These considerations have led us to investigate the subject, embracing all its attendant conditions and incidents. The in-qury has been conducted with the utmost diligence, devoid of fear or partiality, with the single purpose of fastening the guilt to the proper persons and presenting them under indictment to this tribunal. Careful observers testify with special reference to the Marked Inattention of the Jury, as the witnesses submitted their evidence, a the gravest consequences when the momentbus import of the issue is considered. We are of real estate to relatives and friends, the led to conclude that the jury undertook to try

Bribery. Following this investigation, it was quickly earned from various sources that talesmen had been approached; every clue offered was taken up; as a rule, the talesmen who had been previously marked out were seen when alone provided away to some secluded or unsus-pected places, well designed pretexts guarding the real meaning of the talks, but quickly leading up to the great trial. Talesmen were visited at their homes during the evening or early morning, intercepted while on their way to the court house, stopped in the corridor of the court, and the vile work was deliberately carried forward in the court room during the trial. There is no possible doubt that such at-tempts were made by various parties in the service of the defense-entertained by some of the talesmen and scornfully rejected by others. Indictment of the Conspirators. In the attempts to influence the talesmen of the Hennessy case no visible act was committed, whispered words conveying the insinuation or directly offering money. This reference will serve to show the barriers this inquest has encountered in securing evidence, but sufficient was offered by voluntary and reliable witnesses to justify the indictment of six men, as fixing business generally.

From the testimony given by the numerous witnesses before this grand jury we are forced to the conclusion that Dominick C. O'Malley is chargeable with a knowledge of and paricipation in, if not all, of the unlawful acts in nection with this celebrated case. Without Insidious and Corrupting Influence we believe the verdict would have been rad-ically different, and, as a natural consequence, the tragic occurrence of the 14th of March last lever would have been recorded. The indicted McCrystol and Cooney were reliable and rained assistants.

From the beginning of our investigation there is continuous evidence brought to our

Pernicious Combinations of what is known as the D. C. O'Malley detective agency. It advertises in The Daly City Item, and by a signboard at the office, that one of the ablest criminal lawyers at the bar is the attorney for the agency. We know for an absolute fact that the bank account is kept and checks drawn in the name of O'Malley and Adams, the interested parties being C. D. O'Malley and Lionel Adams. Such a combination between a detective and a prominent criminal lawyer is unheard of before in the civilized world, and when we contemplate its possibilities for evil, we stand aghast. The detective agency has at its command board of perjurers, blackmailers, sub mers and jury tamperers, and has for some time been an element of discord in this community and a stumbling block to the administration

Make-Up of the Mafia. The extended range of our researches has developed the existence of the secret organization styled "Mafia." Its officers and many of its members are now known. Among them are men born in this city, of Italian origin, using their power for the basest purposes. The larger number of the society is composed of talians and Sicilians, who left their native land, in most instances, under assumed names, to avoid conviction and punishment for crimes there committed, and others were escaped convicts and bandits, outlawed in their own land, seeking the city of New Orleans for the congenial companionship of their own class. To-day there are recorded in the office of the Italian consul in this city the names of some 1100 Italians and Sicilians landed here during several years past, showing the official records of their criminality in Italy and Sicily. Hundreds of them are among us to-day. We doubt not the Italian government would rather be rid of them than be charged with their custody and punishment. Three Jurors Were Bribed.

The report says it seems certain that at east three of the Hennessy jurors were influenced by money. Some of their associ-aties have testified that, but for the persistent efforts of those jurymen, the verdict would have been very different from that rendered. It is certain that the special effort of counsel for defense was to select for service on that jury such men as were the acquaintance and well under the influence of O'Malley and his assistants. Notably those talesmen who were on th letective agent's list.

Calling attention to the immigrants arriving at New Orleans from Italy, the reports say the immigration laws are vio lated, and that the Italian consul himself, in a sworn statement before the grand jury, charged that nine Italians were re cently landed from the steamer Entella, whose names were not on the passenger ist. In conclusion, dealing with the .ynchings at the parish prison, the grand tury say:

Eight Were Citizens. Evidence is before us from official source that eleven persons were killed in the attack in the parish prison. In the careful examination as to citizenship of these men, we find that eight of them were beyond question American citizens, and another had "declared

It is a noteworthy fact in connection with the uprising that no injury whatever was done to either person or property, beyond the one act which seemed to have been the object of the assemblage at the parish prison. We have referred to the large number of citizens par As the trial neared its termination, it was not possible for any observer to fail to realize judges at from 6000 to 8000, regarded as a spon taneous uprising of the people. The magnitude of this affair makes it a Difficult Task to Fix the Guilt upon any number of the participants; in fact, the act seemed to involve the entire people of the parish and city of New Orleans, so profuse their sympathy and extended their connection with the affair. In view of these consideration the thorough examination of the subject has failed to disclose the necessary facts to justify this grand jury in presenting indictments.

PORTER MAY LEAVE

"PERSISTENT QUIBBLING"

Charged to Mr. Blaine By an Italian Newspaper-Death of Barbara Ubryk, the Nun Who Was the Innecent Cause

LONDON, May 6 .- The Rome correspondent of The Chronicle says that it is reported that Minister Porter will shortly vacate the United States legation there, leaving the secretary in charge. WASHINGTON, May 6 .- No doubt whatever is entertained in diplomatic circles that Minister Porter will within a few days apply for and receive a leave of absence, if, indeed, he has not already done so. He will probably wait until he gets the fac-simile reproductions of Baron Fava's celebrated translation of Premier Rudini's original demand. Some amusing speculation is indulged in as to what use the minister will put them to in the wide the minister will put them to in the wide the wide to adopt the amendments of Mr. Bennett since it was the wide to adopt the amendments of Mr. Bennett since it was the wide to adopt the amendments of Mr. Bennett since it was the wide to adopt the wide latitude given him by Mr. Blaine.

ROME, May 6 .- The Opinione says: Mr. Blaine's telegram to Minister Porter again begs the question. The green book proved that the telegram to Baron Fava was communicated in confidence to Mr. Blaine and President Harrison. It is regrettable that a minister of a great power should persist in quibbling whilst the principle at issue is unsolved.

The Opinione calls for earnest and calm consideration of the question.

THE CRACOW RIOT.

Death of the Poor Nun Whose Sufferings Worked Up the Popular Feeling.

VIENNA, May 6 .- Barbara Ubryk, the innocent cause of the Cracow riot in July, 1869, has just died in the insane asylum in that city. Barbara belonged to a noble family, but became a Carmelite nun. Soon after entering the convent she ceased to write to her relatives, who lost all trace of Years afterward one of the brothers tried to persuade the religionists to tell him what had become of his sister, and was given to understand that her name had been stricken from the list of the liv Not satisfied with this answer, he in voked the assistance of Bishop Galecki, who, surrounded by police, forced an entrance into the convent and discovered Sister Barbara in a cell ten feet underground, nearly naked and insane She had lost all power of speech and use of her lower limbs. The bishop punished the superior confessor in the name of the pope. Sister Barbara was then 52, having spent twenty years in the cell to which originally she had been banished for some venial act of indiscretion.

When the facts became known to the public, crowds collected in the streets and threatened to burn all convents and houses of Jesuits. The military was called out and riots ensued, which lasted several days, and during which many citizens and soldiers were killed and wounded.

BIG DEMAND FOR SMALL COIN. Treasury Officials Have All They Can Do to Keep Orders Filled.

WASHINGTON, May 6 .- A number of applications have been received by United States Treasurer Nebeker for a consignment of the subsidiary silver coin, which the department has offered to send to anyone free of cost for transportation by express, in sums of $200 or more by registered mail in packages of $70, in exchange for other money. Most of the applications have come from banks, and they have asked generally for amounts ranging from $500 to $1000. The requests are being complied with as rapidly as possible.

The circular offering to exchange the coin for other money was issued last Friday, and judging from the interest already manifested the department officials are encouraged to believe that a large quantity of the fractional coin will be placed in circulation. Requests for this coin are also received and the coin supplied by the sub-

There has been a great demand at the department for 10-cent pieces, induced, it is presumed, by the extensive use of a new metallic safe case which has been sold extensively throughout the country and which can be opened only when filled with fifty of the 10-cent pieces.

A statement prepared at the treasury department shows that there was a net decrease of $763,631 in circulation May 1, as compared with April 1. The items of decrease were: Standard silver dollars, $1,-228,192; gold certificates, $5,426,270; and national bank notes, $2,026,211. The items of increase were: Gold, $393,931; subsidiary silver, 114,505; silver certificates, $3,300,905; treasury notes of the act of July 14, 1890, $3,098,281; and United States notes, $1,009,-420. During the same period there was a net decrease of money and bullion in the treasury amounting to $9,914,803, the princepal decrease being in gold coin.

Wrecked by John Lucas.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—The arrest of the two ex-officers of the Keystone National bank has brought to light the fact that the reckless speculation of the late John C. Mr. Lucas was largely interested in many ventures, and to sustain the burden of them took from the bank funds about $1,000,000, depositing little or no collateral. Student Soldiers.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE

Street Railway Locations-Engrossment of the Foreign Corporations Bill in a New Shape-Arsenical Poisoning.

Boston, May 6.-In the senate, Mr. Coveney moved to substitute a bill for the adverse report as to providing that no board of aldermen of any city shall author. ize the location of any tracks of any street railway company in any public highway except upon condition that such company within thirty days after receiving notice of such conditional location, shall file in the office of the clerk of the city the written consent of the owners of three-fourths the last prior assessed valuation of the real estate within 100 feet of such high way. Mr. Coveney explained that this bill was intended to prevent the parallel. ism of existing street railways without the consent of the abuttors, and his bill required only a majority of three abuttors instead of three-fourth as proposed in the order. After a lengthy debate the bill was substituted, 16 to 9.

In the House. Immediately after the opening of the house Speaker Barrett called Mr. Kimball to the chair and himself took the floor. He then moved the reconsideration of the re jection of the bill relating to foreign corporations. He spoke at length upon the situation, urging the house to adopt the evident that the bill as it stood could no pass. Something must be done to stop the operations of fraudulent Maine corporations, and he believed that the house would pass a bill for that purpose. At the same time, he believed that the tax laws are greatly one-sided, and that the rich people of the state do not bear nearly their proper share of taxation.

A radical change must be made, and doubtless will be made, in the near future. But the matters are entirely distinct. So he moved to reconsider the rejected bill so that it might be amended and passed, to prevent further fraudulent operation Replying to Mr. Quincy's question whether the reconsideration would open the whole fight on the bill, Mr. Re rett appealed to Mr. Lane to state whether he should do so, being in charge of the bill. Mr. Lane replied that he should ac cept Monday's defeat as final for his share of the bill, and should not renew the fight to compel disclosure of the ownership shares of stock. Mr. Mellen made a sim lar reply to the question of him. Debate was continued for the full half hour, and the reconsideration was ordered by a very large majority.

Mr. Barrett then moved the amendments of Mr. Bennett to strike from the bill the requirement for the returns of individshareholders. They were adopted without debate, and the bill as amended was immediately passed to be engrossed Mr. Hodges gives notice that he will move to substitute for the senate bill the following bill relative to the sale of articles containing arsenic: Section 1. Section 1 of chapter 363 of the acts of the year 1882 is hereby amended by insert-ing after the word "food" in line three the words "or of household or domestic use," so that said section as amended shall read as fol Section 1. No person shall, within this con onwealth, manufacture for sale, offer for sale or sell any drug or article of food ere household or domestic use which is adulter ated within the meaning of this act. Section 3 of said chapter is hereby amende by inserting in paragraph b, after clause 7, an other paragraph to be renumbered 8,to read as follows: In the case of articles for household or domestic use, if the same contain sufficient arsenic to render the same injurious to the health of the person using them. ANY QUANTITY OF LAND

Journal. Conversational Equality.

For conversation society must not be very unequal. By inequality I do not refer to the doubtful distinction of banking accounts or family trees. So far as these are concerned there is nothing so democratic as conversation. But it does demand some approach to a similaritynot in opinions; with good temper these may widely differ—but in manners and taste, and, above all, in intellectual capacity. When people are brought together without care for these similarities we know what happens. If their num-Vogely & Co., storage company, loss on stock, $70,000; insured. has some affinity for the rest. Where this instinctive distribution is, through smallness of numbers or the fussiness of a host, impossible we may expect a dull time. All know Bret Harte's tale of a man who had never heard of Adam before and asked "What was his other name?" But there have been talkers in real life also who had to endure much at the hands of the ignorant.-Gentleman's Magazine.

Superficial Judgment of Men.

In our judgment of men we are to beware of giving any great importance to occasional acts. By acts of occasional generosity weak men endeavor to redeem themselves in their own estimation; vain men to exalt themselves in that of mankind. It may be observed that there are no men more worthless and selfish, in the general tenor of their lives, than some who, from time to time, perform feats of generosity. Sentimental selfishness will commonly vary its indulgences in this way, and vainglorious selfishness will break out into acts of munificence. But self government and self denial are not to be relied upon for any real strength, except in so far as they are found to be exercised in detail. -New York Ledger.

Surrender of a Fugitive.

Daniel Clifton, a white convict, made his escape from the state camps about a month ago. He was chased with hounds, but in vain, and disappeared in the swamp. It seemed that after incredible nardships and sufferings he made his way to his home at Arcadia, from which place he wrote a few days ago to Captain Powell, chief of the camp, stating his intention of returning and praying for leniency. Word was sent him to come, and he journeyed back all alone and delivered himself up. Since his escape Clifton has sold some phosphate land for $8,000 cash, but said that anxiety and mental torture were too much for him.-Cor. Jacksonville Times-Union.

Sewerage Assessments.

The city engineer of Lynn in his annua report says concerning proper and equitable sewer assessments: Evidently the theory guest of Mrs. J. H. Yeoman, of Newbury of "level assessment" is well founded. An estate connected with a brick sewer costing perhaps $10 per linear foot ordinarily receives no greater benefit than another connected with a pipe sewer costing $1 per foot; therefore the assessment B. M. Bevins of the Temple street fish on the former should not exceed that on market boils lobsters twice a day, and opens the latter. In other words, assessments for defraying the cost of a sewerage system should be distributed over the entire district sewered, and be so apportioned that all estates therein should contribute equally for equal benefit. An estimate presented The Somerville High School nine play in a former report of the City Engineer land Adams Academy club on the Green therefore should not be included in the the Adams Academy club on the Green- (1888) apparently demonstrates that assessments should be equivalent to at least D. Bamford, whose stock was damaged $2 for every foot of street frontage. by water at the Sunday fire, has secured a Owing to great variation in shape and depths of lots in this city the frontage basis alone is inequitable. Areas should also be regarded, making a dual basis for apportionment.

If the assessments on the new basis should appear onerous, they might in extreme cases be temporarily suspended; in others be collected in annual apportionments, but all should bear interest at some reasonable rate and constitute a lien upon the estate until paid.

GENIS IN VERSE.

The Old Story.

My heart is chilled and my pulse is low, But often and often will memory go, Like a blind child lost in a waste of snow, Back to the days when I loved you so— The beautiful long ago.

I sit here dreaming through and through The blissful moments I shared with you— The sweet, sweet days when our love was

When I was trustful and you were true: The beautiful days, but few.

Blest or wretched, fettered or free, Why should I care how your life may be, Or whether you wander by land or sea? I only know you are dead to me Ever and hopelessly.

Oh, how often at day's decline I pushed from my window the curtain vine, To see from your lattice the lamplight shine, Type of message, that, half divine, Flashed from your heart to mine.

Once more the starlight is silvering all: The roses sleep by the garden wall— The night bird warbles his madrigal, And hear again through the sweet air fall The evening bugle call.

But summers will vanish and years will wane, And bring no light to your window pane, Nor gracious sunshine nor patient rain Can bring dead love back to life again— I call up the past in vain.

My heart is heavy, my heart is old, And that proved dross which I counted gold; I watch no longer your curtain's fold, The window is dark and the night is cold, And the story forever told. -Florence Percy.

The Baronet at the Postoffice.

Some time ago Sir Reginald Barnwell, in English baronet, visiting this country, directed his correspondents to send his mail to the general delivery at Baltimore. Reaching Baltimore, he went to the postoffice and inquired of the clerk at the general delivery window if there was any mail for Sir Reginald Barnwell. After looking over the letters in the box marked "B" the clerk told him there was none. He returned the next day, and still the next, but always received a negative response to his inquiry for letters. He thought this very strange, as he knew his correspondents must have written, and that his mail should have reached Baltimore even before he got here himself. All this he explained to the clerk, but the looked for letter was not given him.

Finally, one day after his usual inquiry had been made with the usual result, he said to the clerk, "If I am not too officious, might I ask to be allowed to look over these letters?" They were handed him, and as he ran over them he kept throwing some aside until he had a pile of twenty or twenty-five beside him, He then gave the package back to the clerk and commenced berating that official for his carelessness in forcing him to come to the office four or five days successively for mail that had been waiting there more than a week.

The clerk then asked to see the letters Sir Reginald had taken out. They were handed him, and on each he read "Sir Reginald Barnwell, Bart." "Why, sir," he said, "these are not your letters; they belong to Sir Reginald Barnwell Bart, while you asked for the letters of Sir Reginald Barnwell." The baronet took his letters, not knowing whether to be angry or amused .- Baltimore Sun.

The Storage Battery.

Electricians are regarding with much satisfaction the fact that after exhaustive tests and experiments with the most improved systems of traction the Metropolitan Street Railway company, of Washington, have adopted the storage battery as the motive power on their lines, and a demonstration of its capabilities will be given in the course of a year. In a recent speech at the New York Electric club Mr. C. O. Mailloux said that it was with him a matter of conviction that the storage battery would soon be recognized as the ideal system for cities of a certain size, and he wished to place on record his confirmation of the opinion which an eminent authority had already expressed-that for cities below 500,000 population the storage battery will be the solution of the rapid transit problem on surface roads.—Boston Tran-

THE WAR IN CHILI

It is Being Kept Up by Rival New York Firms.

MR. BLAINE'S AID IS ASKED

To Untangle the Difficulties-A Chilian Steamer Seized, Probably on Representations That She Was in the Service of the Revolutionists.

WASHINGTON, May 7.-The rival New York firm, who appear to be aiding and abetting the contending parties in the Chilian revolution, are now possibly named as W. R. Grace & Co. and C. D. Flint & Co., both formerly partners, but now bitter enemies. William R. Grace was the author of the project for the international American convention, which met in Washington last year. Mr. Flint was one of the American delegates. Both firms are said to be now actively engaged in shipping arms to the belligerents. Flint is supporting PresidentBalmaceda, and Grace the Congressional insurgent party, who regard the president as holding power by usurpation

Flint & Co., it is stated, shipped two large consignments of arms to Balmaceda some time ago, comprising 350 cases of rifles and 750,000 cartridges. These were sent by United States steamers and invoiced to Rio Janeiro "in transit." It is now said that the shipment or discarded German arms, which was heard of off the Pacific coast the other day, was consigned to the Graces by the Congressional party As to the motives underlying the action of the two firms this statement is made:

The Motives. The firm of W. R. Grace & Co., of which the ex-mayor of New York is the head, has branch houses for the purchase and sale of general merchandise at Lima, Callao, Valparaiso, Guyaquil and San Francisco. It is the fiscal agent of the Peruvian government. During the war between Peru and Chili it took an active share on the side of the former, furnishing the government with arms and other means of warfare.

When the Chilian army entered Lima the agents of the victorious government, desiring to wreak special vengeance on the Graces, destroyed their property wherever it could be found. The firm brought claims against Chili amounting to about $2,000,600, which were allowed by the inter national commission. Chili, however, re fused to pay on the ground that the Graces had given aid and comfort to the The Flint firm represents the Chilian government, and has alalways acted as its agents in the purchase of arms and ammunition, particularly in n the person of Richard Trumbull, an American by descent, but a Chilian by birth, a member of the Chilian congres and a sharp, shrewd, successful lawyer, whose influence and aid have been cast with the insurgents. He comes from good American stock. His great-grandfather was the famous revolutionist, Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut. Last January he came north and spent some months in this country, acting openly as the agent of the insurgents. He made his headquarters with the Graces, with whom, it is alleged, he had commercial relations in Val-

When last heard from he was in San Francisco, not over a week ago, and there is reason to suppose that he was not there for pleasure. He is supposed to have bought arms from or through the house of Grace, shipped them to San Francisco and there loaded them upon a vessel which he ran down the coast a short distance, where she was to be met by a man-of-war belonging to the insurgents, on which they vere to be transferred. In the meantime Mr. Flint has not been active. He was here in Washington last Sunday, and had an all-day conferences with the Chilian minister, Senor Lazcano. It is thought that he then had nformation of the movements of Trumbull and had come to obtain his apprehen sion if possible.

Secretary Blaine will be asked to take action in the matter as soon as he re-turns to this city, but the equally balanced forces of the two parties, and the desperate straits to which President Balmaced has evidently been reduced, as evidence by his recent proclamation suspending the action of courts, will make the question of interference, except to maintain strict neutrality, a difficult one to handle.

SEIZED BY UNCLE SAM.

Chilian Steamer Etata Had Taken on Large Lot of Stores at San Diago-Insurgent Warship Seen Off the Harbor. SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 7.-United States steamer Gard has seized the Chilian steamer Etata, now receiving supplies in the harbor, and placed Capt. Mauzeum under arrest. Telegrams have been passing between his city and the department in Washington, which brought about the above results. Tugboats have left to seize the two vessels seen outside, one of which is supposed to be the schooner Robert and Minnie and the other a warship be longing to the insurgents, which have been hovering around the entrance to the harbor to receive the supplies taken on board the Etata.

The warship was first sighted about noon Tuesday passing north. Ten hours later she repassed the harbor going south, lying to just north of Coronado islands. Customs Officer Berry sent a party out to investigate, who reported seeing a large vessel under steam which they could not approach nearer than two miles on acount of her steaming away from them. Orders were received from Secretary Blaine to seize both vessels if found within the three-mile limit, and Marshal Gard and Collector Berry went out in different tugs for that purpose. At midnight the Et ra received forty head of cattle, twenty-live head of sheep and 3000 pounds of dressed meat from the ferryboat Coronado. The vessel has also received other stores, including 800 tons of coal. As soon as all the provisions and foreman of the Knights of Labor and well fuel were on board she expected to leave the known in labor circles, who died in Chiharbor and cruise between here and Catalina to meet the schooner Robert and Min- Rev. The bill to enable cities and towns to manufacture and distribute gas and electricity was taken up, and Mr. Champlin resumed his argument in support of his substitute bill, which is confined to the distribution of electricity. Mr. Champlin cited statistics to show that in cities where electricity is unfurnished by the municipality, the charges are much smaller than where the business is in private hands. The bill reported by the minerity of the committee, he contended, meant nothing, and it was a bill which would not meet approval of the people. Mr. Pinkerton objected to the bill because it does not provide for the payment of the local company for its plant. Mr. Champlin said the old company could continue to furnish electricity for commercial purposes, and there was no reason why the municipality should not furnish electricity for its own uses Mr. West, speaking principally for Boston, said that for a municipality to go into any commercial or manufacturing business was wrong in conception, false in principle, and unjust to the people. He predicted that in this city there would be the greatest political contest ever known to get control of the business. He hoped that neither bill would be substituted, but that the committee's report would be accepted.

In the House. At the meeting of the house session Mr. Kimball moved a reconsideration of the ordering to a third reading the bill as to the abolition of grade crossings. Messrs. Mellen and Moriarty opposed reconsidera tion as being urged directly in the interest of the lobbyists in the employ of the railroads. Reconsideration prevailed, 74 to 66. The bill was debated at great length, and despite the objection of the railroad com-mittee, it was ordered to a third reading by a vote of 89 to 77, with five pairs.

Mr. Olmstead moved to reconsider the vote passing to be engrassed the bill for a rapid transit commiss on for Boston. He said that the bill was pushed through without debate in so much confusion that the house did not know what it was doing While it was all right that the West End bill should have been passed last year, yet there were people in Boston who thought that opportunity should be given to another company to construct tunnels, if it wished to help soive the rapid transit problem. Mr. Mellen thought a matter of such great impertance ought to have some consideration. Messrs. Quincy, Sohier, Wilson and Kilmer believed the bill good as it was. The house refused to reconsider, 21 to 96.

A vote was not reached until after the usual hour of adjournment. The vote was unexpectedly large in favor of the nation ist idea, for, including pairs, it was 25 to MADRID, May 7 .- The draft of the treaty of commerce between Spain and the United States was sent to the Spanish minister at Washington last week with instructions to sign it immediately. It is expected the cessary signatures will be appended by the end of this week. Although the Spanserve in regard to the treaty, even refusing to communicate it to the Cuban deput information from a reliable source con firms the report that coal, petroleum, machinery and fats will be admitted free into Cuba and Porto Rico, and the present duty on flour will be reduced one-half, in exchange for the free admission into the United States of sugar, coffee and cocoa. The deputies from Castile continue to oppose the treaty on the ground that it will render it impossible for Spanish flour to compete with American flour in the Spanish Antilles; but they cannot demand a vote upon the treaty, as the government bas power to sign it without obtaining spehas power to sign it without obtaining spe cial authority from the chambers.

Dies of Pneumonia.

A NOTED PHILANTHROPIST.

An Honorable Reputation Firmly Established Both at Home and Abroad-A Brilliant Writer and a Friend to All Who Were Oppressed.

Boston, May 7.—Gen. J. F. B. Marshall died yesterday at his home "Kendal Green," in the town of Weston, of pneumonia, after an illness lasting about a week, at the age of 72 years and 9 months. He was born in Charlestown and was a de; scendent of a celebrated divine named Kendal. His father was at one time president or cashier of a Charlestown bank. The son entered Harvard college, but owing to trouble with his eyes was compelled to abandon his studies while in the sophomore class. A trip abroad was advised by his physician, and about 1838 he embarked on a sailing vessel for the Hawaiian Islands by way of Cape Horn.

He engaged in business there and so attached himself to the government and people by his genial manners, intelligence and integrity that he soon took a high social position, which he always retained. He continued in the wholesale dry goods business in Honolulu for several years, being associated with the firm of C. Brewer & Co., one of the oldest and best-known houses connected with the Hawaiian trade, which had branch offices there and in Boston. He served four years as a member of the Hawaiian parliament, taking an active part in giving form to the liberal constitution granted to his people by Kamei ameha III.

After several years' residence in Hono-lulu, Mr. Marshall went to Kanai, a neighboring island, where he assisted in the establishing of a large and valuable sugar plantation at Lehui. In 1844, when Lord George Paulet, on behalf of the British government, seized the islands and took ossession of them for the crown, hoisting the English flag, Mr. Marshall was Appointed a Special Envoy and made the bearer of dispatches to England. He passed through this country on his way there, and met the special embassadors, Messrs. Richardson and Haalilo,in England. He took an active part in the negotiations that followed in connection with the seizure, for which he won the most grateful acknowledgments from the Hawaiian government. His experiences in this affair were graphically told in an article which he contributed to Harper's Magazine years afterward. After residing abroad for about twenty years he returned to Boston, and on the breaking out of the Rebellion was appointed by Governor Andrew paymaster of the state, which office he held during the war. He next became associated with Samuel C. Armstrong, president of the Hampton institute, Virginia, in the management of that school, of which he and have posted the following notice:

He received a most cordial reception and all kinds of royal honors were heaped upon him. Banquets were given by the highest dignitaries of the country, and in recognition of his distinguished services as a diplomat, he was decorated with the royal order of Kamehameha, an

He was an occasional contributor to some of the leading magazines of the country, one of the latest and most important articles being a description of "How Gold was Discovered in California," recently published in the Atlantic Monthly. He was also a valued correspondent of the periodical press, his pen being always used in championship of the cause of humanity and philanthropy.

Gen. Marshall was a man of the highest character and integrity. His benevolence and rare intelligence were conspicuous traits in his character and his manly form, white hair and beard and amiable features were sure to attract attention wherever

THE LOST THANSMORE.

Owner Thinks She Was Burned at Sea Through Poor Packing of Cotton. LONDON, May 7.—During the inquiry into the loss of the British steamship Thanemore, which disappeared while on a voyage from Baltimore to London last fall, Mr. Johnson, the owner of the steamship, said he was of the opinion that she was burned at sea in consequence of bad packing of the American cotton which she carried. He said that the carrying of cotton was very risky, in spite of the American promises of better packing. The Thanemore sailed from Baltimore for London on Nov. 26, and nothing has since been heard of her.

Balmaceda Wouldn't Comply. PARIS, May 7.-A dispatch from Chili says: Four congressional delegates have had an interview with President Balmaceda, but there is small hope of the two sides coming to an understanding. Shameful Crime. LONDON, May 7 .- The trial of Capt. Ed. mund H. Verney, member of parliamen charged with procuring a governess, Miss Nellie Beckett, for immoral purposes, too place here yesterday. When arraigned Capt. Verney pleaded not guilty of procuring the young girl, but he pleaded guilty of conspiracy in conjunction with Mme. Roullier of Paris to procure her. There corder, Sir Thomas Chambers, before whom the trial took place, accepted this plea and entenced Capt. Verney to one year's imprisonment without hard labor. Counsel for the defense, in his plea for the prisoner, alluded to the prisoner's distinguished service in the Crimea and in parliament, and undoubtedly won syr pathy for the disgraced ex-naval officer. The recorder, in sentencing Capt. Verney, said that he had come to the conc through the evidence given that the case of Miss Nellie Beckett was not the on case of procuration in which the capta had been implicated, and therefore could not lean toward the side of mercy much as he could have done had it been an isolated case.

Some Seasonable Suggestions Concerning Children's Clothing.

Triple capes are now often applied to jackets and coats for children, and full pointed capes are new. In the cut is shown an attractive coat for a little girl. It is pinked out or buttonholed in deep vanturn-down collar. Fine plaitings of silk

-Annie Isabel Willis in Boston Pilot. Rest Is Necessary.

A man who has so much to do that he will work nights and Sundays as well as week days is not likely to do as much in the long run as the man who rests at God's appointed times in order to fit himself for effective work between these times. Many a busy man breaks down a great deal earlier than he needs to, because he insists on working when rest is his first duty. And many a man who observes God's law of the night and the Sabbath, written in man's very nature, accomplishes far more in a series of years than he could have wrought with any violation of that law.

Mr. Gladstone, speaking not long ago of his own experiences in busy life, said of the high privilege of "Sunday rest," "Personally, I have always endeavored, so far as circumstances have allowed, to avail myself of this privilege, and now that I have arrived near the goal of a

The Small Boy in Spring.

There is something the matter with the small boy just now. Perhaps tha isn't just the phrase to use, because that seems to imply that he is in some way guilty of blame, whereas possibly his present condition may simply be the natural one, which an unkindly civilization has thwarted and kept from being a permanent one, as nature intended. He no longer walks on his feet with his head in the air; he walks on his hands, with his feet swinging clumsily above him. He would walk on his head, if he could. In default of that, he stands there when he is obliged to stand at all. He turns handsprings, he jumps, he flies. He makes another boy subservient unto himself and enthrones himself upon his shoulders. He rigs up a perilous trapeze across the fence tops in the back yard. He plants a long row of inverted bottles in the soft earth and essays an unsteady progress down the line.

The policeman is in despair. The genus common boy he has understood in every subtlety of his thought and variety of its manifestation. But this special creation, that is half vertebrate and half invertebrate, part boy and part devil, that cuts pigeon wings under his very nose and flies to a safe distance to jeer at him, this is something he never knew before. At least he thinks he never did. He thinks so every year. He will go on thinking so every year, probably, as surely as the year rolls round and the circus comes again.

The small boy never knows the whole of himself, never gets all there is out of himself until then. The days of his life go along, and there is the school and the play of an ordinary prosaic kind. But when the circus comes he comes into his full inheritance. He realizes for a brief while all that it means to be "a soaring human boy." The circus strikes him in the right place, as he would say. And it strikes him right while he is there. He came into the building in twolegged propriety. He goes out of it wheeling along in hand and foot circles on the ground .- New York Livening Sun.

A coat of the great Napoleon was re cently stolen from the country house of M. Cheval in a suburb of Paris, and the police have been trying to recover it. The burglars who carried it off with other booty were probably unaware of its historical value. Its recent owner bought it in St. Helena immediately after the death of the emperor.

BEHRING SEA AGAIN.

Mr. Blaine Gives Pointers to Lord Salisbury.

of Behring sea, then it shall be further determined:
First, how far, if at all, outside the ordinary territorial limits it is necessary that the United States should exercise an exclusive jurisdiction in order to protect the seal for the time living upon the islands of the United States and feeding therefrom?

Second—Whether a closed season (during which the killing of seals in the waters of Behring sea outside the ordinary territorial limits shall be prohibited) is necessary to save the seal fishing industry, so valuable and important to mankind, from deterioration? And, if so,

If so,
Third—What months or parts of months should be included in such season, and over what waters it should extend? The president does not object to the additional question respecting alleged damages to English ships, proposed by Lord Salisbury,

If One Condition Can be Added, imely? That after the issues of the arbi tration are joined, if the United States shall prevail, all the seals taken by Canasnall prevail, all the seals taken by Canadian vessels during the period shall be paid for at the ordinary price for which skins are sold. This seems to the president to be the complement of Lord Salisbury's proposition, and he doubts not that it will secure his lordship's assent.

In the first paragraph of Lord Salisbury's dispatch of Feb. 21, he makes the following declaration:

maintained and, I think, proved from the text that there was not a single word in those protests referring to the Behring sea, but that they are referred, in the language of the Duke of Wellington, on the 17th of October, 1822, only the lands "extending along the shores of the Pacific ocean from latitude 49 deg. to latitude 60 deg. north." In the first paragraph of Lord London-derry's protest of Jan. 18, 1822, addressed to Count Lieven of Russia, he alluded to the matters in dispute as "especially connected with the territorial rights of the Russian crown on the northwest. of the Russian crown on the northwest coast of America, bordering on the Pacific cean, and the commerce and navigation of his imperial majesty's subjects in the seas adjacent thereto."

From these and other pertinent facts it is evident that the protests of Lord Londonderry and the Duke of Wellington had nothing whatever to do with

The Points Now in Issue between the American and British governments concerning the waters of the Behring sea. They both referred, in different but substantially identical phrases, to the territory south of the Alaskan peninsula, bordering on the Pacific and geographically shut out from the Behring sea. I regret that my arguments are accounted to the control of the c cally shut out from the Behring sea. I regret that my arguments on a point which Lord Salisbury considers of great importance should have escaped his lord-ship's notice. In Lord Salisbury's judgment the contention of the United States now rests wholly upon the ukase of 1821 by the Emperor Alexander of Russia. The United States has at no time rested its argument solely on the ground mentioned, and this government regrets that Lord Salisbury should have so misapprehended the American position as to limit its basis of right in Behring sea to the ukase of 1821.

The United States has, among other grounds, insisted without recurring to any of its inherited and superior rights in Alaska, that this government has as full authority for going beyond the three-mile line in case of proved necessity as Great Britain possesses. Two or three instances of the power which Great Britain exer-cises beyond the three-mile line have alof the power which Great Britain exercises beyond the three-mile line have already been quoted, but have failed thus far to secure comment or explanation from Lord Salisbury. Another case can be added, which, perhaps, is still more to the point. In 1889—only two years ago—the British parliament enacted a law, the effect of which is fully shown by a map inclosed herewith.

[Note—The map referred to represents a triangular sheet of water, with the apex formed by three small firths or bays. The great body of water is nameless on the map. Across the base of the triangle is the line of exclusion, measuring eighty-five it es, and the two sides are fifty-six and sixty-two miles long, making the total enclosed area 2700 square miles.

It must not escape observation that the area of water outside the three-mile limit on the coast of Scotland, whose control is assumed by Great Britain, is as large as would be found inside a line drawn from Cape Cod to Portland harbor, on the New England coast. Lord Salisbury reasserts his contention that the words Pacific ocean, at the time of the treaty between Russia and Great Britain, did include Behring sea. Undoubtedly the Pacific ocean includes Behring sea in the same vay that the Atlantic ocean includes the Gulf of Mexico, and yet it would be regarded as a very inaccurate statement to say that the Mississippi river flows into the Atlantic ocean. I think Lord Salisbury fails to recognize

The Common Distinction DEPARPMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, April 14, 1891.

SIR—The modifications which Lord Salisbury suggests in the questions for arbitration do not wholly meet the views of the president; but the president changes the total of the third and fifth in such man.

Between the "Atlantic ocean" and "the waters of the Atlantic." arbitration do not wholly meet the views of the president; but the president changes the text of the third and fifth in such manner, it is hoped, as will result in an agreement between the two governments. While Lord Salisbury suggests a different mode of procedure from that embodied in the sixth question, the president does not understand him actually to object to the question, and he therefore assumes that it is agreed to. The six questions as now proposed by the president are as follows:

First. What exclusive furisdiction in the sea known as the Behring sea, and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein, did Russia assert and exercise prior and up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States?

Second—How far were these claims of jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries recognized and conceded by Great Britain?

Third—Was the body of water known as the Behring sea included in the phrase "Pacilic ocean," as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia; and what rights, if any, in the Behring sea were held and exclusively exercised by Russia after said treaty?

Fourth—Did not all the rights of Russia as to jurisdiction and as to seal fisheries in Behring sea, east of the water boundary described in the treaty between the United States in Behring sea, are to fithe water boundary described in the treaty between the United States and Russia, of March 20, 1807, pass unimpaired to the United States in Behring sea, when such seal are found outside the ordinary three-mile limit?

In the opinion of the president, Lord Salisbury is wholly and strangely in error in making the following statement:

Nor do they (the advisers of the president) rely, as a justification for the seizure of British ships in the open sea, upon the contention that the interests of the seal fisheries give to the United States government any right for that purpose which, according to international law, it would not otherwise possess.

The government of the United States

The government of the United States has steadily held just the reverse of the position which Lord Salisbury had imputed to it. It holds that the ownership of the islands are not the state of the salisbury had inof the islands upon which the seals breed, that the habit of the seals in regularly resorting thither and rearing their young thereon, that their going out from the islands in search of food and regularly returning thereto, and all the facts and inclents of their relation to the island give dents of their relation to the island, give

It is yet to be determined whether the lawless intrusion of Canadian vessels in 1885 and subsequent years has changed the law in equity of the case theretofore prevailing. case theretofore prevailing. Lord Salisbury complains that I did not deal with certain protests, written by Lord Londonderry and the Duke of Wellington in 1822, which he had before quoted. If he would recur to the 26th and 27th pages of my dispatch of Dec 17, he will observe that I specially dwelt with these; that I maintained and, I think, proved from the text that there was not a single word in the text that there was not a single word in the text that there was not as single word in the text that there was not as single word in the text that there was not as single word in the text that there was not as single word in the text that there was not as single word in the text that there was not as single word in the text that there was not as single word in the text that there was not as the text that there was not as the text that there was not as the text that there were the tribute of the text that there were the tribute of the text that I was found the floor of their room. BRUTAL CONDUCT.

Young Men in a Maine Town.

PORTLAND, Me., May 8.-A special to The Argus from Topsham, Me., tell of brutal outrages upon the French residents of that town. A series of persecutions culminated in an attack on the residence of a French family by a gang of masked men, who wrecked the windows with stones and did other damage. One of the inmates was a woman in a delicate condi tion, who was struck in the breast with a stone, causing the death of the child. Investigation shows that the ruffians were young men of the best families. Since the above serious incident the persecutions have ceased. The guilty ones are badly fright ened, and some of them have left town.

Foul Play Suspected.

Lynn, Mass., May 8.—Ellen Finnerty of 40 May street, West Lynn, mysteriously disappeared on Monday evening last and has not since been seen. Her husband, Henry Finnerty, is greatly worried over her absence. She is 19 years of age, and is said to be of attractive appearance, and she has left a 9-months-old babe, which is being cared for by her relatives. It is feared that there has been foul play.

His Body Found in the Woods. NATICK, Mass., May 8.-James Lynch of Waltham, better known as the "Singing Junk Man," was missed from his home last January. Two boys found his body yesterday in the woods near Oak street, which leads off the old Worcester turnpike. The supposition is that he died of heart disease.

The Long and Active Career of the Late Dr. Parkes.

Dr. Charles T. Parkes, one of the most celebrated surgeons in America, died recently at his home in Chicago. He was a victim of the grip, from which pneumonia developed and carried him off after a few days' sickness. He left a widow and two children, who were in Europe when he died. Mrs. Parkes is a niece of General Palmer, the newly elected senator for Illinois.

Dr. Parkes was born at Troy, N. Y., Aug. 19, 1842. His father, who was an Englishman, moved with his family

ISRAEL'S FALL FORETOLD

LESSON VI, SECOND QUARTER, IN-TERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 10.

Text of the Lesson, Amos viii, 1-14. Commit Verses, 11, 12-Golden Text, Luke viii, 18-Commentary by the Rev.

D. M. Stearns.

1. "Thus hath the Lord God shewed unto me, and behold a basket of summer fruit." In our last lesson we heard Jehovah reminding Israel of the many ways in which He had sought to win them back to Himself. In chapter v, 4, 6, 14, 15, they are repeatedly entreated to seek Him and live. Then they are warned of the day of the Lord and its terrors, yet they conspire against the prophet Amos and refuse to hear his words (vii, 10-13). Now, in a vision, the nation is shown to the prophet as a basket of ripe fruit, ready to be consumed; they will not be warned and therefore judgment must come.
2. "Then said the Lord unto me, The

But the approaching judgment in the days of Amos was a fore-

Too Many Anniversaries Editors of Daily Ledger:

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the 20th ult., asking me to write for publication a letter, containing suggestions as to how the city of Quincy should celebrate its coming centennial, on the 24th of February, 1892.

I would suggest that it is the most undesirable the event in question should be celebrated in the ordinary way. It is but little over a year since the 250th anniversary of the First Church of Quincy was observed. Only a year ago, the 250th anniversary of Local Happenings That Give the incorporation of the original town of Braintree was also observed. Accordingly, so far as any historical address is concerned, the ground has been covered. If it has not been covered in the records and works which has been published, it certainly will be covered in works likely soon to be published.

Under these circumstances, I would suggest that the best method of commemorating the event referred to might be by the preparation of a careful map, together with a census and a directory of the city of Quincy as it is at this time.

The map should show the city by wards, as well as in the whole, and indicate the locality of every public building, house, or other edifice in it, together with all holdings

The census should show the population of the city as a whole, and of each of the several wards; including all data which are usually gathered together in the most perfect census tables.

Finally, the directory should contain the name and residence of every adult inhabitant of the city, as well as the names of all societies, whether religious, charitable, or otherwise, and all business firms and corporations doing business in Quincy, etc., etc., so that each could be located on the map.

In this way, without incurring the useless cost of an ordinary celebration, the city camp was a guest at the inspection of would secure for future reference, and Camp 30, S. of V., of Dorchester, Wednes- for all time, a complete geographical and bardly fail to be hereafter of great and increasing value.

On the other hand, in view of the wellnigh innumerable anniversaries, -national The house of B. F. Thomas, on Billings state and municipal, religious and educational,-which have been observed, usually will be one of the finest looking places on in the same way, during the last twentyfive years, it seems wholly undesirable that Archie Briggs, of Appleton street, has Quincy should add to a list, already far too been confined to the house since last long. Quite enough has been done in that I remain, etc.,

Where Gold Goes To.

A considerable part of all the gold which goes to India never returns. Havng been obtained in the west by these of exported productions, it is retained the east as realized profits, wealth stored up, and to a moderate extent for use in the arts, for the rest as a representative of value on the credit of which traders buy and sell with the bills of exchange they issue and the book credits they open, and settle up the differences with the silver money of the country. But the vast stock of gold accum there undergoes no diminution. There is no ebb and flow under the reciprocal action which commerce enforces in the case of countries trading together on a common metallic basis. Mr. Alverdo Mason tried to head off Mr. Willis' motion by moving an indefinite postponement of the article, but on a vote morals. Had he denied everything Mr. Willis said, he would-have succeeded better and would have, perhaps, carried his point. Judge French followed in opposition to the motion by moving a substitute in making a committee of the selectmen with authority to consult with the mill owners and the authorities of Randolph and Holbrook, with a view to the bringing about of a common understanding of the matter in controversy, and report to an adjourned meeting. But he, too, failed, on a vote having been taken, and his failure was chiefly due-although we have seldom heard the Judge speak better-to the evident anxiety and care which he showed for Randolph and Holbrook. Reading About Foreign Countries. At this time of year we are overrun with applications for guide books, works of travel, books of modern history of foreign countries, and even novels of which the scene is laid abroad. Whatever they may say in Europe about the Americans, they cannot truthfully declare that we do not prepare for a foreign tour, for hardly any one now goes abroad without reading of the countries he intends to visit, semetimes as carefully as though he expected to pass a competitive exam-

An Odd Plan for a Church.

Rev. Thomas Dixon, well remembered of Boston as a former pastor of the Dudley Street Baptist church, is nothing if not unusual. His audiences having outgrown his New York church, he has planned an auditorium as unique as himself. As his sermons have political preludes, his church is to have a wordly foundation. It will in fact not be a church but an office building, with stores on the first floor, an auditorium to seat five thousand, that is described as being on "the next three floors," and offices on six floors above.

It would appear that Mr. Dixon would have to do some loud talking to accommodate hearers in "an auditorium" that consisted of the second, third and fourth stories of the building, but probably this description of the edifice is not had at first hand from the architect. It is hardly Mr. Dixon's style to keep his audience in tiers.—Boston Commonwealth.

Reynard as a Rat Exterminator.

A Pennsburg gentleman, whose barn was formerly overrun with rats, is no longer troubled with them, and he used neither traps nor dogs in driving them out. About a year ago he purchased a fox somewhere in the west. The fox was given the freedom of the barn, and in a short time after its arrival all the rats found it convenient to depart, and none of them has found it expedient to return. Reynard catches rats after the manner of a terrier, and when not engaged is frequently seen following his master about like a well behaved canine, to which he bears no little resemblance. He is perfectly tame, and goes about the streets of the town without being molested by the dogs that roam around, ready to attack any animal not of their own species.—Allentown Chronicle-News.

doubt of the fact that the government is extremely anxious to exhibit all possible grossed. zeal in the effort to recapture the vessel, in to seize the Chilian vessel on the high seas, and is determined to do so, it must rely largely upon the United States vessels in the south. So far, it is said that no move has been made in that direction; but the department may at any moment cable to Admiral McCann, who is on the Chilian coast with the Pensacola and the Baltimore, and to Admiral Brown, who is on the San Francisco somewhere off Peru, to endeavor to head off the runaway.

A Peculiar Position. The position in which the United States is placed by the escape of the Itata is a peculiar one, bearing in mind the forcible arguments which Mr. Evarts and other able representatives of the United States laid before the tribunal at Geneva in respect to the escape of the "290," afterward the rebel cruiser Alabama, upon which arguments Great Britain was mulcted in heavy damages. In that case it will be remembered the suspected vessel got away before the British authorities had received sufficient information, as they claimed, to warrant them in seizing her.

In the case of the Itata the vessel was absolutely in possession of the United States marshal, and the responsibility for her escape cannot be evaded. It may be a question between the department of justice and the United States marshal as to whether proper precautions were taken to sure the detention of the vessel, but as between the United States and the recognized Chilian government, should Balmaceda be successful in the internecine war fare now in progress, there can be no manner of dispute as to the complete liability of the United States government for whatever damage the Itata uncaptured may be able to inflict. LIBERALS STILL STRONG.

As Shown by Elections in Miniature Proposed Expulsion of Capt. Verney-The Irish Question-Expulsion of Jews from Russia-The Chilian War.

opyright by New York Associated Press. LONDON, May 9.—Yesterday's cabinet council, which was prolonged over three hours, discussed Lord Knutsford's reply to the memorial which the Newfoundland delegates presented on Wednesday, and the more momentous question of the period of the dissolution of parliament. The elections, in miniature, have progressed far enough to indicate the drift of public opinion. The South Dorset poll, showing a significantly large reduction in the Tory vote, and coming upon the striking Gladstonian success in Stowmarket, has dispelled the Unionist delusions that the government is still certain of a big majority. Although the recent series of bye-elections is not a perfect test for the gen association of New eral elections, they have already afforded abundant proof that the Parnell disaster has not weakened the popularity of Mr. Gladstone or the strength of the Liberals.

The cabinet yesterday had to decide the course of business in the house of commons in view of the fact that if the govern-ment decides to dissolve parliament in the autumn, the strongest measures must be taken to hasten the passage of the Irish land bill and the introduction of the education measure. After yesterday's council it became known that the ministers had determined against an early dissolution. The land bill obstructers can thus work through their nineteen pages of amendments unchecked until after the Whitsun holidays. Mr. Goschen told the house of commons yesterday that the government is prepared to jog along with the clauses after the Whitsun recess. Ministers in the lobby of the house assured disgusted legislators last evening that parliament might be kept sitting until late in the autumn, as the cabinet meant to pass the education measure and to introduce the red professionally, or Irish local government bill before prorogu-

In his answer Governor Bulkeley claims that he, and no other person, is the true and lawful governor of Connecticut, and that the court should be bound to take judical notice of that fact and dismiss the proceeding. Then he says the general assembly of Connecticut, at its January session, 1889, of Connecticut, at its January session, 1889, by joint ballot elected him to be governor for the the term of two years and until his successor should be duly qualified. Then he goes on to state that he still acts as governor because no successor to him in the office of governor has yet been chosen and duly qualified to hold such office, and no person can be vested with the office of governor of Connecticut until he has been duly declared governor by the general assembly of Connecticut and qualified accordingly.

The answer goes on to state that Luzon B. Morris did not have a majority over all and that on account of the manifest mistakes in the face of the returns, it was the office and says that he uses said office, its rights and dignities, by warrant and authority of the law, and asks to be dismissed by the court of and from things charged upon him in this information. same. A TIN CUP VERDICT.

The sun was low toward the western peaks when Old Jones and his nephew halted their teams for the night. Old mule whips and the creak of their heavy wagons had been heard in half of the camps of Colorado.

The four wagons tonight were swung into the segment of a circle, and the mules were hobbled and cast loose from the straps in which, through the day, they pulled. At this relief these grateful slaves stood about and attested their joy in the loud cries peculiar to their | fall from his thumb. These changes in kind, but which are so unfortunate in their lack of harmony. To stop this racket the nephew went about giving mpossible to tell who, if any one, had been legally chosen governor. Concluding, Governor Bulkeley denies that he usurps

The fact of the fact who, if any one, had in morrels, or nose bags, which he hung to their hungry heads. Old Jones built a fire and began the compilation of an them their vesper feed. This he placed to their hungry heads. Old Jones built a fire and began the compilation of an intricate but savory dish known to those happy ones who have the recipe as 'freighter's stew."

Supper over, the two freighters sat about in the lurking shadows made by the fire's blink and glimmer, smoking their pipes. All at once there was a commotion in the band of mules. Those patient folk who had scrambled and pulled all day over a rough mountain saloon. The public followed, and, at his trail with wagons loaded on the principle of 1,200 pounds to a mule, and who now, in the proprieties of mule life, should be at peace and rest with the world, were charging about and snorting in a very alarming way.

"Injuns!" said Old Jones, shoving back into the gloom. "Injuns, for a take on that a-way.'

The nephew thought so too. Old Jones and the nephew did not fear an attack. There were no Indians about that were not described as friendly.

But what they did fear was that the mules might be stampeded. Stampeding stock is a great aboriginal industry. The Indian will stampede your cattle or mules and then claim one dollar a head for finding them for you. Thus do these wise sons of nature fill their coffers and exact a revenue from those who cross their lands.

Jones' nephew took a Winchester from the wagon and began to work his cautious, silent way toward the mules. Those last were still snorting and shying as if prey to wild alarm. The nephew disappeared in the darkness. Old Jones placed his hand over his pipebowl so its fiery eye could not be seen cient good policy it is too. Old Jones, at the sound, heaved a sigh, but never moved. After a little the nephew came in to the fire. He seemed alert, hopeful and unrelenting as to the Winchester Indian policy.

"Did you stretch one?" said Old Jones. "I think most likely I did," said the nephew in a sanguine way. "We can tell in the mornin', shore."

The mules were now quiet. Firearms stand the odor of gunpowder, but of Indians-bah! No mule of taste could stand it for a second. After another half hour Old Jones and his nephew kicked out the embers of their fire and went to sleep.

Old Jones and his nephew had visitors in the morning. The whole Ute tribe and their agent came down to the freighters' camp. The members of the Jones family at once seized their Winchesters and alacriously prepared for war. The Utes ran about, jumping and yelling and demanding vengeance. Old Jones and his nephew stood silent and grim behind their wagon and showed their iron teeth. The agent insisted on peace. "Would the Jones who had killed the Ute the night before give himself up? He would be guaranteed from harm, but the Utes insisted on his arrest. They-the Indians-would attack the wagons if the criminals did not surrender." So spoke the agent-a nervous little incompetent, as many an Indian agent is.

"Give up nothin'," said Old Jones derisively. "You tell them Utes if they want anything 'round here to waltz in and get it." The Utes howled and danced still harder and higher at this, and the agent talked more earnestly than ever. He threatened the Joneses with the power of the government. This was too much. They would fight the whole Ute tribe, but they were afraid of Uncle Sam. After a brief parley the nephew stepped out and gave himself up to the agent.

died in the smoke of his Winchester. The agent, the nephew and the Utes did not go a mile toward the agency before the Indians took the nephew, and tying him to a pine tree spent several blissful hours in torturing him to death. The agent was powerless to interfere.

Jones, the elder, found the truth the evening of the same day. He turned a little pale under the thirty years of tan which browned his face, but said nothing. As well as he could he hitched up his teams and went ahead. His course was slow. Where the going was easy the nephew's team-eight mules-could ing her little friend as the aggressor, follow the others and got along all right. | slapped her soundly once or twice. nephew's death and charged it to the agent. The populace agreed with him to a man. Old Jones insisted the agent should likewise suffer death. Public sentiment rushed to the same conclusion. Every man in the Tincup district who heard of the matter at once advised Jones to go back and kill the miserable agent, or, if that scheme did not suit, to hire some one who would. Never was public sentiment so uniform in a matter before. It was beautiful.

"Hire some one to go back. Kill the agent!" This struck Old Jones, who had strong commercial instincts, as a good thing. He inquired for some one who would undertake the enterprise. He did not think it should cost much. "It is dead easy to do," he said. "Jest ride ca'mly up to the agency and beef him, and then ride away. That oughtn't to cost no fortune," and he was willing to give a "hoss and outfit" and $500. "I'll go you," said a bad looking gentleman called Curly Bill.

Curly Bill was certainly a very bad man, as any one might see by examining his six shooter. He had filed away the sights as superfluous to one so sure and keen, and had taken out the trigger, trusting to explode his interesting weapon by the simple process of letting the hammer the ground plan of a Colt's 44 always bespeak a bad man the wide west over, and such was Curly Bill, the personage who wanted to hire out to kill the agent. Preliminaries were arranged and the horse and outfit were turned over, in company with $200 of the $500, and Curly Bill rode away on his long pull for the Ute agency.

Six weeks and their happenings were added to history, and so far nothing floated back from Curly Bill. One afternoon he rode again into the camp in the Gunnison country. The public crowded about to learn of his success. Curly Bill got out of the saddle and stepped into a request, took a drink with him. At last Old Jones put the question:

"Did you get him, Curly?" "No," said Curly Bill.

"Why not?" "Well," said Curly Bill, with an amiable drawl, "I'll tell you what's the matter. You see the cuss offered me $1,000 to come back and down you." There was a profound silence. Old Jones seemed thoughtful and cast down, and the public wailed. At last Old Jones put another pertinent inquiry. "Well, whatever do you allow you'll do about it?" "Whatever'll you do about it?" said Curly Bill. "Will you raise him?" "S'pose I don't raise him?" said Old Jones; "s'pose I don't even call him?" and an ugly glare began to shine in his watery, gray eyes; albeit his voice was low and his face calm.

"Well," said Carly Bill, with vast nonchalance, "in that event I reckon I'll have to go him."

The public took a deep breath at this announcement, and Old Jones seemed plunged in thought again. At last he found his voice. "I'll think this yere matter over, Bill.

and I reckon on fixing up something so you won't complain none of me. You be yere and I'll come back in an hour." Then Old Jones proceeded straight to his wagons, got his Winchester, and coming in the back door of the saloon wherein Curly Bill was refreshing himself after the campaign, blew that celebrated person's head off without a word. Old Jones then gave himself up to the citizens' committee and demanded a trial. It was had at once. Every man in the camp knew of the killing and its entire history. They all approved it too. It was esteemed, however, not a proper thing to allow the plot to kill the agent to go abroad to the world. The account and no terrors for them. They could might, in unskillful hands, become garbled and hurt the camp's reputation. So when Old Jones was acquitted, which denoument was rapid in its coming, the verdict read thus:

"Jestified killin" on account of Curly Bill insultin' of Old Jones' wife." This is a true tale of the west .- Kansas City Star.

He Was a Man for All That.

It was in West street, and there was a crush of trucks that blocked the way from pavement to ferry entrance. A man with ragged clothes and rum stained face stood at the corner and begged every man who passed him to give him ten cents. He was the picture of degradation and misery. There was nothing about him to indicate that he retained any of the self respect of former days.

A woman with a child in her arms and another clinging to her skirts endeavored to cross the choked up street. She got in among the wagons, and the flying wagon tongues and clanking harness terrified her. She attempted to escape, but heavy wheels blocked the way, and right over her stood two immense truck horses. Then she screamed.

A man darted out from the sidewalk. Catching the horses by the reins he threw them back on their haunches, and cried out to the driver with an oath to keep back. Then he opened a way through the tangle with a determined arm.

"Let me take the little girl," he said, and picking up the child carried her across the street, guiding the frightened He would have displayed more sense if mother. When they had escaped from he had remained behind his wagon and the jam he set the child on the ground, bowed clumsily and worked his way back through the blockade to his old stand on the corner. That was all, but his head was up a little higher and he looked more like a man, until some one came along and he sank back into his degradation with the old whine on his lips for a few cents.-New York Trib-

AN ARREST.

Officer Furnald Evidently on Right Track

Friday afternoon in Boston, Norris Buckler, alias Fred Buckler alias Fred Smith, for alleged complicity in the crime.

Buckler belongs in Annapolis, N. S., and has resided in Wollaston about eighteen months, where he has been employed driving an express team for Boynton's Wollaston express. When arrested by Officer Furnald, he was making preparations to go to New York, but his proposed trip will be postponed for the present.

There is also a warrant against Buckler for an assault committed on Arthur E. Tucker, a clerk at the Wollaston hotel, Thursday night.

This morning in court when asked by the clerk whether he was guilty or not guilty, Buckler said he was not guilty as the goods were thrown out of the window to him. This remark shows that there were others concerned in the breaks and as Officer Furnald is still at work on the case they will doubtless soon be arrested. Constable Furnald has recovered all the

Coliseum Should be Engaged. Editors of Daily Ledger:

Your favor asking for suggestions as to the Centennial Celebration, came duly to hand and in reply will say, that as the anniversary comes in February any observance must take place within doors. I am not in favor of a dis-connected celebration of such an event by holding meetings in various wards of the city. I think the coliseum should be engaged, cleared up and decorated. That the exercises should be of an historical and patriotic nature. That a committee of citizens should be joined with one of the City Council and a program prepared by them which should be so arrange the speakers and subjects of oratory, that repetition would be avoided. That a good band of music should be hired to play patriotic airs between speeches. That there should be chorus singing. Flags displayed on public buildings and the day observed as a holiday by the suspension of all business. That the officials of Braintree be invited to participate and several of its able citizens asked to deliver short addresses. The school children should have one feature assigned to them, possibly the chorus singing mentioned above. That only a reasonable amount of money should be appropriated to pay expenses. Yours very truly,

HERBERT M. FEDERHEN.

Merry Mount Lodge, Knights of Honor, celebrated the fourteenth anniversary of their organization at their hall last evening in a royal manner, as is their wont to do on such occasions. The doors were open to invited guests and quite a goodly number availed themselves of their hospitality. Grand Dictator Richardson, Grand Reporter Pratt and other Grand Lodge officers were present. Speeches, music, and a collation were in regular order. The good work done and going on were set forth by the eloquent gentlemen. The order was never in a more flourishing condition than stoday. Persons looking for a means to provide for their families after death at a very small cost can find no better, safer nor more fraternal association than the Knights of Honor.

The figures asked are reasonable, but great ingenuity has been displayed in the character of the inducements held out to secure good tenants. Formerly two weeks' free rent was considered quite a concession, but now one and even two months a lease. Steam heat, electric bells, elevators, telephones and awnings to the windows are common at fair rentals in the better class of flats.

"Among the novelties offered are flats where all the coal and fuel needed are furnished free, thus doing away with a common cause of quarrel with janitors suspected of using the tenant's fuel. In some the gas bills and ice bills are paid by the landlords, and stationary mirrors and iceboxes still further reduce the tenant's expenses. A genius on the west side has filled his row of moderate priced flats by allowing each family the free use of a piano."-New York Telegram.

Uncle Sam's Vessels Will Try to Find the Itata.

OUR RIGHT TO SEIZE HER.

A Search Reveals Interesting Precedents for Such Action-No Nation to Make Formal Complaint, Waiving All Questions of International Law.

Washington, May 11.—The navy department has sent the Charleston, the Baltimore and the San Francisco to sea in quest of the Chilian vessel Itata.

The Charleston is understood to have left San Francisco Saturday afternoon, and the other vessels, now at Chilian Short advertisements, such as lost, Found, Wanted, For Sale, To Let, etc., not exceeding four lines in length, 25 cents first inserting four lines first inserting first in

This warning arises from the possibility of the Itata being joined by a battleship of the insurgents. Should the Charleston find the Itata, no hostile action is anticipated; but if the Chilian vessel reaches the southern Pacific, where the belligerents are likely to give her protection, there might be

Occasion for Forcible Action. To guard against a purposeless destruction of the American vessels and the death of officers and men, the department leaves the commanding officers of the various vessels at their own discretion.

With three vessels at sea, and a fourth, the Mohican, under orders at Mare Island, Cal., to proceed to sea, the naval authorities will attempt to take the runaway Chilian.

There is reason to believe that there is some hope entertained by government of-ficials that the Itata did not start at full There is a strong suspicion that she is lurking somewhere in the neighborhood of San Diego, waiting an opportunity to get the arms from the schooner.

Naval officers in Washington who are conversant with the coast of Lower Cali-fornia say that it is likely that the schooner Robert and Minnie may have deposited the rifles intended for the Chilians on some of the small outlying islands near the coast, and that the Itata procured them there instead of taking the chances of sighting the schooner at sea, as this was the most practicable scheme, and moreover would not tend to suspicion by the United States authorities, as would be the case should the schooner be seen lurking on and off the coast.

The Itata

s an iron screw propellor ship of 1200 tons, and was built in England in 1873. She has compound engines of antiquated make, and is probably not capable of steaming more than nine or ten knots an hour. She was formerly owned and operated by the Chilian Steam Navigation ompany, and how she came into the hands of the insurgents is not known here, unless she was seized by them at the beginning of the insurrection.

The United States vessels in Chilian vaters are the Baltimore and the flagship Pensacola, with Rear Admiral McCann in command. The San Francisco, when last growth of the city's population has been heard from, had left Peru, and will likely more than equaled by the number of join the Baltimore and Pensacola early this week. With the Charleston, the admiral would have under his command the three finest ships of the new navy, besides the Pensacola, the best of the wooden class in the service. With these four ships it is not anticipated by naval officers that much pposition would be met with should the United States see fit to capture the Itata, even should she be reinforced by the best Cincinnati Women Turn Oth in Force and Clean a Filthy Street.

CINCINNATI, May 11. - Complaints gainst the street cleaning department of this city have been both numerous and loud the last year. Saturday affairs reached a crisis on Wade street. The women who reside on that thoroughfare resolved to act. Mrs. l'aphorn appeared on the curb and stepped into the street waving a broom. It was the signal, and instantly for squares women and children swarmed out with brooms, hoes, rakes and wheelbarrows.

In a moment the air was full of dust. and the work was pushed vigorously. In thirty minutes there were piles of dirt all about, and the paving of the street began to show beneath the accumulation of months. In an hour all was ready for the city cart. Not satisfied with cleaning the streets, the women took a hand at the sew-ers. Later in the day the board of aldermen appropriated $10,000 for special street cleaning purposes.

WILL HURT THE FRUIT TRADE. New Orleans Longshoremen to Boycott Ships Employing Italians.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—The quarrel over the unloading of the fruit ships by the Italians has resulted in a strike which promises to be of large proportions. At the meeting of the joint conference committee of the Longshoremen's association a resolution was adopted ordering all members of the association to refrain, un-til further orders, from performing any service for the ships consigned to those firms employing Italian labor in discharging fruit.

This means that any ship which employs Italians will be boycotted by the long-shoremen. The longshoremen waited upon the fruit importers lately and asked that they be employed instead of the Italians Their request was refused. Fears are expressed that the movement will affect the fruit trade here, which has of late grown to large proportions.

Phenix, alias "Blood and Thunder," Michael Conway, alias James Foster, awaiting trial for burglary, escaped and are still at liberty. Both have been imprisoned a number of weeks, and both are believed to be old hands at the business. The police have been scouring the country for miles around, and have secured a clue, but have not yet found the

The jail is a stone building, the front be ing used for the private apartments of the family of the jailor. In the rear is the cell room, separated from the front portion by a thick wall and iron door. It is not cus tomary to visit the cells during the night. Everything was all right when the lights were turned down in the corridor at 9:30 Saturday night, but at 7 o'clock yesterday morning, when the cell room was visited, it was found that these two men had es caped. The police and the sheriff were notified, and the night men were called on duty. Chief of Police Turner notified the police officials at Providence, Fall River, New Bedford and Bristol, by telephone. Officers were sent in teams to Fall River, to the north end of the island, and to patrol the railroad tracks. Two other men are in jail, but they profess to know nothing of the escape beyond hearing a noise about

SLEEPS IN A DUNGEON.

Plans of a New England Jack Shepard Nipped in the Bud.

WOODSTOCK, Vt., May 11.-Robert Fitton, who is notorious throughout New England and eastern New York for his daring exploits in defiance of the law and the courts, has added a new sensation to the long list standing to his credit. On April 8 he was confined in jail here, by order of Judge John W. Rowell, for contempt of court.

About ten days ago Fitton arranged an exchange of cells with another prisoner, thus securing an outside cell in which was a window about two by three feet square, secured by double bars of great strength, an inch and a half and an inch and a quarter square. Friday afternoon Deputy Sheriff W. O. Taylor noticed from the outside that a curtain had been put up inside this window. Suspecting something was wrong he made a careful examination, in the early evening, and found that Fitton had sawed off bars and taken out a section of the inner grating, making an opening 9 by 17 inches, and also cut the outer grating so that fifteen minutes' more work

Would Have Given Him His Liberty. In Fitton's cell Deputy Taylor found saw for cutting iron in prime order. When asked how long he had been at the job, Fitton said he knew nothing about it. He also denied any knowledge of the saw or how it came in the cell. Since the night of the discovery he has been locked into a dungeon at night.

State's Attorney Stickney of Ludlow was summoned by telegraph, and, with Sheriff Lovell of Springfield, came here on Saturday, when Fitton was arraigned before Hon. T. O. Seaver, justice, on a charge of attempting to break jail, and was held in $1500. Fitton is fertile in resources, as his career proves. Should he escape the consequences of this new adven-ture, which hardly seems possible, there still hangs over him a writ for perjury, which will be served at the first opportunity. The supreme court of the United States has recently denied his appeal, on a habeas corpus, from the decision of Judge Wheeler of the district court.

CLERKS' PENSIONS.

WASHINGTON, May 11 .- The Sunday Herald says: A movement is on foot in the various departments of the government located in this city to establish which might be termed a comparative pension n destroyed, and more losses are scheme for the benefit of those clerks who, through advanced age or physical disability incurred by their service for the government become unable to attend their duties. By a fund established through a small monthly deduction made from the salary of each clerk, those sick or aged would receive a pension during the time of their disability, or for life when regu-larly retired by the action of an authorized

It is suggested that a percentage of sal ary of each government clerk be deposited in the United States treasury, to be held there in trust, as a fund to pension those regularly retired, and to pay a stated amount to those temporarily disabled. For some time this idea has been talked of in a general way, but it is understood that definite steps are being taken to put the matter on firm footing, with the intention of carrying it into effect. Statistics are being tabulated to ascertain the number of clerks it would affect, the number of years of service of each, those entitled to retirement, and the total amount that would be obtained by a 2 per cent. reduction of the salaries.

It is very probable that with these facts in hand, and the sound arguments the clerks can present in favor of the plan, a bill will be submitted to the next congress legalizing this action. It is claimed by those interested that Congress Caunot Oppose the Bill, as they ask no money or aid, but simply the legal sanction of that body. The number of clerks of an advanced age who are retained in the departments simply be-cause of their faithful service for many years is very large. They have outlived their actual usefulness, and are allowed to remain only for the reason that if dismissed they would be in actual want.

A SIMPLE CONVENTION.

Provisions of the Commercial Arrangements Made with Spain.

MADRID, May 11 .- John W. Foster, the American reciprocity envoy, having failed in his negotiations for a general treaty between Spain and the United States, suggested a secret treaty, which also failed to meet the approval of the Spanish ministry. He therefore agreed to conclude a simple convention on the basis O'Donnell proposed for a treaty. This convention necessarily comprises a double tariff-the first commencing July 1 and enduring till the Spanish treaties with other powers are announced in July, 1892, when the second comes into operation. The convention provides for the free entry into the United States of sugar, honey, cocoa, coffee and skins from the Spanish West Indies; tobacco and iron ore paying the duty exacted by the new United States tariff. In exchange, Spain's colonies in the West Indies are to receive American coal, ice, wood, boots, shoes, fresh and salt to Roman Catholic doctrines owing to meats and fish, either free or under small duty; while butter and drippings are entirely exempt, and the duty on flour is reduced from $2.50 to $1.50 kpcm with the second property of the priesthood duced from $3.50 to $1.50 a barrel, with the when he was twenty years old. He was same reduction on corn. The tariff on dry goods and husbandry machinery will afford the United States no material advantage till '92, because any privileges accorded duction in customs receipts of $500,000 monthly, under the convention.

China's Long Bridge.

The Lion bridge, near Sangang, in China, is considered the longest bridge in the world. Three hundred stone arches support its weight, and it measures five and one-quarter miles from end to end.

The desires to have greater privacy and incur less expense are said to be responsible for the recent great decrease of the number of church weddings in England.

This then is the ground for the "indifference" to the result of the suit, which we have noted, that the decision of the Auditors increase the taxable value of the mill privileges on the Monatiquot river from somewhere about $32,000 up to nearly $196,000. Now supposing that the town of Braintree pays its share which is the third part of $52,000 or $58,000 including legal interest, the increase of taxes derived from the increased value of the mill property, which is all in Braintree, will return to Braintree the amount paid out in fifteen years. The old method of feeding garbage to cows and pigs, and of scattering it upon the soil or burying it, are no longer looked upon as conforming to the laws of health. That lady speaks out very plainly her this cause. opinions on this topic, and her frank suggestions that American women should set about putting an end to the arrogant extortions of our kitchen autocrats, in the interest of domestic felicity, are well worthy earnest consideration and deserve to be acted upon forthwith. There is an earnestness about what Mrs. Key says that is quite refreshing and invigorating:

To the Editor of the Transcript: I thank you for the publication of my letter in last Saturday's Transcript, bearing on the above interesting and increasingly important very briefly, believing that something practical, useful and helpful to the tormented and harassed housewives of this city and neighborhood cam, may, and will be done in the direction indicated and outlined in my previous communication.

Judging from the innumerable calls made upon me and others received through the mail during the present week as the result of my suggestions, I find I was not wrong in supposing that there must be a good deal of interest in the topic under discussion, and an earnest desire to see something done with a view to solving the problem. Ladies and gentlemen, as heads "kitchen autocracy," have appealed to me for help and advice, after unburdening their minds, and my only regret is that I cannot, single-handed, undertake to rescue them from the dilemma in which they find themselves.

What I suggested was the organization The Quincy correspondent in the May of a movement for procuring good English domestics by prominent ladies of Boston-"It looks like a speculative scheme—the some of those who are always ready and in proposed electric railway for the transpor- every way competent to take in hand and tation of granite from the quarries to carry through to success any movement for terests of their business, it was only right coupled with the fact that my home and to consult them as to the feasibility of the family-numbering eight children-need

It's a peculiar case, as against Welch, who was charged with and tried for manslaughter. The term manslaughter means in law, the killing a person without malice prepense. as in a sudden quarrel, a meaning that has no application to the case of Welch, at all. Even according to the primary signification of the term, murder, or the destruction of the human species, it don't hold, for he could have neither malice nor an intention to destroy anyone, least of all, the lady whose death he was charged with. A 'mistake'', could have been preferred against Welch, but not a criminal intention; hence, the charge of manslaughter against Welch falls to the ground and cannot be sustained.

We think that the poor man has suffered enough; that the ends of justice, as far as ne was concerned in the bringing about of the accident, has been met; that the example which has been made will be salutary and effective, and that the reign of railroad "jacks" is ended.

English Friendly Societies. The returns of some of the large friendly societies for 1890 are now coming in, and notwithstanding the increased expenditure caused by the in-fluenza epidemic in the early part of the garded by some critics as creased expenditure caused by the inyear, the figures in most cases show funds. The Ancient Order of Foresters, guns, the armaments of the two ships are numerically the largest, with its 700,000 practically the same. The Charleston is members, added 17,587 to its number the swiftest ship, and, while never in acand £159,303 to its funds, bringing the reserve capital up to £4,500,000. This contributions according to age, as against 59.5 five years ago.

The Manchester Unity of Odd Fellows comes slightly behind the Foresters in respect to numbers, but occupies far and wealth, its invested capital reaching the magnificent amount of £7,250,000.

The Hearts of Oak, the largest centralized society without branches, has been advancing of late years by leaps and bounds. Its annual report shows that in 1890 it added 10,000 to its membership, which now numbers 140,000, and £76,000 to its funds, totaling its reserve capital up to £1,157,518. This society admits no one to its membership over thirty years

In the aggregate these three societies total up an adult membership of 1,500,-000, with 144,000 juvenile members and a gross invested capital of over £13,000,000.

The Ohioan Wanted to Sleep.

Sunday evening two young men retired in one of the principal hotels and went to sleep. One of these guests was from Ohio, the other, a genuine frontiersman from South Dakota. They slept until 2 a. m. Sunday, when awakened by a couple of roistering youths who occupied an adjoining room. The youths shouted and sang until guests all around commenced to protest, and then they shouted and sang all the louder.

The Dakota man rang for a porter, and sent him to quiet the unruly youths, but with no effect. Then the Ohioan arose, tied a suspender around his waist. rolled up the sleeves of his nightshirt and walked to the door whence came the riotous sounds. He knocked, and one of the fellows opened it. The Ohio man didn't stop to talk. He charged into that room, belted one youth in the neck, knocking him on top of the bed. Quick as a flash he seized the other and hurled him bodily across the first. Then he pounded their heads together while he regained his breath, and told them that if they woke him up again he would come in and throw both of them through the window.

He slept in peace until breakfast time—Philadelphia Press.

ESMERALDA AT ACAPULCO.

Protect the Itata in Case of Attempted Seizure-An Engagement Thought to Be Imminent-Speculations Regarding a Meeting and an Action-Latest from Washington Concerning the Matter.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—The fact no longer is concealed, even in official naval circles, that the swift cruiser Charleston is now off on a hot chase after the Chilian transport Itata, which left San Diego last Wednesday while under arrest, and car-

Esmeralda Will Gruise North toward San Lucas in the hope of meeting the Itata before the Charleston can arrive and to protect the cargo and crew from seizure if possible. Apart from other considerations it is known that on board the Itata was the commander of the Esmeralda and a large portion of her crew, and presumably a portion of the Esmeralda's secondary battery. There is therefore a strong incentive on the part of the Chilian warship to meet the Itata and prevent her being conveyed back to American waters. The fact that there appears now a very strong likelihood of a meeting of the two evenly matched warships, under conditions that will require fine management to prevent a fight, is thoroughly recognized by naval men on this coast. The orders to Capt. Remy of the Charleston are well authenticated to be binding in the matter of the recapture of the Itata if sighted, and, on the part of the Esmeralda, it is believed as fully that she will fight if she can reach the scene in time. The Charleston and Esmeralda are ships alike as to plan, and possess nearly the same arma ment. The Esmeralda, however, has two twenty-five tons each, while the Charleston has two eight-inch rifles, fore

The Situation in Chili. A correspondent writing from Santiago, Chili, says: The Balmaceda government seems to have abandoned all hope of retaking the Parapaca district and now confines itself to a defense of the territory remaining. There are about 30,000 troops of age, and is chiefly recruited from the ranks of small shopkeepers, clerks and skilled artisans.

under Gen. Valasques and the presidential party, but as these "volunteers" have been taken by force from their homes they. seek every opportunity to change sides, and in every battle they have done so. A short time since several hundred troops embarked on board a man-of-war a short distance from Velez, and later on, just back of the hills of Valparaiso, at Laguna, other troops deserted in the same manner. It is not known yet where the next landbut many report that it will be in the Officers who prosecuted the search stole all the money. watches and jewelry they could lay hands upon. There are nearly 10,000 soldiers in and around Valparaiso and as many more about Santiago and Conception. It is doubtful if they will fight in entire bodies, as it is well known there is dissatisfac-tion among them. Besides this, it is estimated that two-thirds of the population of the country are opposed to the present governing powers.

Will Not Harbor Insurgents. CITY OF MEXICO, May 12.-Foreign Minister Mariscal says that all necessary steps have been taken so that when the Itata reaches any Mexican port she will not be allowed to land. She will, however, be allowed to purchase a small quantity of victuals, but no coal. The government, the minister says, is resolved to observe strictly the treaty obligations with Chili, and not to harbor insurgents.

Washington Opinions. WASHINGTON, May 12.—Secretary Tracy yesterday afternoon sent out word from his office that he had nothing to say about the Chilian vessel Itata, or the Charleston, and Commodore Ramsey, the chief of the mavigation bureau, said that he was not at liberty to say anything whatever on the subject. The government seems to be a minority, however, which proposes to making extraordinary efforts to recapture the Itata, for in addition to cabling Admirals Brown and McCann to head off the runaway before she reaches Chilian waters, it is understood that instructions have been sent to United States consular made application to the treasury departofficers at all points between California and promptly advise the naval officers of her movements, if she is si ted. In strange con rast with this exhibition of zeal is the course of the Charleston, which is in chase of the runaway. This vessel sailed from San Francisco early Saturday morning bound south. She is an eighteen-knot vessel, and last night she should have been 650 miles down the coast, or near Cape San Lucas, where the Chilian its argent warship Esmeralda is supposed to be lying in waite for the Itata. But instead of covering this distance the Charleston got about half way and then went to anchor over night. Later advices show that she was last seen just above the Mexican boundary line. Such officers as have an opinion that they feel free to express say that the Charleston's movements can be explained in two ways: Either the department believes that the Itata is lying somewhere off the coast of California, or it has no inte ton of seizing the vessel unless her presence is made unpleasantly noticeable within easy reach. The motive for such an attitude by our government as that indicated by the last theory is rather hinted at than directly stated by officials. It is, in brief, that it

EIGHT MEN KILLED

sion on a Tank Oil Steamer. LONDON, May 12.-A terrific explosion occurred in the forehold of the British steamer Tancarville, Capt. Carter, which was undergoing repairs in the dry docks at Newport. Eight men who were at . work on the steamer were killed and twenty-five were injured. The Tancarville, which was badly damaged, is a tank steamer engaged in carrying oil in bulk from American ports, and her last voyage was from Phila delphia for Havre. After reaching the latter port and discharging she proceeded to Newport, where she was to load for Balti more. There is no doubt that the explo sion was caused by the gases that prevail to a greater or less extent in the holds of all oil-carrying ships.

The repairs which were making to the steamer were quite extensive, and 100 men and boys were employed in and around the vessel when the explosion occurred. Large pieces of timber and iron from the steamer were blown with terrific force through the air, and some of them were hurled against the workshops, which were situated fifty pivot guns of ten-inch calibre, with weight of twenty-five tons each, while the carville was lying, causing much damage carville was lying, causing much damage to them. A number of workmen employed in the shops were struck by pieces of the flying debris and some of them were quite severely injured.

Member of the House of Commons Charges Statesmen with Corruption. OTTAWA, May 12 .- In the house of commons yesterday afternoon Mr. Tarte, mem-ber for Montmorency, brought charges of malversation of public money against Thomas McGreevy, member for Quebec West, and implicating Sir Hector Langevin, minister of public works. The charges date back to 1883, and the money aggregates nearly $500,000. Thomas Mc-Greevy is accused of having used his influence with the minister of public works to procure contracts for a Quebec firm, of which his brother, Robert McGreevy, was made a special partner for the occasion. These contracts netted large sums, of which the McGreevys received a share and also Sir Hector Langevin, as is shown by entries in the books of the contractors. The minister of public works denied the charges point blank, as did Mr. McGreevy from his seat in the house. The whole matter will be inquired into by a com-

HOUSE CLEANING

Few Useful Suggestions About Polishing Furniture, Scouring Floors, Etc. There are various preparations that can be bought for polishing furniture, but a very simple and satisfactory polish is mixture of linseed oil and vinegar, put in a bottle and shaken before use. Dust the furniture well, then rub on the mixture with an old piece of flannel; only do a small area at a time, and polish quickly and briskly with two or three soft rubbers, ending up with an old silk handkerchief. This homemade preparation both cleans and polishes, and does not in time form a sort of cake over the furniture, as do some patent polishes when frequently used. Matting, as most housekeepers know, should never be soaped. Take it up, sweet and dust it well on both sides, then wipe it with a clean cloth wrung out in salt and water, rubbing it dry with the other hand as you go on, or, at any rate, as quickly as you can, so that it may retain none of the moisture. The same remark applies to the cleaning of wickerwork. Oilcloths, linoleum and other floor cloths look well and are said to last better if waxed and polished after the fashion of stained floors, but with a thinner preparation. If, however, they are scrubbed, a soft brush should be used, and it is an improvement to polish occasionally, after drying, with a soft flannel sprinkled with

In order that floors and tables may be really whitened by scrubbing, the water should be neither too hot nor too cold; the former turns the boards black, and the latter does not cleanse them. Keep the brushes for the one purpose only, and in a dry place, rinsing them well after each time of using. Always scrub the way the grain goes, and change the water as soon as it is dirty. This is a very important point. It is a mistake, too, to wet the boards too much. Use soft soap and a little soda. First wet the boards with a cloth, and, after the actual scrubbi rinse well, and partly dry with a cloth wrung out as tightly as possible; the less oap and moisture you allow to soak into the floor the less yellow will the boards ecome. For boards that have been negected, or are otherwise in bad condition. make a mixture of one part of lime, three of very fine sand, and two of soft soap; spread this somewhat sparingly with a lean, firm brush, then rinse and dry as bove.

ngenious Contrivances for Small Rooms. It is often difficult in small rooms to find ccommodation for evening and best resses. An ingenious contrivance seen ecently consisted of a wooden box on castors, fitting underneath the bed, long nough to take evening dresses folded almost at full length. It was not quite as wide as the bed, and it could be drawn out very easily by means of a handle at each side. Where space is limited, an easel in one corner, prettily draped, with a mirror put on the crossbar instead of a picture and athree cornered table placed just be low to hold all the toilet necessaries, form quite an artistic and ornamental spot. The crossbar must be broad and tolerably firm, and the mirror of good size. The point of the table fits into the corner. A pretty cloth, corresponding with the drap ery of the easel, should be thrown over If desired, a second shelf could be added to the table to hold extra things. The pincushion could hang at one side. This ar rangement can be carried out with good effect in a boudoir. Any carpenter could make the corner table.

An Egg at Perfection Point. "A new laid egg" sounds well when read in English books, but in reality one ould not be eaten the same day on which it is laid, says Marion Harland, in The Housekeepers' Weekly. At first the shell is soft, and the flavor not so fine as when it is twenty-four hours old. By the time i has attained this age the shell has a pecu iar roughness, and then yelk and white are at perfection point. Distrust a smooth, glossy egg; it is almost invariably so old that the air has had time to begin the work of disintegration upon the lime composing the shell.

Fire Fighters Killed in a Burning Forest.

THROWN INTO A FURNACE

By an Accident to a Train on Which They Were Endeavoring to Escape-Great Devastation by Fires in Pennsylvania and Michigan.

COUDERSPORT, Pa., May 12.-Dreadful disaster has overtaken a train load of seventy-five men, sent from Austin to Moore's Run, on the Sinnamahoning railroad, to fight back the forest fires. They made trenches, piled up earth, and lighted back fires, but were finally obliged to retreat. The men hastily boarded the train and started to make a run to another point, when it was found that they were hemmed in by the forest fire on one side, and a huge skidway of burning logs on the other. It was finally decided to dash past the burning skidway, and the engineer and fireman, with faces cevered with dampened cloths, and their hands and arms wrapped in wool, mounted the little engine and pulled out through the wall of

The seventy-five exhausted men gathered n groups on the flats for protection or lay on their faces on the floor. As the blazing furnace of logs was approached the heat ecame unbearable, and the smoke so blinding and stifling that the men were bliged to cover their mouths with cloths. ust opposite the millions of feet of burning logs, where the heat and smoke and flame were the greatest, the rails spread. There was a lurch, an ominous heaving and a shriek of despair as the train toppled ver into the hell of fire.

Seven others of the party are missing, and their fate is unknown. The whole party would have perished had they not immersed themselves in a creek.

Owing to the great devastation done to everything in the way of the fire communication is badly interrupted, and it is impossible to learn the names of the men ourned or of those still missing. As to the damage it is known that 40,000,000 feet of hemlock logs and timber and 25,000 cords of valuable bark have already been destroyed and the fires are raging without any appreciable diminution. The people are praying for rain, as it seems nothing a drenching will quench the flames. The fires have been raging forty-eight hours and twelve solid miles of lumber in one district have been burned.

Properly manned and equipped she sailed, but she never reached her destination, and this is not the most peculiar fact connected with this most peculiar case. It was not long after leaving the Maine port before she was due in New Jersey, and, as she did not was finally found at Woods Holl, minus the cargo. The shippers immediately licounties announcing serious forest fires, among the shippers of the cargo. Hatfield shrugged his shoulders. "Such ladies!"

"Well," laughed I, "they don't appear to be particularly stylish in manner or costume, but nevertheless, my dear fellow, the divinity or their sex hedges them around like a wall."

"Divinity of their humbug!" shortly interrupted Hatfield. "As if these ill dressed dowdies, with babies and bandooxes, could possibly belong to the same world with Beatrice Hale!"

To this I made no answer. It did not seem to me exactly appropriate to lug discussion in a place like this. Yet what could I do, except to feel my cheeks flush and the roots of my hair tingle? For I

"John Napier," Miss Warrender tells us, "pursued his studies and researches in Merchiston. He was supposed by the vulgar to be deeply versed in magic, and to possess a familiar in the shape of a jet black cock. The story goes that once when some petty thefts had been committed in the castle, of which one of the servants was suspected, Napier brought them all up the winding stairs into a darkened room, where the cock was placed. He commanded them to stroke its back, declaring that it would crow at the touch of the guilty person. During the whole ceremony the cock remained silent, but afterward the hand of the culprit was found to be free from the soot with which the bird's feathers had been liberally sprinkled."

Monterey.

We were not many-we who stood Before the iron sleet that day; Yet many a gallant spirit would Give half his years if but he could Have been with us at Monterey.

In deadly drifts of fiery spray, Yet not a single soldier quailed When wounded comrades round them wailed Their dying shouts at Monterey.

And on -still on our column kept Through walls of flame its withering way.
Where fell the dead, the living stept, Still charging on the guns which swept The slippery streets of Monterey.

The foe himself recoiled aghast, When, striking where he strongest lay, We swooped his flanking batteries past, And braving full their murderous blast Stormed home the towers of Monterey.

Our banners on those turrets wave, And there our evening bugles play; Where orange boughs above their grave Keep green the memory of the brave Who fought and fell at Monterey.

We are not many-we who press Beside the brave who fell that day; He'd rather share their warrior rest Than pot have been at Monter; ??

All Fall Prey to the Irresistible Flames. Great Wildernesses Swept in Michigan, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania-Property Loss Will be Enormous.

DETROIT, May 13.—The hoped for security from the recent rain did not materialize for the panic-stricken inhabitants of the burned district in this state. Some two of the dozen counties now filled with over until Friday. fire is as large as the whole state of Rhode Island. The Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Michigan railroad has been obliged to abandon all attempts to run cars north of the Clare county line.

A freight train and crew had a narrow escape from cremation Monday. The ties in many places were so badly burned that the rails spread when the train went over. When near Moore's siding one of the cars in the center of the train was derailed and the train crew were obliged to abandon the rear part of the train after working until the cars began to smoke. Before they reached Farwell there was another derailment, and all but three of the train of eighteen cars were left to their fate. Three of the trainmen were badly blistered.

The wind shifted and drove the fire to the southwest and into Newaygo, Mecosta and Oceana counties. Cook's Station and Barton, both in the line of the fire, have not been heard from, and are supposed to be destroyed. West Troy, a few miles north of Otia, has been environed by fire since early Monday morning and is supposed to be in ashes. Reports from Cadillac. A New Form of Intoxication and Its Effects Upon the System.

A curious habit now attracting attention cording to statistics recently com upon by Dr. Henry Conkling in the Brooklyn Medical Journal the habit is of late years on the increase. The ether is sold to the consumers in groceries, taverns and small cost enables the dose to be frequent ly repeated. From two drams to half an ounce is the amount usually drunk; and this is repeated from two to six times during the day, depending on the personal habits. One or two cases of confirmed ether was generally used, when on a debauch, in divided doses. The amount that produces intoxication depends on the individual. The ether is drunk in a single swallow, sometimes di luted, and again taken pure. The intoxicating effects are quickly produced, and quickly pass away. It is possible, therefore, for an habitue to become into xicated many times in a short period.

A small dose causes a feeling of exhilaration, the drinker laughing, dancing, and being quite wild in his movements. If the small dose be not exceeded, there is no period of marked depression following the stimulation, but in larger quantities a 4 state of stupor is frequently present, and as the effect passes away a feeling of weakness is left. Mania is a marked feature very commonly presented, the drinkers often becoming very violent.

In ether drinkers who have continu consumed large quantities a train of nervous and circulatory disturbances is generally present. Emaciation has been observed in certain cases, and occasionally the skin is of a cyanotic hue. The more CINCINNATI, May 12.—Cincinnati received | moderate drinkers generally suffer from moral character. It is interesting to observe how common the use of ether as an vestigated, when the public conveyances are frequently impregnated with its odor.

Hunger and Disease.

It is a well known fact that hunger prelisposes to certain diseases, says The Medical Press, but it has been reserved to two Turin doctors to demonstrate the increased liability experimentally. Their observations were carried out with the virus of bacillus anthrax on pigeons, a disease to which these birds are, under ordinary cir-Earned run—New York 1. Base hits—Pitts-burg 5, New York 3. Further, given, the development of the disease. though not prevented, ran a slower course. Lastly, the virus proved capable of infecting birds well fed up to the date of inoculation, but starved subsequently. The line of investigation is evidently one which admits of further research, but the moral

A lady who has not been married and is no longer young should be addressed and mentioned by every one, except her house hold, with the prefix of "Miss" before her name, even though the number of daughters in her family makes it necessary for the sake of definiteness to include her baptismal name also when mentioning her. The Itata started from San Diego last Wednesday evening—six days ago—and if pushed to her highest speed must be nearly out of coal, so that she must soon put into port somewhere to replenish her bunkers. The Charleston, like most swift cruisers, was obliged to sacrifice some coal-carrying capacity. With full bunkers she can carry 800 tons; but if she had been driven at full speed she must have burned 175 tons every twenty-four hours, which would give full steam power for but four and a half days.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE has very wisely decided not to oppose the wishes of Ward Shackley. Three, whose children it hopes to benefit by better school accommodations. Such an opposition would only have retarded the accommodation which was asked. The Committee now submit two plans, the enlargement of the John Hancock schoolhouse or the erection of a new eight-room building. The latter cannot be considered a small school and should meet with no more objection than did the John Hancock when it was built. We believe in erecting the new building first, and make the addition later if necessary.

A Little Georgia Volcano.

Mr. Henry Gartrell, living about ten thorities on the Pacific coast to report the llijay, Ga., says there is tree on the mountain above the large cliff of marble on the line of the Marietta and North Georgia railroad that has been burning for five months.

The latter part of last October the woods were being burnt off, and an old keep a sharp lookout for the vessels. It is hollow tree caught fire. About three weeks thereafter he saw the fire and been received announcing that a fishing pany a year ago over $900,000 worth of weeks thereafter he saw the fire and found that the tree had been almost consumed, and the ground appeared to be ablaze. Government in Competition.

It is perhaps not generally known that Montreal has the cheapest telephonic service on the continent today. But so it is, and the increase in the number of persons now having telephones in their residences and offices has been exceedingly large since the rates were lowered to twenty-five dollars in both residences and offices by the Bell Telephone company. The Federal Telephone company has at present almost 6,500 city subscribers, their prices being thirty-five dollars for offices and twenty-five dollars for private residences, while the Bell, in the city alone, have about 5,000. The latter company are increasing their subscribers at about the average rate of over a portion of a fuse was discovered. It is some of the custom houses, where such a reduction will not materially impair the of a dynamiter. The police are hunting company's list of patrons is also steadily on the increase. Think of it, twentyfive dollars a year when we here in Boston pay $125 a year, or five times as much.-Boston Transcript.

A Big Estate and No Heir. The estate of the late Mrs. Wilson C. Swann, of 1,512 Walnut street, will amount, it is said, to $5,000,000, and for this vast wealth there appear to be no heirs. The magnificent property at 1,512 of the firm are about $300,000, and the as-Walnut street, with its inestimable wealth of paintings, sculpture, carvings and curios, will be sold at an early date. The house was planned by Dr. Swann and built in 1857. In past years it was the scene of many princely entertainments, and although Mrs. Swann was afflicted with a form of nervous prostration which confined her to her apartments and prevented her attendance to social duties, it was her wish that these entertainments should be continued. Probably no establishment in Philadelphia was maintained on a more lavish scale during Dr. Swann's life.—Philadelphia Record.

WASHINGTON, May 14.-When the doors of the navy department were closed last evening Acting Secretary Ramsey was no wiser than he was the day before respect ing the whereabouts of the Charleston and Itata. In the absence of facts the departmental officers are discussing the legal aspects of the case presented by the flight of the Itata. There has been some modification of the views held by leading naval officers in this matter and it does not appear that there is any longer a tenable claim that the Itata may be seized as a yirate. It is recognized that she can be recaptured for violation of the customs laws, disregard of the court and perhaps for kidnapping, but any assumption that she is a pirate is completely negatived by the doctrine laid down by the late Francis Wharton, formerly solicitor of the department of state and an eminent authority on international law.

This doctrine was accepted by Secretary Bayard and laid down at the time of the Colombian rebellion and the Panama troubles. The Colombian government had declared the insurgent vessels to be pirates, as the Chilian government has done, but the secretary held:

Mr. Wharton's Decision. The government of the United States canno regard as piratical vessels, manned by parties n arms against the government of Colombia, when such vessels are passing to and from ports held by such insurgents or even when at-tacking ports in possession of the national gov-ernment. In the late civil war the United States at an early period of the struggle sur-rendered the position that those manning the Confederate cruisers were pirates under inter-national law. The United States of Colombia annot, sooner or later, do otherwise than accept the same view. But however this may be, neutral power can acquiesce in the position now taken by the Colombian government.

Another fact which may be of interest view of the expected arrival of the Itata at a Mexican port—probably Acapulco—is that she cannot stay there. Under the practices of international law the Mexican overnment could not refuse to protect her, but she could not remain in port more subject her to the charge of using the port Downey (apparently much interested in his paper)—Oh, yes, I'se read ebber government. So that, if the vessel reaches Acapulco before the Charleston, the latter vessel would have simply to wait outside the port for twenty-four hours to get an opportunity to retake the Itata and her stores, providing that these have not in the at de bottom ob de fac's widout habing meantime been transferred to the Esmer-

"The day after the killing," he said, "there was a determined, absolute, almost uncontrolable determination among certain of my countrymen to kill the mayor and all those who had a hand in the butchery, but I restrained their hands; I controlled the furious men."

Speaking of the investigations and the diplomatic correspondence over the lynching, Senor Corte said: "It would only be an act of humanity if the solution of the problem is found in the payment of an in-demnity to the families of the dead Ital-American (newspaper) publishes rumors ians. A Kentucky Feud Winds Up by the Kill-ing of Three Participants.

CATLETTSBURG, Ky., May 14.—Particulars of a tragedy have reached here from Hager, W. Va., in which three men were killed outright and another seriously wounded. The Hall and Steele families have been at outs for a year. The Halls consisted of father and four sons, while the Steeles counted three able to bear arms. The four Hall boys and two of the Steeles met at Squire Murphy's office to transact some legal business. Each was armed with rifles and revolvers. One of the Hall boys was on the witness stand and contradicted a statement made by a Steele. The lie was given and the battle opened. The court room was quickly emptied of its occupants not interested in the trouble. About forty shots were fired, and when the smoke of the encounter cleared away the Steele boys, Samuel and Hiram, were found to have been killed outright. L. W. Hall had a bullet through his brain, and his brother Lewis was badly wounded. The other two have not been arrested and probably will not be, as they are known to be desperate men.

TO PROVIDE FOR EMERGENCIES.

A New Rule That Has a Bearing Upon the Famous Johnson Case.

BOSTON, May 14.-A copy of a rule of the United States supreme court has just been received by Clerk Stetson of the United States circuit court in this city providing for just such emergencies as have arisen in the Johnson case, and sustaining the ruling which Judge Nelson took the risk of making recently, when he granted Gen. Butler a writ of error. The rule is signed by Chief Justice Fuller and is in substance as follows:

An appeal or writ of error from a circuit court or a district court direct this court in the cases provided for in sections 5 and 6, of the act establishing a court of appeals (these sections apply to appeals, etc., in capital or otherwise infamous cases) may be allowed in term time or vacation by any justice of this court or by any circuit judge, and he may also grant a supersedeas and stay of proceedings pending such writ or appeal.

It is expected by the court officials that

Gen. Butler will under this rule apply for and get a writ of supersedeas liberating Mrs. Johnson from custody, pending her writ of error to the supreme court.

Escaped Newport Burglar Once More Landed in Jail.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 14.—James W. Phenix, the second of the burglars who escaped from the Newport county jail here Sunday morning, was captured yesterday afternoon in Tiverton woods. He was located there on Monday night, and Fall River and Newport officers have been beat-ing the woods ever since. He was captured at the house of A. C. Hamlin, who recognized and detained him until the officers arrived. Phenix was so completely surprised that he offered no resistance, and he was taken in charge by some of the Newport officers, who brought him here by road, disappointing several hundred people who gathered at the station to see him. Phenix was placed in the cell most distant from Conway.

NEW YORKERS AGAIN LOSE

in a Game Which They Thought Would Be Theirs-Game Between Left-Handers at Cleveland-Timely Batting Wins a Game for Brooklyn.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Getzein exhibited no traces of a lame arm to-day. The Chicago men lost through sheer inability to bat. The Boston men bunched their hits off Gumbert in the fifth and eighth innings, Lowe and Getzein winning the game by handsome two-baggers. The contest was a superb one, being in doubt until the last man was out. Wilmot made the star catch of the afternoon off Lowe's hit.

Because of Jealousy in the Diplomatic Corps.

TREACHERY OF HIPPOLYTE.

Prediction That His Government Will Soon Be Overturned - Idea Prevails in Hayti That Uncle Sam is Desirous of Annexation - Attempted Assassination

Washington, May 14.—War is threatening to break out here in the diplomatic corps. The lines are drawn between the representatives of European countries and those of the Latin-American countries, the Europeans ignoring or insulting the Europeans ignoring or insulting the Americans and being cordially disliked by tempt to take the life of the czarewitch at them for it. The Europeans are just now "boycotting" the Americans on all social occasions. One of these was the recent birthday banquet of the German minister. All the members of the diplomatic corps with the exception of the representatives from the Latin-American states. These were conspicuous only by their absence. On another occasion the secretary of a great continental power met the secretary of a certain South American legation. With some embarrassment he informed the latter of his personal regard for him, but begged as a favor that their future intercourse be limited to a strict observance of Polite Conventionalities and nothing more. He frankly added that the prejudices of his European confreres against the Latin-Americans was so great that he dared not run counter to it, notwithstanding he did not share in these prejudices himself. And so matters have gone on growing worse, until a personal encounter between the young men of the respective factions is quite probable. The South Americans say that the representatives of European countries are treated with the greatest consideration at southern capitals and that their governments would not countenance their narrow and ill-bred

MOLE ST. NICHOLAS.

Hayti's Rejection of the United Stafes' Proposal for a Lease. NEW YORK, May 14.-The Evening Po prints a letter from Port-au-Prince, giving the details of Hayti's rejection of our terms for a coaling station at Mole St. Nicholas. Coming to the end of the negotiations, the writer says: Hippolyte, who had retired to the interior in the latter part of February, and who had bee lurking conveniently at hand in the country awaiting the final action, which he no doubt had resolved upon from the first, returned of April 25th, and was received with prolonged salutes, designed to celebrate both his entry and the rejection of the treaty. In all the various turns the progress of the negotiation have taken, it is remarkable to note how ex tremely well informed Hippólyte has been kept as to the state of public opinion in the United States, and also as to the constitutional and egislative limits of Admiral Gerardi's power of action. No less remarkable has been the course pur sued by the Haytian papers. Until lately kept well in hand, they now seemed to have been freed from all restraint, and their pages teem with articles abusive of America and Americans, while in the same breath, with curious unanimity, they unite in extravagant laudaion of the American minister. A leading paper says:

paper says:

We know from the best authority that these American annexionists would be glad to have the pretext to intervene, representing us as a nation of cannibals ready to devour all the whites established among us without distinction

The remainder of the article is devoted to highly inflammatory, though perhaps excus-able, abuse of the United States for its treatment of Indians and negroes, tempered by praise of its minister.

The idea that the United States seeks to an nex Hayti is very prevalent, and it is extremely difficult to persuade the Haytians that a coaling station only is desired, and that even were Hayti itself to request admission to the American Union it would be refused. What little popularity the government of Hippolyte may gain from the incident is not likely to add to gain from the incident is not likely to add to its permanency. It is not generally known in Hayti that Hippolyte promised to lease the Mole and when it is the fact will redound to his discredit. In fact, the rupture of the negotiations will tend to bring together the intriguers, who hitherto have held aloof under the impression that the United States would intervene to protect the government so long as there, was a likelihood. government so long as there was a likelihood of acquiring from it the lease of a coaling sta-

Particulars of the Attack on the Czarewitch by a Japanese.

Paris, May 14.—An official dispatch received here from Tokio, Japan, says that the czarewitch had crossed Lake Biwa, near Kioto, and had landed at Otsu, on that lake, from which place he proposed to continue his journey to Kioto, about twelve miles from Otsu. Shortly after the czarewitch had landed a policeman named Tsuda Sanzo, belonging to the Samurai Russian throne and dealt him a sabre cut across the head.

Owing to the thickness of the sun-helmet worn by the ezarewitch, the sabre only inflicted a wound three inches in length and did not penetrate deeply into the head. Before the policeman could renew his attack, he was overpowered and placed in confinement. The wound inflicted upon the czarewitch was promptly dressed and the imperial traveler left Otsu by special train for Kioto.

THE MISER'S HAND.

One evening in the year 1520, a wom-We are selling Goods at Boston Prices and an, enveloped in a long black mantle, bridge and looked down with a shudder on the clear, blue waters of the Adriatic; then closing her eyes and murmuring

> Just as she was falling a man rushed forward, seized her with a powerful grasp, and, drawing her back, said: "Girl! destroy not thy life which Providence has given thee. If thou art unhappy enter thy church, kneel on its hallowed pavement, pour out thy sorrow and thank thy Maker that thou hast been preserved from crime-from rushing uncalled into his presence!"

"The girl impatiently tried to shake 20c. off the strong, kind hand that held her, 28c. and said: "Let me go! I must die!" In another moment she tottered and 21c. fell to the ground, where she lay with-14c. out sense or motion. Her preserver raised her head, and, in order to give her air, drew back the veil which concealed her features. They were very lovely, and the man gazed on her with wonder and admiration as she was gradually restored.

By degrees she told him who she was and where she lived. Her history might 10c. be summed up in a few words: An 16 and 18c. avaricious father, a poor lever, a mutual 12c. but unhappy love.

Vainly did Maria plead with her father, a rich innkeeper of Venice, the cause of her lover, Antonio Barbarigo, the handsome gondolier beneath the 8 to 12c. Bridge of Sighs. At length this evening her father, Gianettini, forgot himself so far as to strike his daughter with some violence, and she, with far more culp-23c. able neglect of her duty, ran wildly from home, and, as we have seen, was arrested just on the verge of committing sui-

The person who had saved her led her gently to her home, and, having given her up to her father, seated himself in an obscure corner of the hostelry. Gianettini received his child with rude reproaches, and bidding her retire to her own apartment and betake herself to her spinning, he cast a suspicious glance at the person who brought her home, whose stout, manly figure and firm countenance, however, deterred the innkeeper from addressing him in a hostile

The young man did not stir. "Have you finished?" he said, in a good numored tone. "Wherefore these hard words? Have you never loved, Signor Gianettini? Have you totally forgotten the feelings of your youth? Know you not that since I was ten years old and Maria five we have loved each other fondly? Will you not, then, allow us to hallow your old age with our tears?" "I don't want to have a parcel of beggars for my children," said Gianettini roughly. "Beggars!" replied the young man.

"You surely forget yourself." "Not I, indeed," returned the father. 'I refuse my consent. Therefore get you gone." "But hear me for one moment," pleaded the gondolier. "'Tis useless. I again repeat that such as you shall never wed my daughter. Your position is too mean.'

"Certainly, you are rich," replied the young man; "but what hinders that I should become so too? A stout arm, a brave heart, an honest soul will, with the help of heaven, do much." "A fool's dream!"

"Nay," said Antonio, "it is sober sense. Prince Lorenzo de Medici was a merchant; Duke Giacomo Siorza a cowherd." The man in the corner had hearkened attentively to this dialogue. He rose and, touching Barbarigo's shoulder, said: than that of showing his countrymen "Well spoken, gondolier. MONEY.

The gondolier took the parchment and looked at it with astonishment. He then turned doubtfully toward Maria, but a glance from her soft dark eyes reassured him, and he set out on his mission.

With folded arms and a moody brow, the artist commenced pacing up and down the large room in the hostelry, casting at intervals a scrutinizing glance at the young girl, who, now penitent for her intended crime, was silently praying in a corner. As for Gianettini, he seemed unable to shake off the strange ascendancy gained over him by his unknown visitor; his habitual effrontery failed him, and for the first time in his life he dared not break silence.

An hour passed. Then hasty, joyous steps were heard, and Antonio appeared, bearing in his hand a bag and a letter. The bag contained 600 pistoles, and the letter was addressed to the artist and prayed him to honor the senator with "Take these coins and weigh them," said the unknown, as he threw the bag toward Gianettini. Antonio Barbarigo stood before his benefactor pale and trembling with joy. "One favor more," he said. "Who are you?" "What does it matter?"

"What does it matter, say you?" cried the gondolier. "Much-much to me! Tell me your name, that I may love and honor it to the last moment of my life." "Men call me Michael Angelo. It is my turn now," he said, "to ask you a favor. It is to allow me to perpetuate on canvas the lovely features of Maria." The girl approached. She could not speak, but she clasped the painter's hand and raised it to her lips. A tear fell on it, and Michael Angelo, as he drew her back, turned away to conceal his own emotions.

Twenty years passed on and found Antonio, the once humble gondolier, the happy husband of Maria and general of the Venetian republic. Yet his brilliant position never rendered him unmindful of his early life, and his heartfelt gratitude, as well as that of his wife, accompanied Michael Angelo Buonarrotti to the end of his days. As to the crayon sketch of the miser's hand, it was taken from Italy by a soldier in Napoleon's army and placed in the Louvre. During the invasion of 1814 it was unfortunately lost, and so far as can be ascertained has never since been recovered. The story of its production, however, still lingers among the traditions of Venice. - M. A. in Chicago Globe.

The Zuni Game of the Kicked Stick.

All is now ready; each rider has his eye on his favorite side, an old priest rides in advance and sprinkles sacred meal over the course, the starters kick the sticks and the wildest excitement prevails. As each racer left his home he put into his mouth two shell beads-the one he drops as a sacrifice as he starts, the other when he has covered about one half the course. The stick is tossed rather than kicked, and a good racer will toss it from eighty to a hundred feet. Over the heads of the runners it goes and falls beyond the first man. He simply points to where it lights and runs on. The next man tries to kick it, but should he fail to get under it he As Maria turned to depart a young goes on, and the next man takes it. The gondolier appeared at the door and furrace is not to the swift alone, although this has much to do with it. The stick can in no case be touched with anything but the foot, and should it fall into a cactus bush, a prairie dog hole or an arroyo much valuable time is lost in getting it out. Not infrequently it happens that one side will be several miles in advance of the other when the stick falls into some unnoticed hole. The wild and frenzied yelling which takes place as those who were behind come up and pass can only be imagined and not described. So skill in tossing it plays a prominent part. On, on they go to the southern hills, east to Ta-ai-yal-lo-ne, north to the mesas, follow these west for miles, then to the southern hills and back again to the starting point. The distance traversed is nearly twenty-five miles, and they pass over it in about two hours. Racing is indulged in by the excited horsemen as they approach the goal, and it is not unusual to see a pony drop over dead from exhaustion as they near the village.-J. G. Owens in

The above fact in relation to clothing is borne out by the statement of a clothing dealer in this city the other day, who said Quincy was a very hard place on clothing. We all know that granite chips are sharp, and as considerable of this material is used in repairing our streets, it is reasonable to think that the street dust is not only dirty. but damaging to clothing.

The Owl Club.

Much interest is being taken by the citiens of Quincy Point in regard to the Owl Club which was formed last week. This is a literary and athletic society for the improvement of the muscular and mental faculties, and one that should be encouraged. By hard practice and preparation they have succeeded in placing in the field a first class ball nine and an excellent cricket club. Last night the members met at their hall on South street and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President,-Mr. Charles Connor.

The consul sent word first that he had telegraphed to Washington for authority to give it to us and afterward notified the committee "that it being an extra judicial body" he did not feel warranted in giving us the promised information.

As remedies against the existing condition of things the committee suggests: 1. The regulation of immigration

2. Reform in the criminal laws and administration of criminal justice. A law recognizing the existence of a bar association and endowing it with full power to try and disbar any attorney whose evil pracices render him unworthy of being an officer

The only radical remely, which suggested self to us, is the entire ration from Sicily and lower Italy. It was found necessary to prohibit Chinese immigra-tion and congress passed the necessary law. The danger to California from Chinese was no greater than the danger to this state from the Sicilians and southern Italians. We have had long experience with these people, and that ex-perience has been a sad one. They are unde-sirable citizens, and there is no reason why they should be permitted to participate in the blessings of a freedom and civilization which which they refuse to understand or to accept. Mr. Stafford explained that his amendnent to the house bill to prohibit the issuing of certain obligations (the bond investment companies) applied to only three ompanies which he thought should be exempted from the provisions of the bill, the same as the Massachusetts companies have been exempted from the provisions of the fraternal endowment bill. SHANGHAI, May 15.—Further particulars received here from Woo Hoo, the treaty port in the province of Ngan-Hoei, show that the Chinese who took part in burning the Catholic mission and other European buildings at that place, are liable to bring down upon themselves the wrath of the British government. The mob, it is now stated, also burned and looted the custom house and the British consulate. The wife of the British consul, disguised as a Chinese woman, managed, with difficulty, to escape from the consulate, and made her way to the banks of the Yang-Tse-Kiang, where, in company with the other Euro peans, she took refuge on the hulks moored in the stream. The British consul was wounded while on his way from the consulate to the hulks. The anti-European feeling which caused the riot is cooling down. The European portion of the population of Woo Hoo is anxiously awaiting the arrival of H. M. S. Inconstant.

THE CAUSE OF SORROW

LESSON VII, SECOND QUARTER, IN. TERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 17.

Text of the Lesson, Hosea x, 1-15-Com. mit Verses, 12, 13-Golden Text, Isa liz 2-Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by pa-mission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadel

1. "Israel is an empty vine; he bringeth forth fruit unto himself." In Ps. lxxx, 9-11, and Isa. v, 1-7, Israel is compared to a vine for which everything possible has been done, but which after all yieldeth no fruit, or if any, only son grapes. In Matt. xxi, 33-41, our Lord Jesus, in the parable of the vineyard, de scribes God's love to Israel and her treatment of Him and His servants and Son.

2. "Their heart is divided."
"With their mouth they show much love. but their heart goeth after their covetons. ness" (Ezek. xxxiii, 31). They were like those who try to serve God and mammon to love God and at the same time love the world that hates God.

3. "For now they shall say, We have no king, because we feared not the Lord." Jehovah was their king, He brought then out of Egypt, and they accepted Him as such; but when they wanted a king like other nations then they were guilty of rejecting the Lord as their king. 4. "They have spoken words, swearing falsely in making a covenant." In chap. i, 1, we read that Hosea prophe sied in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahar and Hezekiah; and in II Chron. xxvi, 16, we read that Uzziah, although for a while trusting in God, afterward transgressed against the Lord his God. And although Jotham did right in the sight of the Lord yet the people did corruptly (II Chron. xxvii, 2). In the reign of the next king the Lord brought Judah low because of Ahaz, king of Israel (II Chron. xxviii, 19) and even the great and good Hezekiah failed sadly before he died.

5. "The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear because of the calves of Beth-aven." The abounding judgment spoken of in the last clause of the previous verse (with which compare Amos vi, 12) would cause both people and priests to turn to their idols, the golden calves at Dan and Bethel, here spoken of as Beth-aven (the house of iniquity), but they would find no help. 6. "Ephraim shall receive shame, and

Israel shall be ashamed of his own counsel." Ephraim seems to stand here for the ten tribes, and Israel for the whole nation Ephraim had relied upon Jareb the Assyrian instead of upon Jehovah (chap. v 13), and the result was that the Assyrian would receive for himself that which Ephraim so highly prized. 7. "As for Samaria, her king is cut off as the foam upon the water." Quickly cut off as the crest of the wave which is gone in a moment. In chap. vi, 4, the goodness of the nation is compared to a morning cloud and the early dew. In Jas. iv, 14, it is written: "What is your life! It is even a vapor which appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth away." If we have Christ as our life, and delight to trust in Him and do His will, then, come what may, nothing can affect our welfare; but the ungodly when taken from this present life lose everything. See this in Deut. xxx, 19, 20.

8. "They shall say to the mountains, Cover us; and to the hills, Fall on us." In I Kings xii, 30, the calves at Dan and Bethel are called a sin. While God may bear long with sin He will in due time surely destroy it. 9. "O Israel, thou hast sinned from the days of Gibeah." The earliest story of Gibeah is in Judg. xx, where the sinful people gained tw great victories over those who wanted the sin put away. The sense of this verse seems to be that because God in mercy restrained His wrath, Israel, instead of being by His goodness led to repentance, only increased in sin.

10. "It is in my desire that I should chas-The last clause of this verse is in the R. V. translated, "When they are bound to their two transgressions," referring, m doubt, to Dan and Bethel as the two centers of their idol worship. He will chasten them that He may win them back to Himself, as when He says in Amos iii, 2, "You only have I known of all the families of the earth, therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities." "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth" (Heb. xii, 6).

11. "I will make Ephraim to ride, Judah shall plow and Jacob shall break his clods." The R. V. says, "I will set a rider on Ephraim." The people have been unsub-dued, left to themselves, enjoying God's goodness to the full, but rebelling against Him. But now if they will not turn to Him, He will by their enemies subdue them.

12. "Sow to yourselves in righteousness; reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground." The expression "fallow ground" is found trast John iv, 36. As to the folly of our ways and thoughts see Isa. lv, 8, 9.

14. "Therefore shall a tumultarise among thy people, and all thy fortresses shall be spoiled."

Their God and King is the Prince of Peace; the Lord will bless His people with peace; He will speak peace unto His people (Isa. ix, 6; Ps. xxix, 11; lxxxv, 8). But if they will not have Him, and choose lies instead of truth, they must accept tumult and spoliation as the consequence. "The hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, hiding and the waters shall overflow the hiding place" (Isa. xxviii, 17). Happy the one who can truly say, "The Lord is my rock."

15. "So shall Bethel do unto you because of your great wickedness; in a morning shall the king of Israel utterly be cut off. While this had a literal fulfillment a few years later, we are carried forward in thought to the great fulfillment when "the prince that shall come," "the man of sin," "the one coming in his own name" (Dan ix, 26, 27; II Thess. ii, 3; John v, 43), shall make the seven years covenant with Israel, break it after three and a half years, and bring in the time of Jacob's trouble, after which he (the beast of Rev. xi, 4-6; xix, 20) shall go to the lake of fire, cut off in that morning when Jesus shall appear in that morning when Jesus shall appear in power and glory as Israel's Messiah, and then shall He bring in everlasting right counsess (Ps. xlvi, 5, margin; xlix, 14; lanix, 24; Isa. xlv, 17).

Assessment Insurance Companies in New Hampshire

severe Criticism of Commissioner Linehan's Action in Issuing Certain Permits-Will Play an Important Part in Politics in the Future.

CONCORD, N. H., May 15.—The enforcement of the law regarding the assessment insurance companies by Commissioner Linehan has got that gentleman into the hottest kind of hot water. He receives a of people affected may be judged from the fact that while only twenty-eight out of about 200 companies to which he sent blanks reported, those twenty-eight returned over 56,000 certificates as issued. The commissioner maintains that he is executing the law without fear or favor, but he is being criticized now for issuing permits to do business to the Pennigewasset Mutual and the Provident Mutual of

The first is a Plymouth concern, which issues a policy payable one-half to the beneficiary named and the balance divided equally among the survivors of the club of ten to which the deceased member belonged. This scheme has been denounced as a gambling one, and the society in its return for the year ending Dec. 31, 1889, claimed a cash balance of but $667, against a certificate liability of $11,849,500.

The Provident Mutual has ex-Governor Prescott for its president, Rev. A. C. Hardy for secretary and Senator J. H. Galinger for treasurer, but its assets are only a trifle over $4000, while it has certificates issued to the amount of $7,931,000. The action of the commissioner is generally viewed with indignation by the patrons of all schemes, and it is charged ment that all endowment companies, save the bond schemes, Should Be Allowed to Continue.

The position taken by the commissioner has roused the ire of the Iron Hall, which has notified its branches in the state to transact no new business, and very few of the recognized assessment orders of the A. O. U. W. class have deigned yet to apply for a license. It is currently reported that the Royal Arcanum will not apply, and several other orders are known to hold similar views. An indignation meeting is to be held in Manchester, where lodges of the endowment orders number their members by the hundred, and the supreme justice of the Iron Hall and other society men of prominence are to speak.

The commissioner has notified the financial officers of several orders that they will be prosecuted if they continue to receive money on assessments for orders he has refused to recognize, and a bitter and ugly feeling is beginning to prevail toward him, An actress and an officer in the Hussars especially among the laboring people aused a sensation in Stockholm by elop- among whom these orders have chiefly flourished.

SOLVED BY THE GOSPEL.

The Pope Expounds Doctrine for Labor ing Men to Consider.

ROME, May 15 .- The Latin text of the pope's encyclical on the labor question is about to be published. An analysis shows that he refutes the socialist theories tending to abolish private property and up-holds the principles of the church as the first and main element in the solution of social questions. The true solution, the pope says, can be found in the gospel, which, if rightly studied, would teach employers and employed to become united, while fulfilling their respective duties. The church has always sought to promote the application of the principles stated in the gospel and to give moral and material help as inculated by Christ's doctrines. The state should intervene to regulate disputes in regard to private property in order to ensure the public peace and the moral and material welfare of the working people. At this point his holiness com ments on the necessity of Sunday rest, and deals at length with the questions of kind of commendation from the press of the state generally, but the vast number strikes, wages and hours of labor for workmen, women and children.

In conclusion, the pope dilates on the subject of workingmen's associations, in-cluding mutual aid and accident insurance societies, sick funds, classes for technical education and mixed syndicates of employers and employes. The state ought to countenance all such institutions as are calculated to improve the existing social conditions. The pope praises the work the institutions have already achieved and calls upon all Catholics to assist in their formation, urging that all should be animated with a Christian spirit.

Murder Will Out. Ten years ago an old timer named

Tom Poole, who, with his two children lived on a farm between Pemberton meadows and Lillooet lakes, was found murdered. The bodies of the children horribly mutilated, lay across the father's corpse in the cellar of the house, which had been burned over their heads after the horrible butchery. Suspicion rested on a neighbor named Graham, who was last seen near the ranch. He was arrested and tried in New Westminster for the crime, being afterward acquitted. The provincial government offered a reward for the capture of the murderer, allow the insertion of the neck of a glass and there the case dropped and public funnel, and make an airtight joint with interest gradually died out. Within the paraffin wax or a bit of common paraffin past few months certain discoveries have candle, melted down. There must be no air holes between funnel and cork or bebeen made which go to show that Graham was really innocent, and the real murderer is an Indian chief named Nemiah, who, two years ago, murdered a Chinaman on the Frazer river, and has since been evading the authorities.

About two weeks ago Nemiah quar reled with another Indian in his band, and the hands of the chief were almost stained with the blood of his third vic tim. Other Indians present seized and bound him, and immediately sent a message to B. Franklin, justice of the peace at Tatlae Lake, that they had got Ne miah and wanted the authorities to come up and take him. On receipt of this information Franklin, accompanied by a posse of special constables, left immediately, only to find on arriving at their destination that their bird had flown.

Nemiah's squaw had cut the ropes that bound him while the others were asleep Making good use of his liberty Nemiah took to the "stick," where he is supposed to be at present. The party found that the Indian Guishou, with whom Nemiah and the quarrel was not depresently in had the quarrel, was not dangerously in- ists for the production of the familiar Seidjured. For a long time local granite cutters have been annoyed by the importation of dressed TEMPLE STREET FISH MARKET. DISTRICTS AS PROPOSED power or authority contented by said city shall either acquire the franchise, said city shall either acquire the franchise, corporate property, rights and privileges of the amount of work expended on the imported stone, they could not understand how the goods could be laid down granite-a high class of monumental work

The matter attracted the attention of Special Agent Montgomery, and he was not long in discovering how it was brought

The scheme was to ship dressed granite from the Provinces, where labor is cheap, to some small eastern port, where it was en tered at a great undervaluation, and the duties paid. At these smaller ports this was more likely to be successful, as the local officials lacked the experience and expert judgment necessary for the recognition of the undervaluation.

The goods having passed one of these small custom houses, and being supplied with a collector's certificate that they had minus a sum equal to the outstanding been duly entered and duties paid, could then be transported, so the perpetrators fancied, whenever they desired, without further trouble, and put on the market at a price beyond local competition. But as soon as Special Agent Mont gomery got on track of the performance, prove a very decided check to the business. Last week he seized some eighteen tons of dressed granite which had been entered at an undervaluation at Eastport, Me., and was on its way through Boston to Chicago.

This week he has captured a similar consignment of eighteen cases which was passed through the custom house at Vance boro, Me., for parties in Quincy, Mass. see that the evasion of two-thirds of this,

Private Railway Cars.

So far this season nearly sixty private cars of railroad and other officials and men of wealth and influence have been in St. Augustine-probably a larger number than is the case with any other city in the south. Some of these cars are veritable "palaces on wheels," while others are only plainly elegant. On Sunday Superintendent Crawford, of the J., St. A. and H. R. railway, told a correspondent that he was prevented from attending services owing to official duties in connection with the hauling of these private cars. "There are several of them here over Sunday," said the superintendent, "and up to today our road has hauled fifty-four private cars in and out of St. Augustine this season."-Florida

Over an Apparent Conflict of Jurisdiction.

THE CASE OF MRS JOHNSON

tional Courts-A Leading Boston Law- and towns in the common wealth." yer on the Subject.

Judge Carpenter of the United States court for an offense against the statutes of the United States, is attracting much attention and comment in legal circles on account of the apparent conflict of jurisdiction. The writ of personal replevin issued by the superior court of Middlesex county authorizing her discharge applies to a person who is "imprisoned, restrained of his liberty, or held in duress, unless in the custody of some public officer of the law by force of a lawful warrant or process, civil or criminal, issued by competent authorities," and is directed to the sheriff of the county or his deputy. As the jurisdiction of the state courts is confined to the state, the question arises how the writ of a state court can operate against a decree of the United States court, the jurisdiction of which is as distinct and independent as that of any one of the states? States to punish, in this state at least, ofthe steps he has already taken in the case. It will be remembered that after Mrs. Johnson had been convicted and sentenced to the women's reformatory at Sherborn by Judge Carpenter, Gen. Butler obtained a writ of error to the supreme court of the rejected. United States. Pending the action of the court he applied to Judge Benedict of New York for a writ of supersedeas releasing her from custody until the supreme court had given its decision. This was denied, discharge of his client. But he chose the shorter and less complicated course. A Notable Case in this city where action taken under this writ was that of the United States against man named Haynes, who was convicted of some offense before Judge Nelson in the district court. He was defended by Gen. Butler and E. B. Brown, and finally by Harrison Dunham. Hon. George M. Stearns, then United States district attorney, acted for the government. The case was removed to the district court, where a motion in arrest of judgment was filed by Gen. Butler and allowed by Judge Haynes had been sentenced by Colt. Judge Nelson to the house of correction in East Cambridge, and entered upon the serving out of his sentence. A writ of error was taken up to the supreme court by Mr. Dunham, and pending the decision of the court, he also applied for and obtained a writ of supersedeas, and Haynes was released from the house of correction Haynes went west, where he is to-day. The arguments on the law points of the writ of error were made before Judge Gray and the matter is now in the hands of the judges for their decision. It will be seen that in this case where Gen. Butler ant chief of the pension bureau, and the was counsel the usual course of procedure in the United States courts was adopted. with substantially the same result as in the Johnson case, where the questionable method of invoking the power of the state court was adopted. One of the ablest and best informed lawyers in this city, practicing before the United States courts, while not wishing to be quoted as giving an opinion on a question which is not to be decided without thorough investigation, regards the case in this way: A Lawyer's Argument.

The superintendent of the women's reformatory at Sherborn, when she reeived Mrs. Johnson as a prisoner, received her-provided she had authority to receive her at all-as a state officer clothed by the state with authority to take charge of the prison and its inmates. Mrs. Johnson comes there, it is true, under sentence from a United States court, but the nature of the prison while receiving her as a United States prisoner under a sentence of the United States court, has charge over her, and enforces discipline as a state of-ficer, appointed by the state, answering to the state for the exercise of her authority, and holding this woman in a state re-formatory institution under the authority given by the state to the United States to incarcerate prisoners sentenced by courts of the United States to imprisonment in the state institution. Therefore, it seems that while at first flush the exercises of this writ of personal chusetts, and the state officer answers the process of the state in the process of the courts.

If this view of the case is correct, it seems to be important that the United

Should Have Prisons of Its Own if it desires to keep its convicts free from state interference. The only prison it has in this neighborhood is at the Charlestown navy yard; but that is only suitable for the holding of refractory marines or drunken sailors. The authority given to the United States to use the prisons of Massachusetts is contained in chapter 220 of the public statutes. While the state prison, the county jail and the house of correction may be used to confine "persons detained or committed by the authority of the United States," no such provision is to be found in the statutes relating to the houses of reformation for juvenile offenders or the women's prison at Sherborn. Should Have Prisons of Its Own houses of reformation for juvenile offenders or the women's prison at Sherborn.

A doubt, therefore, arises whether the court by sending Mrs. Johnson to Sherborn may not have exceeded its powers. If it did not, and she was legally in the custody of the state officials, it is a question whether there is not implied in the permission granted to the United States to use the jails of the state a condition that persons who may be sentenced by tion that persons who may be sentenced by the federal courts shall be held securely till such courts ordered them released. the infatuated man threatened to kill them both, and finally pulling from his pocket a sailor's sheath knife, he made a murderous lunge at his victim. Instinctively she turued to avoid the deadly blade, but it struck her in the back about three inches beneath the left shoulder

Without a cry or groan she sank upon the stones, already wet with the beginning Hooper witnessed the deed, and dashing

THE BURLESQUE.

The Father of Burlesque Poetry and of Burlesque Plays.

Mr. Laurence Hutton in his "Curiosities of the Stage" tells us that Hipponax of Ephesus is credited with having been the father of burlesque poetry. He paradel "The Iliad," making Achilles an Ioni glutton; "he did not spare his ov Boston, May 16.—A woman known to the North End police as leading a reckless life was murdered about 11 o'clock scoffers, and he is only to be distin from his long line of successors by the curious fact that he does not seem to have spoken with derision of his mother. in-law." I hope that Hipponax will have many followers in the days to come. The mother-in-law has become fatiguing.

Mr. Hutton considers Aristophanes the father of the burlesque play, and cites his many disciples. This burlesque writer, however, had his object, and his works furnished pictures of nations and customs marks, "What curious ideas of American life and manners will posterity gain from 'Adonis' and 'Evangeline!'

The history of early American burlesque, between the years 1839, when William Mitchell opened the Olympic, and 1839, "when William Burton madt his last bow to the American public," is highly entertaining. Here are a few titles that will give one an idea of the punfulness of those days: "The Bohea Man's Girl" ("Bohemian Girl,") "Fried Shots" ("Freischutz,") "Her Nanny" ("Ernani,") "Lucy Did Sham Her Moor" ("Lucia di Lammermoor") and "The Cats in the Larder" ("La Gazza Ladra.") 1 seems a little surprising that burlesque writers should still hammer away at the puns, and less convincingly than they did in those days.

An Egyptain lock has been found which we are assured was in use more than 4,000 years ago. This old Egyptain lock, tells the European Trade Mail, was not made of metal like those we use now-a-days, but of wood and the key that opened it was wooden, too. On one side of the door to which it was fastened there was a stap and into this staple fitted a woo that was fixed to the door itself. this bolt was pushed into the staple as fa as it would go, three pins in the upper par of the staple dropped into holes in the bolt and held it in its place, so that it could not be moved back until the pins were lifted The key was a straight piece of wood, at the end of which were three pegs the same distance apart as the pin which held the bolt firm. When the key was pushed into the bolt through a hole made to receive i the pegs came into such a position that they were able to lift the pins that fixed the bolt, and when these were lifted the bolt could be lifted out of the staple.

The expression "The dark horse" originated in D'Israeli's novel, "The Young Duke" where it occurs in the descrip of an important race, in which the favorite and well known horses failed to run. I the words of the author, "A dark horse, which had never been thought of and which the careless St. James had never even observed in the list, rushed past the grand stand in sweeping triumph. Protest Against the Barber Bill at a Meeting in Manchester, N. H. MANCHESTER, N. H., May 16 .- Two thousand people assembled in Smyth's hall last night to express their disapprobation of the Barber bill and its administration by Insurance Commissioner Linehan. Col. T. D. Curtis, agricultural editor of The Mirror, presided, and there were representatives of several endowment orders of Massachusetts among the speakers.

The following resolutions, preceded by a long preamble, were adopted: Resolved, By the citizens of Manchester in mass meeting assembled, that we hereby denounce the Barber bill, its projectors, aiders and abettors, as a conspiracy and as conspiraand abettors, as a conspiracy and as conspira-tors against personal liberty and the welfare of the citizens of this commonwealth; as a fraud and imposition upon the legislature, the governor and the people, in the false pretence in which it was conceived, in the corruption which attended its passage and in the imposi-tion attending its enforcement. Resolved, That we hereby denounce Insur-ance Commissioner John C. Linehan for the spirit which he has manifested and the lack of principle which he has exercised in the execustone National Bank. PHILADELPHIA, May 16.—Gideon W. Marsh, president, and Charles W. Lawrence, assistant cashier of the supended Keystone National bank, were given a partial hearing before United States Commis sioner Bell yesterday afternoon, charged with making false returns to the comptroller of the currency as to the condition by the accused officials in their endeavor to cover up the shortage in the bank's cash. He said he made examinations of the books of the bank about twice a year, generally in January and July. Marsh and Lawrence would remove from the "individual deposits ledger" whole leaves, which were reinserted after an examination. The were reinserted after an examination. The effect of this work would be to show that the deposits were much less than they really were. The services of a bookbinder must have been necessary to get the leaves back in the book correctly. Altogether the present deficiency amounts to $998,000. The witness told how Messrs. Marsh and Lawrence acknowledged to him their manipulation of the bank's books, and it

Its Houses Were Dwarfy, Squalid Structures and Easily Pulled Down-The Climate Then Was Colder and More Unbearable-Famine and Pestilence.

Who can rebuild before the eye of the mind a single ordinary dwelling of the vanished London of the middle of the Thirteenth century? It was a dwarfish, squalid structure of such crazy unsubstantiality that, with a stout iron crook and two strong cords, provided by the ward, it migh be pulled down and dragged off speedily in case of fire; a structure of one story jutting over a low ground floor, with another jut of out of their senses. Entering the St. eaves above, its roof perchance engrailed with gables, its front bearing an odd resemblance to the back of a couple of huge stairs, and the whole a most rickety, tumbledown, top heavy, fantastical furniture. Having had all the fun he thing. Chimneys were fairly in vogue then, so it had them-squat, square, wide mouthed, faced with white plaster, red tiles or gray pebble work.

Red tiles covered its roof. Its walls were rough planed planks or a wooden framework filled with a composite of straw and clay, buttressed with posts and crossed this way and that with sup- other was sent in to the police station, porting beams, the whole daubed over until every officer on the force was on with whitewash, of which the weather the trail of the marauder. the wall for an entrance to the upper

ROMANTIC BUILDING. Such, joint and seam and tile being loosened into crack and cranny and crevice everywhere, was the dwelling of the London citizen as the eye might see it in the middle of the Thirteenth century. Multiply that dwelling into a tortuous and broken perspective of like buildings, some joined by party walls, some with spaces between, all pent roofed or gable cased, post buttressed, beam crossed, dusky red roofed, dingy white walled, and low under the overhanging vastness of the sky, and you have an ancient London street, which shall be foul and narrow, with open drains, footways roughly flagged and horseway deep with slushy mire, overstrewn with ashes, shards and

But all around ure, and that the sprinkling cart should stretched dwellings which our poorest be felt necessary so soon after the sky's modern house excels, and on those efforts seems incredible.—Indianapolis dwellings all evils and discomforts that can befall had their quarry.

Light came dim and sunshine dimly glimmering into their darkened rooms. Summer heats made ovens of them. The old gray family of London fogs rose from the marshes north of the city walls, from the city's intersecting rivulets, from the Thames below, and crept in at every opening to make all dark and chill within. > Apropos of the Season. Ah-h-h!

That's about as good a description as could be written of today's weather. It also serves the purpose of describing that very vague and uncertain thing a person would like to do under the newly felt influence of sunshine. Perhaps one would just like to expand himself-a little and slowly, without putting too much effort in the process.

This is a day when the pleasantest thing possible is to stand about and exist. It would be much less troublesome to lie down and exist, but unfortunately that can't be done-at least not in the sunshine, and a person has a lazy hankering after the sunshine. Summer is as yet only skin deep. The lawn looks very attractive, but under it oozes damp pneumonia. Faint traces of winter are still felt, though the temperature has reached 70 degs., and the season has not yet lost its nasal twang, so to speak. at best strangely deficient in comfort The man who imagines he has the grip

M. E. CHURCH, DEDICATED.

The followidg interesting sketch of the new Methodist Episcopal Church in East Braintree with a cut of the neat structure we copy from the Braintree Observer. The formal dedication of the pretty little new M. E. church in East Braintree, the beginning and progress of the erection of which has been announced from time to time in the columns of the OBSERVER, took place last Sunday afternoon. The erection and dedication of a Christian church anywhere, has always been regarded, and justly regarded, as an important event, and the world not having outgrown this conviction, which rests on the self-evident benefits that society has derived from the influence of the church, the dedication and opening of a new church, for public worship, in East Braintree was so regarded and esteemed one of the command of Capt. In asking the council to establish a police force we must borrow the money."

Mr. H. H. Faxon said, it would be public disaster to Quincy to have a police force organized. There are a hundred lazy fellows waiting now to join it. The citizens of Wollaston do not need police, just drive out the crowd that hangs around the places near the depot and that will end it. It is your own fault. If an officer should undertake to do his duty in this ward and break up that gang all of the politicians in the place would petition for his removal. If you had arrested every boy and put him into court, you would about policemen one minute and then go and license a billiard saloon the next.

You inaugurate a police force in this city and in less than five years it would cost from $25,000 to $30,000. If you have an officer that will do his duty he will be dropped.

Keep the dens of vice out and you won't need the policemen, and you can do it. Mr. W. G. Corthell asked Mr. Faxon if liquor was sold in Wollaston.

Mr. Faxon said that it was and it was sold near the depot, and that is what is the cause of all this trouble.

Found $1,700 in an Old Violin.

Casper Clement, a charcoal burner in Bergen county, N. J., found $1,700 in greenbacks in an old violin which he bought recently in Philadelphia. Clement has a taste for music, but was too poor to buy a violin. Chance took him to Philadelphia, and while there he stumbled upon a pawnbroker's sale. The old violin was put up. Clement bought it for eighty cents.

He took the violin home, thinking he had a big prize, but, to his intense disgust, he couldn't get any good out of it, and was about to smash the instrument when he thought better of it and concluded to take it apart. He found a roll of greenbacks inside in good enough condition to spend. He was elated with his good fortune, but had the good sense to put the violin together. Then he instrument as well as a small fortune. Clement is now seeking for an investment for his money and is going to give up the charcoal burning business .-Easton Argus.

Not Alarmed by the Adverse Criticism of Newspapers or Indignation Meetings -Facts in His Annual Report Will Amply Vindicate His Character.

CONCORD, N. H., May 18.-In discussing the newspaper criticisms upon his action in licensing the Provident Mutual and Pemigewasset Mutual associations, Insurance Commissioner Linehan said:

"I do not trouble myself much about what the papers say. I understand what my duty is, and I am determined to perform it. Many of the burned places have no insurance. Hundreds of families were thrust upon their friends for accommodations. started at 6:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the Langakell hotel barns just off Pine street, from some unknown cause, and aided by a strong wind swept away ten blocks on Pine street, one of the chief business streets of the city. Then, by a sudden shift in the wind, the flames were driven toward Terrace avenue, one of the finest residence streets in the city, where they destroyed many houses. By 9 o'clock the fire had reached the southern district of the city, where there was more space between the houses, and the firemen succeeded in considerably reducing the progress of the flames. Men in broadcloth labored side by side with workmen in overalls, and women in silks, with diamonds in their ears, clutched at their treasures and dropped them in heaping armfuls from their palatial houses, while women in rags rushed frantically from their humble dwellings with what poor treasures their slender means had afforded. Women wept, children cried bitterly and sweating men with grim faces rushed to and fro, doing what they could to aid the unfortunates.

The $100,000 court house was destroyed, but its public documents were saved. Prisoners in the county jail, which occupied the basement of the court house, were liberated. Several cows and horses were burned, and a little child, who was sleep ing in the Langakell house barns, where the fire started, is missing.

CONSUL CORTE SCORED.

Mayor of New Orleans Much Prefers His Room to His Company. NEW ORLEANS, May 18 .- Mayor Shake speare Saturday addressed a letter to Governor Nicholls, in which he calls attention to the course of Consul Corte since the lynching of the Italians, and says that the consul's exequatur be recalled. The letter concludes as follows:

If, as Italian consul, Mr. Corte has ever had any usefulness here he has outlived it, and has become through his own acts not only an unacceptable person, but an element of danger to this community in that by his utterances he incites his inflammable people to riot or sullen opposition to the laws and customs of a coundeposition to the law and asylum. Being the depositary, as he confesses himself to be, of criminal secrets relating to individuals of his race resident among us, he refuses to give to the department of police and justice the infor-mation he has, and thereby increases the danger to the community from these criminals.

For these reasons I have the honor to request that you ask of the honorable secretary at Washington the recall of Consul Corte's exequatur by the president.

Northwestern Switchmen Claim to Be Victims of a Conspiracy.

CHICAGO, May 18 .- By refusing to call out the trainmen on the Northwestern road the supreme council of the United Orders appear to have possibly opened the way to the ultimate disruption of the federation. The council's action was severely condemned at a meeting of the switchmen's leaders held yesterday. Grand Mas-ter Sweeney of the Switchmen's Associaion said the switchmen had been victims of a diabolical conspiracy. "The trainmen shall bide our time, however, and will pay them back with interest before we get through with them." The Chicago Switch men's union were busy debating last night whether or not to apply to-day to be taken back or not.

The Charleston and Esmeralda are at Acapulco.

CAPTAINS HAVE A TALK

In Which the Chilian Says the Itata is Out of Danger - Commodore McCann Ordered from Iquique to Take Com-

warship Charleston and the Chilian manof-war Esmeralda are lying at anchor near the entrance to the harbor of Aeapulco. The Chilian captain says that his vessel has not called at any American port. Consequently, he says, it is not probable that the United States authorities will inter-fere with the movements of either himself or his vessel. An officer of the Esmeralda, in reply to a question put to him in the telegraph office at Acapulco, as to the probability of an old-fashioned sea fight between the Charleston and Esmeralda, said in a jocular and rather ambiguous way: "Oh, the Itata is already out of danger. She has plenty of coal and pro-visions to carry her to her destination."

This remark has given rise to the report that the tender Itata coaled at sea and pro-ceeded to her destination, while the Chilian warship steamed for Acapulco to throw the United States authorities off the track. El Universal, the only government organ that has so far made any mention of the arrival of the Esmeralda at Acapulco, says that in addition to the Esmeralda, other Chilian warships are expected at Mexican ports. A telegram from Guatemala states that a schooner captain just arrived reports having seen two strange looking vessels under full sail proceeding in a southerly direction.

CHARLESTON IS COALING

But the Esmeralda is Refused Permission-Speculation in Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—United States Consul Lougherty, who is stationed at Acapulco, Mexico, telegraphed the state department Saturday afternoon that the United States steamer Charleston had arrived at that place, and that the Chilian war vessel Esmerelda was also in sight. Capt. Remey of the Charleston later informed the navy department of his arrival at Acapulco, and stated that he had taken on coal for renewed operations. The Mexican authorities had denied the Esmerelda fuel, and she was known to be in need of coal. She was evidently on the lookout for the Itata, which was originally expected to stop at Acapulco for coal.

The only telegram received yesterday was one from Captain Remey, saying that the Charleston was still at Acapulco taking in coal, and that nothing had been heard or seen of the Itata. The Esmeralda was also in port and had been refused coal by the Mexican authorities.

An order was sent yesterday by Secretary Tracy to Commodore McCann, now on his flagship, the Baltimore, at Iquique, placing the Charleston under his immediate command. This order will give Commodore McCann practically discretionary powers regarding the future course the Charleston shall pursue in her chase of the insurgent

The villages at the base of the mountain have been destroyed, and many persons are said to have been killed or injured. The fugitives are camping outside the range of destruction. They are almost entirely destitute and the greatest misery prevails among them. The Turkish government has taken measures to aid the sufferers.

Sixteen Ducks in His Fish Net.

One of the most remarkable events in he history of shad fishing in the Delaware river occurred just below Finn's Point. John McCaughan, a fisherman from this city, was out getting the "low water." During the drift he noticed ser. eral large flocks of wild ducks taking their morning baths in the river about 150 yards away from his skiff and directly in the course of his long net. Some time afterward he hauled in his net. In it he found six shad, one small

It is not unusual for a fisherman to find one duck in his net, but when sixteen of these luscious fowls were taken out from points all along the net it is a clear indication that hundreds of the ducks were on the river. The birds dive into the river with one swift swoop and go down into the water for several fathoms by the force of the dive. They become entangled in the meshes of the fine gilling twine and are drowned. The birds were beautiful specimens of their species, and their rich plumage and excellent condition made them salable at once. They brought fifty cents each .-New Castle Cor. Wilmington News.

LORD SALISBURY'S DELAY

In Beplying to Mr. Blaine's Latest Proposition Causing Much Uneasiness Among Members of the Fur Seal Companies -A Chance for Poachers.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The situation in regard to Behring sea is causing much uneasiness among the members of the North American Fur Sealing company. They are growing daily more and more clamor-ous for the reply of Lord Salisbury to Sec-retary Blaine's latest proposition or for irst tap of the alarm bells some decided step by our government.

They fear that the existing delay is for a purpose and that before any agreement can be reached regarding the closure of the sea to seal fishers this summer the Canadian poachers will be at their work of exterminating the seals.

It is now more than three months since Secretary Blaine sent his first communication to Lord Salisbury, proposing an agreement to close Behring sea to all comers for seals during the coming summer. Lord Salisbury allowed two months to elapse before he replied to this proposition, and his reply was little to the liking of the sealing company. He indicated his willingness to agree to a closed season. provided not one seal should be killed with the consent of the British govern-ment or that of the United States during the season. The men who have embarked their fortunes in the company had already indicated their willingness

His followers in Parliament have largely left him; others, as he himself concedes, will drop away at the end of the present session; while the general election will undoubtedly see him Saturday between the St. Mary's and Warents. Mr. Davitt's estimate is that four members only will remain to call themselves Parnellites. Such a sudden and complete obliteration has seldom been seen. It is due to Mr. Parnell to say that the Irish cause never before had a leader who showed through years of hard and exasperating struggle such self-command, such wisdom, and such power to enforce respect as he showed, until, through his own fault, he broke down and spoiled it all."

Complaints therefore are being made against the pocket banks, but the Boston Herald has the right of it; hear what it

It is to be hoped that the treasury de-partment is not serious in its complaint against the popular dime pocket savings banks. To be sure, they are absorbing the dimes and making them scarce in circulation, but, so long as they develop a thrifty habit among the people, this ingenious invention must be set down as a good thing and something to be encouraged. The more savings banks we have the better, whather they are for dinner or to dollars. the public whether they are for dimes or for dollars. They will yield a far better profit than the bond investment companies. Let the dime

Solid Comfort at Last for Bald Heads. The skin grafting physician of Rending, Dr. Ege, who has successfully demonstrated by practical tests that it is possible to turn a black man white, has made known his real object in conducting these experiments. The doctor does not think that there are any colored people in the world who would be foolish enough to submit to the skin grafting torture in order to be classed with the white folks, but he does claim that thousands of bald headed people are willing and anxious to wear a genuine head of hair. This can be accomplished by the skin grafting process. Dr. Ege stoutly asserts that a bald head can be covered with scalp teeming with healthy hair. THE MAYOR IS CRITICIZED,

And the Consul Says He Believes the Victims of the Mob Were Innocent of Hennessy's Murder-Story of the Boy Who Escaped the Bullets.

WASHINGTON, May 19 .- A foreign looking, rather youngish, well-dressed man and a boy of 14, a handsome black-eyed Corsican, arrived in this city Sunday night, and went at once to the Metropol itan hotel, where they took rooms. These two are perhaps, of all men, the most familiar with the Italian side of the New Orleans troubles, beginning back before the time of the Hennessy murder and culminating in the tragedy at the parish prison. The elder of the two is Sig, Corte, the consul at New Orleans. The younger is Gaspard Grimaldo, though he is better known as Asper Marchese. Grimaldo is the boy who, it is charged, gave the whistle as a signal that Hennessy was the other so as to form a V; the more acute approaching on the night when the chief the angle the better. AN ARIZONA ADVENTURE

While in command of a small scouting party in Arizona I went into camp one bright day on the Rio Puerco, very near the New Mexican line. The tents had been pitched and the animals sent out to graze under a strong guard, and I was walking before my tent impatiently waiting a summons to dinner, which I knew by the strong odor wafted from an adjacent coffee pot would not be much longer delayed.

We were about ninety miles from the nearest fort and hundreds from any settlement. There were no ranches whatsoever in this part, only some cattle and sheep belonging to Mexicans, which were herded through the territory. These were in the charge of Mexicans, who lived much the same kind of life as did their stock. Their blanket was their only house, and when night came on they would lie down wherever it might overtake them. For miles around the land was as level as the bed of a billiard table. Mountains were seen in the distance, which were inhabited by Indians. But my little command and a few rattlesnakes and tarantulas were the only living things near.

"Dinner is ready, lieutenant," was the welcome summons with which my cook greeted me, and I was soon doing full justice to an army field dinner of bean soup and "slapjacks."

I was in the midst of this savory repast when I noticed a stranger approaching me. He was a well built, powerful looking man, about forty years of age; his face was intellectual and extremely handsome; he wore a full beard and mustache, both of which were iron gray. He was coarsely clad and carried no weapon. This latter circumstance was the most remarkable thing of all, for in those days in Arizona one scarcely moved without his arms. quiet manner, if I were the commanding

I replied that I was. "I came to see if you could lend me a pistol or a carbine for a few days," he

"You don't mean to tell me that you are entirely without arms?" I said, not unreasonably astonished. "Yes; I have nothing of the kind," he answered. "I have been annoved for the past three months by those infernal California lions, and if I had a shooting iron I might kill some of them.' "Are you camping near here?" I asked. "I live just round the bend of the river. Will you walk down with me?"

Little dreaming I was so near a residence, I eagerly accepted his invitation, and filling my pipe and leaving the sergeant in charge of camp, I started forth with my new acquaintance. As we made the turn in the river I saw a large, shelving rock rising from the level prairie. It was not more than a hundred yards from the river's bank, and was really quite imposing in its dimensions. It struck me as so peculiar, so entirely out of place, that I expressed my surprise to my companion. "Yes," he answered; "I fancy it is a meteorite. I am under great obligations to it, whatever it is and however it came here, for it has protected me for months. That rock is my house." Greatly astonished, I asked if he lived there quite alone. "Oh, no," he replied. "My wife and mother live with me." By this time we had reached the natural dwelling. At what might be termed its opening the rock was ten feet or more from the ground, and it sheltered a space about twenty feet in breath, gradually sloping backward and downward. As I stepped under the protecting roof I saw two women sitting at work. My host presented me to his mother and wife respectively, and I saw at a glance that they were Mexicans; not of the class, however, known as greasers, but representatives of a much higher grade. Like most Mexicans, they were disinclined to converse in any language but their own; but when they learned that my knowledge of their tongue was too slight to enable me to understand them, they overcame their reluctance pistol or carbine of my own I would willingly lend or give them one, but all the weapons in the command, even those on my person, belonged to the government, and that the orders respecting them were so stringent that I was utterly unable to accommodate them. "I had a pistol when I came here," said my host, "but I lost it crossing the river. Since then you are the first person that has been this way." I felt really sorry for them, and also felt that they might think I had given a very flimsy reason for refusing the loan they asked. That three human beings should be annoyed night after night by wild beasts and a company of cavalry unable to give them protection seemed incredible, yet such appeared to be the case.

At length a happy thought struck me. "I tell you what I will do," I said. "I will send the company in charge of the sergeant about five miles farther down the river to encamp, then I will bring Curley with me, and we will stay here to-night with you. Curley is an old frontiersman, and is acting guide for me. He is a good shot, and will enjoy the

My proposal was joyfully accepted, and I returned to camp to give the necessary directions. About an hour later the company moved out, and Curley and I were alone. "What sort of an outfit is that down there?" said my companion, pointing to the stone mansion I had recently left.

"I cannot tell you," I answered. "The people say they are worried by the lions. and I have told them you and I will stay with them tonight and sample a few." "Some escaped jailbird, I suppose," said Curley. "The country's full of

"Yes," I answered, "the country is full of them, but I am sure this man is no criminal. His manner and his appearance, barring his clothes, are those of a gentleman, and his wife seems more than ordinarily refined."

"Well," said Curley, "if they will trot out the lions for us we don't care what they are."

With that we started toward the rock. The California lion may have a legitimate name, but this is the only one I have ever heard applied to him. He belongs to the panther and wildcat families, being, I believe, a cross between The animals are much larger than wild

We told them all to retire whenever they felt disposed, and they wanted not a second bidding. We saw that our rifles were in good order, and that our ammunition was handy, then we permitted the fire to die out. Not long did we wait: we had not been on guard more than half an hour, when Curley whispered to me, "Did you see that thing sneaking up here?"

I had already seen it; but it was only a coyote, so I said, "It is nothing but a coyote; we must not shoot, it will frighten the lions." "I believe you are right," said Curley.

But how about this senator that is approaching?" Sure enough, here came a large lion walking proudly along, scarcely thirty yards from us. "Do not fire," said Curley. "Wait until we can get more of them." A few minutes later four large lions were in our immediate front. The man had certainly told the truth thus far.

whatever his intention as to farming might be. "You take the one on the left, and I'll take the one on the right," said Curley.

"Are you ready?" "Ready," I replied.

"Fire!" The report of our rifles and the screams of the startled sleepers were almost simultaneous; the three were sleeping soundly and the shots naturally startled them. I threw another cartridge into my rifle and fired at an escaping lion, but I doubt if I injured him. We rebuilt the fire and dragged two fine specimens of the brutes where its light would allow us to inspect them. I had shot one through the heart and Curley had sent a BASE BALL.

A match game of base ball was played at the Point grounds on Saturday between the first nine of the Washington school and one from the Boys' club from the Union church of Boston. The game resulted in a score of 23 to 20 in favor of the home nine.

The visitors were the guests of Rev. Mr. Benedict, and after the morning game they partook of a fine clam bake. The remainder of the day was spent in boating and bathing. Judging from three rousing cheers given the divine on the departure of the boys, it is safe to say that one and all had a glorious time.

The same clubs will match their strength for the second time next Saturday on Boston grounds.

TWENTY MEN ARE KILLED

And About the Same Number Injured -Their Bodies Thrown in Every Direction by the Force of the Concussion-Windows Broken in Many Surrounding Villages-Nothing Left of the Train on Which the Explosive Was Stored-Theories as to the Origin of the Accident.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., May 20.-About two tons of dynamite on a New York construction train exploded near here yesterday, killing tweuty men and injuring about twenty others. The train, consisting of a locomotive and one flat-car, was demolished, and windows of buildings were broken for miles around.

The train, which was in charge of Con-Herrick, was standing in a cut a quarter of a mile south of Tarrytown station. There were twenty-five boxes of dynamite cartridges on the flat-car. This dynamite weighed about two tons, and was to be used for blasting purposes along the road. There were about fifty Italian laborers on the flat-car, and they were just preparing to unload the dynamite when the exploion occurred. The scene which followed cannot be described. A derrick train in command of William Brannigan was passing on a side track at the time, and Brannigan saw an Italian jump from the flat-car on which the boxes of dynamite lay. This Italian evidently knew what was going to happen, as he made a desperate plunge and landed on the side track. He is supposed to have been run over by the derrick train and killed. Brannigan's attention was then attracted to the flat-car. He saw a curl of smoke, heard a rumbling noise and then a terrific explosion. The next instant the Air Was Filled with Human Forms, and the unfortunate Italians were blown Engineer Herrick and Leonard Pan, his fireman, were both blown a distance of twenty feet, where they were found within short distance of each other, alive, but badly hurt. Conductor Connor, who had just got off the train before the explosion ccurred, was thrown a distance of about ten feet. Although badly stunned he was able to get up and walk. John Smith, a brakeman, was on the flat-car and his body was blown to pieces. John Mc-Carthy, who acted as time-keeper, was killed. His body was badly mutilated and was found alongside of the track. Thomas Finnigan, who was foreman of a gang constructing an iron bridge within a few yards of where the flat-car stood, was badly hurt. His men escaped without serious injury. After the smcke of the explosion cleared away, a horrible sight presented itself. Portions of human bodies lay scattered about in every direction. In one place there was a leg and in another an arm, while masses of bone and flesh were strewn over the track and along the sides of the rails. The bodies of some of the victims were blown into a neighboring swamp, and when the water was drawn off, they were found sticking in the mud. The few ersons who lived to give an account of the terrible affair, say they saw a number

Many persons soon reached the place of the wreck, and a score of doctors, who had been telegraphed for, came from neighboring towns. The injured were conveyed to the Tarrytown depot and laid on mattresses which were obtained from the hotels and private houses in the neighbordepot. Engineer Herrick was afterward conveyed to the Tarrytown hospital. Fireman Pan, with five of the wounded Italians, was placed on a special train and conveyed to Bellevue hospital.

Timekeeper John McCarthy, who was killed, had the record of all the Italians gether in submitting the federation who were on the flat-car. It is difficult to state at present how many of the Italians lost their lives. As far as can be learned, twenty men were killed and about twenty wounded. The Italians were known by numbers and each carried a erass tag bearing his number.

Three of the Italians died in the Tarrytown hospital after being removed from the wreck. Ten of the bodies were picked up along the track, while five were victims who died in the depot, were conveyed to Vanderbilt's morgue in Tarry-town village. Rev. Fr. Joseph Tagan of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in gineer Herrick was cut-about the body, had his left leg broken and was also suffering from concussion of the brain. His ecovery is doubtful. Conductor Connor was burned about the face, his left arm was dislocated and he was cut and bruised about the body.

Different theories are advanced as to the cause of the explosion. One is that a rope attached to the flat-car caught fire from the engine, and in this way ignited one of the boxes containing the dynamite cartridges. Another theory is that the fire was communicated to the dynamite car From the strange bold type of this his- tridges by one of the Italians smoking a car was strictly prohibited, and the railwas exploded by concussion in some unac-countable way. About three minutes before the explosion occurred the Chicago limited express, having on board many passengers, passed this point. The Force of the Explosion was heard and felt as far down the river as Yonkers and Spuyten Duyvil and up the river as far as Peekskill. Windows were broken in Irvington, Dobbs' Ferry and villages surrounding Tarrytown. The that its length was 23½ inches from nose force of the explosion was also felt across to end of tail, that its weight was three | the river at Nyack, where buildings were pounds, that its tail was flat and an inch shaken and windows broken. years old and George Heartless is 43 years old. Both are colored and were friends up to about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. About a week ago they indulged in a game of seven up, in which one of them won $1.50. They met again yesterday afternoon, and, during another game, the winner de-manded the money he had previously won. The demand led to hot words, and stc., before they are sent to the wash. the hot words led to blows. Heartless is considerably the smaller of the two, but, notwithstanding, he knocked his opponent down twice. Hart finally got him on the floor and chewed his lower lip completely Patrolmen were called, and both men were taken to station 4, where Hart was locked up on the charge of mayhem. When the two men were brought into the station, Heartless carried his lower lip in his hand. Dr. DeBlois was called to attend him, but so much time had elapsed that it was im possible to replace the severed lip, it having grown cold.

WALL PAPERING

Suggestions to Any Courageous Amateur About to Try a Hand at It. The cost of papering lies nowadays lare in the labor employed. So a sight of the many pretty papers that can be cheaply bought is apt to inspire a housewife with a desire to try her own hand at wall papering. To such an ambitious soul the following hints may be helpful:

one person being required to stand on the nice, the second remaining on the floor to tinct mark on the pattern, repeating itself First, the wall should be well cleaned of paper, four pounds of flour should be heated to a stiff batter with clear, cold water. Then, having a vessel full of boiling water at hand and a vessel containing the batter, large enough to hold two pails full, pour the boiling water upon the batter, stirring it briskly, and the batter will swell and its white color change to a yel-lowish hue. When this occurs stop pouring in the boiling water, and a fine, smooth paste will be found.

It is usual to cut the strip of paper a little longer than is necessary, so that it can be cut off neatly at the base board, after it is put on, as the base board may not be straight nor parallel with the ceiling.

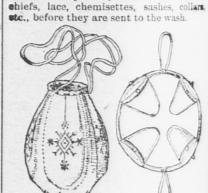

Take care to study the pattern of paper well before you cut it out; then unroll a strip, and lay it face downward on the table, keeping the top of the strip always to your left hand; now paste over well and equally, beginning at the lower end. When about half done fold it over, pasted side to pasted side, while you draw the rest on to the board to finish it, and when one strip is prepared mount the steps, attach it gently to the wall overhead, while the assistant draws down the doubled up piece. When quite straight, dab the edges with a clean cloth and sweep lightly with a clean cloth, or a soft, long haired brush, all wrinkles before you from left to right. Lastly, loosen up the bottom of the strip sufficiently to cut it off the right length, and press back in place again. Begin your work away from the window, Suspension of the Davis Shoe Company of Boston and Lynn.

Boston, May 20 .- The Davis Shoe comany, with offices at No. 92 Summer street, Boston, made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors late yesterday after noon to Moses Williams of Brookiine and B. F. Spinney of Lynn. Hon. Joseph Davis of Lynn, formerly president of the company, and still largely interested in it, also made a personal assignment.

Messrs. Houghton & Godfrey of Lynn, ealers in cut soles, who are largely involved in the Davis Shoe company's affairs, were also forced to make an assign ment, which they did, also naming Mr. Spinney as the assignee.

At this writing nothing definite can be stated as to the amount of the liabilities and assets, although it was rumored late last night that the liabilities would not fall far short of $1,500,000.

At Mme. Recamier's. The salon of Mme. Recamier was not in any sense philosophical or polit. ical, but after the cruel persecution of La Harpe, the banishment of Mme. de Stael, and the similar misfortunes of other friends, her sympathies were too strong for her diplomacy, and it gradually fell into the ranks of the opposition. But the position in which one is most divested of fortune and living in the simplest manner, she preserved for near thirty years the fading traditions of the old salons. Through all the changes which tried her fortitude and revealed the latent heroism of her character, she seems to have kept her sweet serenity unbroken, bending to the passing storms with the grace of a facile nature, but never murmuring at the inevitable. One may find in this inflexible strength and gentleness of temper a clew to the subtle fascination which held the devoted friendship of so many gifted men and wemen long after the fresh charm of youth was gone. - Amelia Gere Mason in Century.

Any One Putting a Mooring, Boat or Any Other Thing on the Flats,

At a public hearing hearing before the run as last season by Mrs. H. H. Connor. "Mass. Board of Harbor and Land Commissioners," a very important question was are at the "Loretto" cottage. settled on Thursday, May 14th, 1891, which has been in dispute for a long time.

It appears the matter was brought to the attention of the Board by Mr. Wm. T. Meek a permanent resident, and Dr. Robert Disbrow a summer resident, of Atlantic. These two gentlemen owning property adjoining each other on the beach at the foot of Appleton street, Atlantic.

ownership of the flats." Both Mr. Meek ciled there with his family. and Dr. Disbrow claimed they possessed these rights as far as fronting on their upland property was concerned. But on He has several rooms engaged for the seathe other hand they were vigorously disputed by a gentleman from Boston, a Mr. Henry A. Chase, electrician of the Boston Police Staff, who claimed to be merely a summer boarder at the cottage owned by Mrs. Eaton, which adjoins the property of Dr. Disbrow, with Appleton street dividing the two lots. It appears that at Mrs. Eaton's place they have built a landing stage and raft, and a number of lockers on in the village and elsewhere.

The cause which led to the hearing was brought about in this way: Mr. Chase gave a young man by the name of Edwin Pope, owning a boat, instructions to put front of his house. This of course was day evening. objected to by Mr. Meek, who happened to be on the spot, and an eye witness of the proceeding. But the young man, trusting in Mr. Chase's authority, heeded not Mr. Meek's remark: "Have you got per-

Hence the matter was brought before the Board of State Commissioners for settle-

At the hearing H. A. Chase, Edwin Pope, Mr. Lothrop (commonly called Quincy), Mr. Drew and son, Mr. Badger, Mr. DeHuff, Everett M. Pope and others testified to right to place mooring on the beaches. They claimed that for years they had used the flats and waters of Quincy bay, dropping stone moorings, logs, etc., in any part of the bay and on any flats they chose, without any interference from any one.

It must be remembered that previous to this year at this particular spot no permanent residences were located on the beach. so that the owners of the upland fields were not disturbed at all by the moorings and boats being located on the flats. But now, since Mr. Meek has built a house for himself and another for Prof. William Briggs, the case is different.

The people mooring on their flats are a ville. source of danger, Mr. Meek says, to say nothing of the nuisance in other ways, as they are not the most desirable class of people one would wish to have congregated tance in the new congressional district? in front of their houses and within hearing distance of their conversation.

The hearing was closed by the board summing up in brief, and warning Mr. Chase and all the other boating people present that they were "offending against the law, if any one put a mooring, boat or any other thing whatever on Mr. Meek's or Dr. Disbrow's flats against their wishes or without their consent; that they were absolute owners of the flats in front of their upland property down to low-water mark, and the boat and mooring in question must be moved at once."

This was a sad blow to these people, who have hitherto thought they controlled the rights of the bay aud no one had any right to interfere with them. Incidental to the hearing was another important decision made by the board, and "All the logs attached to the moorings in the bay must be removed, as they are dangerous to life in navigation. Small barrels or cans must replace them." This being the usual mode of mooring elsewhere.

Bitten by a Dog.

This morning as David Wilbur and George W. Kenison were about to enter the barn of August Weeden, on Washington street, a large bull dog owned by Mr. Weeden which was chained near the door flew at them biting Mr. Kenison in the calf of the leg, making a bad wound. Mr. Wilbur was also bitten on the leg but not as badly as Mr. Kenison.

Nitro-Glycerine After Death. There has just occurred in the city of Spartansburg, S. C., one of the most remarkable cases of recovery, in which a well known citizen has been snatched from the very grasp of death. A special from that city says: For several months Mr. W. H. Posey has been suffering from a severe attack of jaundice with delegation—that the negative be put more other troublesome complications. He forcibly by the chair. grew worse and worse until his friends lost all hope of his recovery. His brother, Dr. Posey, was sent for. Indiscretion in diet brought on convulsions, and to all appearances he died. His breathing ceased, his pulse stopped, and his brother turned away and said it was all over.

Then Dr. Hill proposed to inject nitroglycerine into his arm. If he was dead it could do no harm. He did so, and in a few minutes the heart began to beat, the lungs to respire and the pulse to throb, and he was again a live man. The jaundice is now under control, and there is every prospect of Mr. Posey's recovery. Of course, the nitro-glycerine could not arrest death under all circumstances. In this case the cause of death was heart failure, and the powerful medicine restored its action.

But for this Mr. Posey would now be a dead man. Those who were present say the effect was wonderful. Dr. Hill used this remedy once before.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Woman's Greatest Danger.

The great element of danger with woman's progress before the public lies in this fact: that it takes women away from home who ought to be there and nowhere else. The public platform is no place for a mother who has either sons or daughters to educate. If woman's progress is going to tend in that direction, then the sooner that advancement stops the better. The first thought of a wife or a mother should be her home; all things, no matter how important, are secondary to that. No matter how rampart may become certain public evils, let her see to it that she Incubation by Wholesale.

A Ukiah man, the owner of a three story hop house, recently conceived the idea of turning the building into a mammoth incubator for the hatching of chickens. In a few weeks he had the place in condition, and the furnace was set to work on a setting of 6,000 eggs. At the expense of a cord and a half of wood between 1,500 and 2,000 chickens were chirping in the hop house at the end of the period of incubation. This is not a very good average for a first class incubator, but it is thought that with the exercise of more care better results can be obtained. The Ukiah man has given evidence of his faith in the practicability of the scheme by setting a second hatch of 24,000 eggs.—Petaluma Imprint.

CINCINNATI, May 21.—It was after 10 o'clock when the Industrial convention was called to order. Rev. Dr. Gilbert Delamatyr offered a fervent supplication for Divine aid and support for the new movement, which was punctuated by numerous "amens" from the audience. The report of the committee on credentials, which was next presented, showed that thirtyfour states and territories were represented by 1417 delegates having proper credentials. Kansas headed the list with 411, Ohio second, with 317; Indiana had 154, Illinois 88, Kentucky 59, Nebraska 94, Texas 26, Minnesota 30, Wisconsin 21, Missouri 73.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was heard, and then Mrs.Helen Gougar of Indiana was brought forward and given an opportunity to express sympathy with the movement and plead for a prohibition plank in the convention's platform. She was generously

Senator Peffer was at this point introduced as permanent chairman of the convention and was given a flattering reception. He declared that to be called to preside over a body like this, convened under such extraordinary circumstances, was a most distinguished honor. The assemblage before him he proclaimed one of the most important ever convened on American soil.

A long debate was occasioned by the report of the committee on rules and order, mainly directed to the question whether each state should bote as a unit or whether each delegate should be entitled to a voice. The latter method was decided upon by a large majority, the result being

A Victory for the Third Party Men. A letter from L. L. Polk, which was read, advising this conference to issue an address and deferaction on a third party until 1892, caused a breeze, and when a motion to refer it to the committee on resolutions was declared carried, there was a loud demand-notably from the Minnesota

Mr. Fish of Minnesota argued that Mr. that it showed how useless it would be to refer the third party question to the meeting in 1892, at which Polk and his followers will be leading spirits. Ignatius Donnelly climbed upon the rostrum at this juncture and made a declaration which set the convention wild, to the effect that he was there to report that the committee on platform was a unit for organization of a third party. Two alternatives were presented, he said: Either to ignore a third party or divide the friends

He gave way to Robert Schilling of Wisconsin, who read the platform as follows: The Platform.

Your committee on resolutions begs leave to submit the following: 1. That in view of the great social, industrial and economical revolution now dawning upon the civilized world, and the new and living issues confronting the American people, we believe that the time has arrived for a rystallization of the political reform force

Several delegates moved the adoption of Fresh the report, one suggesting that it be by a rising vote. "Question, question," came from all parts of the hall. But the pent up enthusiasm had to have vent, and one after another of the orators relieved themselves, the delegates from time to time calling on the prominent men in the convention-Weaver, Willetts and others. "Previous question," shouted the delegates, but it had no effect on an irrepressible Texan, who was bound to speak his piece. When he had finished, the chairman's gavel fell like a trip hammer and order was finally restored. The platform proper, exclusive of the resolutions, was

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Boards and Commission Bill Defeated by the Senate-Question of Prison Management-Gubernatorial Appointments, Boston, May 21 .- At the weekly meeting of the executive council Dr. Joseph I. McLaughlin of Boston was nominated physician and surgeon at the state prison, vice C. D. Sawin resigned. Thomas J. Cobb of New Bedford was reappointed clerk of the First district court of Bristol; Elmer H. Capen of Somerville, member of the state board of education; and Horace G. Wadlin of Reading, chief of the bureau of statistics of labor. In the senate, Mr. McNary moved to amend the report (no legislation necessary) by the substitution of a bill providing that the governor may at any time remove members of the state boards and commissions for cause. Mr. McNary argued that the existing commissions are but partly responsible to the body which created them, and entirely independent of the governor. The people look to the governor for the remedying of existing abuses, and therefore he should have the power to carry out the wishes of the public. The council, he said, might be dispensed with to morrow, and the government would go on, equally as well. The main effect of the council is to defeat the will of the people in its power over appointments. Mr West thought the substitute was in the direction of reform with a very small "r." Mr. Pinkerton said that the bill was about as near one-man power as it was possible to come.

The motion to substitute was lost-20 to to 20, including pairs (a strictly party division)—and the report of the committee was adopted.

The house bill to prohibit the issuing of certain obligations was reported in a new draft by the committee on bills in third reading. Mr. Raymond asked for a suspension of the rule, so that the bill might be recommitted. Recommitment was option was rejected-10 to 14. The new draft was substituted.

The amendment to the bond investment bill, previously adopted, exempting certain associations, was struck out and the bill engrossed.

In the House.

Mr. Tucker moved to reconsider the en-grossment of the bill for the appointment and removal of the prison commissioners, warden and other state prison officers. He thought it was a crude bill. By 56 to 37 the house voted to reconsider. Mr. Bullock moved to refer the bill to the prison committee, as they had never acted upon it. Mr. Sohier raised the point of order that no joint matter could be recommitted | A mowing machine was carried about 100 after the fourth Wednesday of March and the point was sustained. Mr. Bullock moved to suspend the rule, but the motion failed, 56 yeas to 37 nays-not the necessary two-thirds. Mr. Howe moved to strike out the power of the prison commissioners to remove the warden, chaplain feathers. Spokes of wagon wheels were and physician and surgeon., Mr. Sohier opposed the motion. If the warden is to have power to remove his underlings, the commissioners should have power to remove the warden. Others spoke against the amendment and it was defeated. On 81 yeas to 27 navs.

The house admitted a resolution of Mr. Emery instructing the Massachusetts managers at the Chicago fair to regard the New England traditions respecting the sanctity of the Christian Sabbath.

The house reconsidered the engrossment of the municipal lighting bill, adopted an amendment similar to that offered by Mr. Quincy on Tuesday, and again engrossed

A DOZEN PERSONS KILLED

And an Equal Number Fatally Injured-Houses, Barns and Much Other Prop. erty Destroyed-Storm Covered a Distance of Twelve Miles.

MEXICO, Mo., May 21 .- A terrific tornado passed three miles northeast of this place at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon i the vicinity of Bean Creek. So far as known fifteen houses were destroyed some ten or twelve persons killed, an equal number fatally injured and large numbers badly injured. At the house of Farmer Duffy, John Dorger and family were liv ing. James Dorger, aged 6, was killed outright; Lizzie Dorger was fatally hur and died in a few minutes. Her skull was crushed and a large piece of timber penetrated her side. Mrs. Dorger was crushed to death by falling timbers and Mr. Dorger was fatally injured. The house was entirely swept away. Nothing has been heard of Mr. Duffy. The Duffy barn was blown down and two horses were killed.

At the house of William Stranberry William Yostranger and family were visit ing. The house was swept bodily away William Yostranger was killed, his wife was badly injured and his little girl was fatally injured. At the house of Ed Norris, Gertrude Fletcher, a daughter of B. S. Fletcher, was instantly killed. E. B. Norris was fatally injured. Caleb Norris and his wife were badly hurt. Willie Fletcher and his sister Kate were instant killed. At the same place Mrs. Emily Seal, a widow, aged 60, was fatally hurt and Mrs. Norris, the mother of E.B.Norris, was killed. F. S. Norris was badly hurt.

The house of T. B. Hall was blown down, but the family escaped. A horse standing in the road was picked up by the wind,

Several farm hands are also believed to have been killed. James Dillard's house was blown down. yards and wrecked. A large iron roller weighing 1200 pounds was taken up and broken to pieces. A calf was lifted from the ground and carried over a quarter of a mile. Several horses were killed and twenty-five chichens were plucked clean of twisted and broken. The cyclone continued east, passing Rush Hill, one mile north, carrying destruction everywhere. There is no doubt that great loss of property and life has occurred further east. Great trees were taken up by the roots and blown off. The scene at these places is horrible in the ex-

E. B. Merry said: "When I first noticed the storm the wind blew a gale, Iwas holding my baby in my arms when the cyclone struck the house. I was dashed against the house and the baby was carried a hundred yards and dashed against a tree. I picked it up and went back to the house to find my family scattered in every Took Everything in Its Path. St. Louis, May 21 .- A terrific hail storm near Gainesville, Tex., has damaged a section about fifty miles in length and from two to five miles in width. The crops were destroyed and houses, fences and orchards were laid waste by the wind in every locality visited by the storm. Rabbits, birds and other small animals were killed by thousands by the hail, but no person is reported as having been hurt. The total loss will reach $500,000.

They Print Our Money.

NEW YORK, May 21 .- A strike of the steel plate printers employed by the American Bank Note company was begun Tuesday, but the fact did not leak out until yesterday. The men are employed chiefly on government work, and should the strike be a prolonged one, serious inconvenience to both the public and government may ensue. About 150 men are affected. The men have several grievances, chief among which are the use of steam presses and the employment of nonunion men.

Richmond Branch Goes Under. RICHMOND, Va., May 21.-The Davis Shoe company, a corporation chartered in Maine, which operates an extensive factory at the state penitentiary in this city, made an assignment yesterday. Liabilities of the Richmond branch, $125,000. The company has been in business here for the past eight years, employing more than 600 convicts. It has several branch shops in southern states. The headquarters of the company are in Lynn, Mass.

City of Paris on Duty Again. NEW YORK, May 21.-The Inman liner City of Paris arrived here yesterday from Liverpool, having made the run from Queenstown to Sandy Hock in 6 days, 1 hour, 56 minutes. This is her first trip since she met with the accident off the coast of Ireland last spring. Her average speed on this trip was 19.85 knots an hour. Among her passengers were Hon. E. W. Halford, President Harrison's private sec retary, and Miss Halford.

Liabilities Over $600,000 NEW HAVEN, May 21.—The total liabilities of Bunnell & Scranton, bankers and brokers, are over $600,000; assets about 8400,000. The assets include the late Mr. Bunnell's seat in the New York Stock Exchange, which is valued at about 80,000, and an insurance of $17,000 which Mr. Bunnell carried in the interest of the firm. It is thought that a dividend of at least 30 per cent. can be paid. Rumors in Plenty. CITY OF MEXICO, May 21.—All kinds of preposterous rumors about the Chilian and American warships are published by the smaller newspapers. El Correo Tarde, a newspaper published at Mazatlan, asserts that the Blanco Encalada has been

PHILADELPHIA, May 21.-James G. Fogarty, the well-known base ball player, died here yesterday of consumption. He was 26 years old and lived in Los Angelos, Cal.

He came east in 1884, and joined the Philadelphia National League club, and played with them until last season, when he joined the Philadelphia Players' League club. He had about concluded negotiations in February last to play this season with the Pittsburg club when taken sick. Fogarty was one of Spalding's base ball tourists, who made the trip around the world in the winter of 1888-89

CLEVELAND, May 20.—Every spectator was more than satisfied with to-day's game. It was the greatest batting exhibition of the season, in which Cleveland had the better of it. A sensational catch by Davis, wonderful work by McAleer, and a triple play by Boston, were the features of the game. Powers umpired poorly.

When I was sixteen years of age I you." paid a visit to an uncle and an aunt of He was gone. Doubtless he only shut my father's, who lived on the family estate in Scotland. My granduncle was Jackanapes ceased to shudder. I left well to do in this world's goods, and had the saddle, though I was hardly able to had leisure to devote his life to scientific move for my wet skirts, and stood by his side and his side. Instantly the stranger was at discoveries. He had an exceedingly well arranged laboratory, and dabbled in everything. He was at the read pursuits and to write about his ideas and everything. He was, perhaps, of a more practical turn of mind than most scientists, for he not only theorized and experimented, but turned his knowledge to account, and thereby made his home rather alarming to ignoramuses. Doors opened and shut, and bells rang, seemingly as he willed them. He had made of electricity a sort of servant of all proceeding "uncanny," and my aunt confided to me that it was a most expensive illumination.

"However," she added, "a man should be master in his own house, and has a right to spend his money as he pleases, so I say nothing."

For her part she liked going about "among the poor"—not to give alms. Scottish poor folk seldom want that. for young housemaids and lent small sums of money to be paid back in driblets when the honest folk could do it. She worked in the right way, and left them their self respect. Mere charity never does that. The house was well furnished with articles that would enrapture those who are bitten with the present madness for "old things." Square rugs lay on the polished oaken floors, and great orange trees grew in tubs in each of the six windows of the drawing room. Outside, in summer, was a gay little flower gar-It was, however, not a pretty part of the country. It was grand and solemn. Beyond lay mountains apt to be covered with dim, gray mist. Nearby a loch, the waters of which seldom sparkled, and in dull weather seemed perfectly black, and from the heights on which my uncle's dwelling stood, a road descended into a valley, deep and lonely, walled about with great rocks, its vegetation sparse and coarse, and lying here and there so many mighty bowlders that one could fancy giants had hurled them at each other in the course of some tremendous fight. Far away, above all, arose a tall, curious shaftlike object, which one could scarcely believe the work of nature. Its local name was Daffy's Darning Needle, and on its summit was an eagle's nest. The eagles were perfectly safe, as the needle was fortable, notwithstanding.

"Oh, me! Oh, me!" I moaned. "I shall never see any of them again! What torrent. It is said he also appeared to a death to die! What a death to die!" At this instant I felt my pony tremble beneath me. He trembled as a human being does in mortal terror, quivered all over, and seemed about to fall to the ground. I uncovered my face. All had been dark when I veiled it in the great horror of seing nothing, but now I saw something-a light which resembled very cold moonlight, so white that one lightful fire, the wine, the handsome might almost call it blue. It shone, host with his white costume and golden strangely enough, at about the height of beard, the wakening among the ruins.

What was it? My blood curdled. I was conscious of that curious condition of skin which either cold or terror will did. "Never fear; he will take care of himself," said the stranger. "Follow me." He led the way. The darkness had concealed from me the fact that I was very near a house. A wide door was flung open. "And afterward you," said I. He bowed gravely, then went toward some great piece of furniture, on which silver seemed to shimmer in the firelight, and brought thence a goblet of wine.

"Drink," he said. I drank. I was warmed, comforted; a sort of dreamy delight stole over me. I heard music; I saw figures pass to and fro. I did not quite comprehend what I saw; a delicious slumber came on the wings of the music and enfolded me. For awhile I was delightfully conscious that I slept. Then I was obliterated.

Cries and shouts aroused me. I struggled to open my eyes. I heard my name, 'Maisie! Maisie!" shouted from afar. I heard the clatter of hoofs. "There! There she is! There she is!" in my uncle's voice.

I saw half a dozen mounted riders approaching over the fresh, sun lit slope of a great hill, and I saw that I sat among rnins, close to the time worn, weather bleached wreck of an old chimney, the high mantel of which projected over my head. The roof of the house was gone; only one wall remained. About me lay stones and mortar, blackened wood and all the tokens of a dwelling destroyed by fire and abandoned for years to the ele-

Authors Who Write Too Much. This idea of "keeping before the public" is a good one, in the main, but it must be done judiciously and by good work. Just here is where nine authors in every ten fail. They think their quality is good, but unconsciously it has become quantity instead. Unwittingly they are training their public, whose eye they caught with some early or striking piece of work, to be perfectly ready to drop them the moment a new star appears upon the literary horizon. Few authors of recent date made so pronounced and instantaneous success as Rudyard Kipling, but the public hardly had time to catch its breath after his first story than along came a second story, a third, and so it has gone on until six of his books are on the market, and a series of injurious newspaper articles in addition-all within one year. The result is that the best judges agree that Kipling is overdoing it.

"Oh, we are having too much of Kipling," is the general opinion. In consequence, the sales of his books are dropping off, and the name of Rudyard Kipling is loosing its magic. The simple fact is that the great gospel of moderation applies to literature as it does to everything else. And, looking at it from a financial standpoint, this moderation pays. A good author, who writes only one story in a year, ofttimes receives more for that single piece of work than does he who writes five or six novels during the same period. No matter how clever an author may be, how well he writes, he cannot afford to overfeed his public. The literary public likes its daintiest desserts in small doses, and then, as in everything else, there is created an appetite for more.-Edward W. Bok in Ladies' Home Journal.

"I'll go you," and the lovers linked their arms and started for the lake. When the couple arrived at the foot of Peck court they threw their arms about each other, lingered for five minutes, and then plunged into the lake. Officer Gilman, of the Harrison street station, saw the pair disappear, and, securing a long pole with an iron hook, stabbed Sam in the pantaloons and dragged him ashore. Then he fished Birdie out. Both were chilled. Sam was taken to the armory station, where he was hung over the steam pipes. Census Population Figures. According to a recent census bulletin, the quantity of land and water surface in the United States is 98.16 and 1.84 per cent. respectively. This bulletin also gives the area of the states and territories by counties, and the classifi

the latter by sizes. The average number of persons to each square mile of the land surface of the Union is 21.08. As illustrative of the sustaining capac ity of the United States, the bulletin says that if Texas, the largest state in the Union, was as thickly populated as the state of Rhode Island, it would have 83,523,628 inhabitants, while if the United States had a density of population equal to that of Rhode Island, the population of the Union instead of being 62,622,250, would reach the enormous sum of 945,766,300, or nearly two-thirds of the present population of the world.

Other Neighboring Towns and Cities are Demanding Them.

The Woburn board of trade on Wednes day, discussed "Sidewalks and How Best to Build and Maintain Them." A committee had visited numerous cities and towns about Boston for the purpose of getting information, which was presented in the form of reports.

Several of the best authorities on the matter were consulted, and their views are of interest.

W. G. Childs of the street commissioners of Waltham says that the sidewalks of that city are built one-sixth the width of the street. No More Guy Policemen.

There was an interesting talk on misfit police uniforms at the meeting of the lieutenants. Superintendent Lamon instructed the lieutenants to return all badly fitting garments to the contractor. as no man would be allowed to go on the street with a misfit uniform, and they would lose pay for each day lost by reason of having imperfect fitting garments.

This laudable desire to show off the Adonislike forms of the policemen brought Lieutenant Thompson to his feet. He thought it would be impossible to get the fits required, as some of his men had returned their clothing twice, and it had come back as baggy and imperfect as when sent. The superintendent informed the dissenting officer that the excuse was not a good one. He said the officers could send the clothing back every day if necessary until it was made to fit, and once more announced that the misfit policemen would lose their day's pay. - Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Maine Man's Luck.

A Milltown man claims the championship for pluck and physical endurance. He has been dissected one limb after another till there is but little of him left. This time it is a toe from his right foot; his left had been pruned before, then the stub cut twice, and afterward the whole foot amputated. He has been cut up in a lath machine, struck by bolts, thrown ward. He gave Corbett several more of the by saws and almost killed. His ribs have been broken by a slab from a bolter, his nose broken and roweled like a horse. His daughter thinks if he loses this foot he caught Jackson hard on the mouth with his he will be a cripple. He is sixty-two left. years old. He got up in the morning, fixed himself up and went down town, saying, as if it was a matter of little consequence, he expected the doctors at 10 o'clock a. m. to cut his toe off. If he should lay claim to the championship for hard luck no one would try to take it of it, giving Jackson several hard right and from him.-Lewiston Journal.

He Raised Apples.

E. N. Nelson, who died lately at his home in Minot at the age of seventy years, was one of the most famous orchardists in Maine. He had special and original methods of storage of fruit, and his pride, in a business way, was in the apple, and especially in the Baldwin. He had an intimacy with the Baldwin that showed in a constant study to produce it in perfection, and to store it for in his vicinity had bade goodby to this variety for the season. His cellars had unique storage apparatus for keeping fruits, and a system of ventilation which took the aggressive in this round, though he was the result of Mr. Nelson's own study.-Kennebec Journal.

IT IS "NO CONTEST."

SIXTY-ONE-ROUND BATTLE,

At the End of Which Neither One is Able to Continue-Jackson Was the Favorite, but Both Men Were in the Pink of Condition

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.-No pugilistic event ever occurred on the Pacific coast that created more interest or excitement than the great heavyweight battle between Jim Corbett of San Francisco and Peter Jackson of Australia, which was fought at the gymnasium of the California Athletic club last night. The purse was $10,000, $1500 of which went to the loser.

The condition of the fighters was all that could be desired. Jackson was the heavier, but in every other respect it was generally admitted that one man possessed little or no advantage over the other. Still Jackson was the favorite in the betting during the week before the fight, at odds ranging from 6 to 10 to 8 to 10. The betting last evening was at about the same odds on Jackson. A large amount of money was wagered on the coast during the last two days. The pool room and other sporting resorts were crowded and there seemed no end of either Jackson or Corbett money.

The California club appointed Hiram Cook referee. Jackson was seconded by Sam Fitzpatrick and Billy Smith; and Corbett's seconds were Billy Delaney, John Donaldson and Harry Corbett. The seating capacity of the gymnasium was about 1200 and it was crowded. The men entered the building at 8 o'clock, and went to their placed on said firm. The walking deledressing room. At 9:30 they entered the ring and time was called for

The First Round.

A few seconds was spent in preliminary sparring. Jackson led lightly and a clinch followed. The men broke away slowly; Jackson led with the right and missed; another clinch followed and Corbett seemed loth to break away. Corbett touched Jackson lightly on the jaw and as the round closed he received a left-hander in the ribs Second round—Corbett led, and in the clinch which followed he forced Jackson against the ropes. When they came to center Jackson led twice but failed to reach his man very hard. Corbett made a vicious half-arm swing, but Jackson jumped away. Corbett then got in one on Jackson's stomach and a moment-later avoided a body blow by dodging.

Third round—Jackson attempted to fight at close range, but Corbett clinched. Both men were wonderfully active on their feet. Considerable feinting followed. Corbett led for Jackson's wind, but missed. Jackson followed Orbett around the ring; the latter laughed as the Australian tried to hit him and failed. Fourth round-The men walked around each other cautiously for a full minute. Every time Corbett led he followed it with a clinch. He landed on Jackson's side three or four times and received nothing in return. The men were fighting at very close quarters. Fifth round—Jackson caught Corbett lightly on the ribs, and then played carefully for an opening. Corbett forced him into his corner, but in the rally which followed, Jackson had the better of it. Both men still smiling. Corbett led hard for Jackson's stomach, but Sixth round-Jackson caught his man lightly on the jaw, when the round opened, but nothing was done for the next minute. Jackson was forcing, but Corbett's dodging was very clever. He caught a good one on his side and then leaded hand on Lackson's jaw, with his then landed hard on Jackson's jaw with his Seventh round-Both men were extremely careful. Corbett jumped away from several of Jackson's straight-arm leads. Jackson was on the aggressive, but there was no opening offered that he could take advantage of.

Eighth round—The round opened like previous ones with Jackson doing the leading. Neither man seemed at all distressed; Corbett forced Jackson to the ropes, but could do noth-ing. He soon reached Jackson hard on the ear, however, and the round closed.

Ninth round—Corbett again reached Mackon's side, but not hard. Jackson then landed n the other man's chin, and followed up with a hard rap on Corbett's wind. Jim gave him a hard one of the same kind as the round

Tenth round-Jackson reached Corbett's neck twice hard. Corbett drove for the other's wind, but missed as he held himself too far back when he led.

Eleventh round—Corbett continued to fight for Jackson's stomach, but the latter warded him off well. A short rally followed in one of the corners, but no harm was done. Jackson eleverly avoided several hard ones from Cor-Twelfth round-Corbett again landed twice on Jackson's stomach and jumped away from a swift drive at his jaw. The battle up to this time had been decidedly a scientific one, and looked as if it would continue so for some time. If there was any difference in the men Jackson was a little fresher. Thirteenth round—Jackon made a short right-hand jab and landed on Corbett's left arm; Corbett put his left lightly on to Jackson's jaw. He then swung his left viciously for the head, but Jackson jumped away. Fourteenth round—Both feinted swiftly and frequently, but neither made any effort to lead for some time; then Corbett jabbed Jack son on the chin. The latter next led for the head, but Corbett ducked.

Fifteenth round-Little was done during this Sixteenth round-Corbett led savagely for the wind, but Jackson escaped; the men ex-changed a few light blows, and near the close Jim caught his man heavily on the jaw twice. Seventeenth round—Corbett landed with his left on the throat. Jackson then caught Corbett hard on the chest, knocking him backsame kind and received a light one in the jaw

Eighteenth round-Corbett landed heavily on the side, and as the round was about to close Nineteenth round-Jackson swung his left with great force, but Corbett ducked. Jack-son then reached Corbett's ribs with a sharp blow and gave him a good jab in the chin.

Twentieth round—Corbett knocked Jackson back with a short punch in the throat, then forced him into a corner, and in the rally which followed Corbett had decidedly the best lefts in the jaw.

Twenty-first round—Jackson gave Corbett a hard one on the jaw, but received about as good a one in return. Nothing further was accomplished till the twenty-sixth round, when Corbett gave Jackson a sharp left hander in the stom-It was give and take in the next two and the spectators became impatient, Jackson seemed the stronger of the two at the end of the thirty-ninth round.

Round forty.—Jackson struck Corbett in the jaw and received a punch in the wind.
Round forty-one—There was a rally in which both men landed several times. Jackson did most of the forcing and landed two heavy rights on Corbett's wind and heart.

The men resumed their walking in the next two rounds. Corbett plainly the weaker of the two. Jackson's lips were a little swollen, while Corbett showed little punishment. Little was done up to the forty-ninth round. At the end of the sixtieth round there was much confusion and shouts for a draw. The sixty-first was, as usual, a walking match. At its close Referee Cook "Both these men have declared that they cannot fight any more; you see it for your-selves, so I declare this no contest." This decision leaves the men at the Walking Delegates' Demands Result in a Hitch in the Settlement of the Lumber Yards Boycott in Gotham.

NEW YORK, May 22.—The lumber yards are still tied up, and not a foot of lumber can be bought in this city or neighborhood, not even in Albany, notwithstanding the fact that the boycott was declared off by the board of walking delegates on Tuesday night, and the yards were expected to be opened yesterday. This state of affairs is due to the failure of the walking delegates to fulfill toe agreement they made with the committee of the Lumber Dealers' association on Tuesday night. The advisory committee of the Lumber Dealers' association met to receive and act upon the report of their sub-committee, who had received from walking delegates the night before the written notices that the strike in Buckie & Co.'s yard had been ordered off, and that no boycott had been gates asked for an interview with the advisory committee. This the advisory committee refused to grant, but they appointed a sub-committee of three to meet the walking delegates.

The delegates asked as a condiffon for the withdrawal of the strike, the discharge by the lumber dealers of all the non-union men who had been engaged during the strike, and the re-engagement of all the union men who had been discharged or locked out. The advisory committ e positively refused to grant the dema d. The walking delegates thereupon de anded the return of the letters they had posted to the lumber dealers' committee the night before: but the demand was, of course, not complied with.

IN BEHALF OF HOME RULE.

Prominent Irishmen Form the "National Federation of America."

NEW YORK, May 22.-A new organiza tion was formed here last night to help the cause of home rule in Ireland. It was the result of an extended tour throughout this country and Canada by Dr. Joseph F. Fox, M. P., who has held conferences with leading Irish-Americans in many cities. The meeting included prominent Irishmer from this city, Boston, Worcester, Lowell and Lawrence, Mass.; Manchester, N. H.; Rhode Island and other parts of the country. They decided to call the new organization the National Federation of America. Its object is to raise funds to promote the cause of Irish home rule, and all funds raised are to be controlled by a body of nine trustees, a majority of whom shall have power to transmit money to Ireland. Dr. Thomas A. Emmett of this city was chosen president, and Eugene Kelly treas

Resolutions were adopted stating that the first and paramount duty is to relieve the distress of the evicted tenantry of Ireland, and demanding that Justin Mc-Carthy and Charles Stewart Parnell apropriate all money now on deposit is Paris for such relief. It is expected that branches of the society will be formed thoughout the country.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Irish Parliamentary Fund asssociation authorized Eugene Kelly to at once forward $15,000 in his hands to a committee, consisting of Archbishop Croke and Justin McCarthy, for distribution among the tenants.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE. Land Statistics-The Taxation Bills-

The Street Franchise Controversy Disposed of by the House. Boston, May 22 .- The senate concurred in the house amendments to the resolve relative to appropriating $75,000 for the state's participation in the Columbian fair. The senate refused to concur in the admission of the house resolve instructing the World's fair managers of Massachusetts to pay due regard to the traditions of New England as to the sanctity of the Christian Sabbath.

The bill relating to reinsurance of fire risks was passed to be engrossed, with perfecting amendments. Mr. Howard spoke in favor of the resolve providing for the collection by the bureau ot statistics of labor of certain statistics relative to land held in Boston and vicinity for speculative purposes and relative to the condition of families residing in rented tenements. Mr. Southwick for the treasury committee, spok: of the difficulty of obtaining the information sought. The resolve provided no appropriation, and it was estimated that to obtain the information would cost $100,000; furthermore there was no penalty prescribed, without which the information could not be secured. Mr. Coveney was in sympathy with the purpose underlying the resolve, and if a proper oill is passed there is no reason why the facts sought cannot be obtained. He suggested that the resolve might be recommitted. Mr. Southwick said Mr. Wadlin told the committee that bill was not practiced; therefore the committee was obliged to report against it. The senate refused to reject the resolve.

The finance committee reported ought to pass on the senate bill for a Charles river commission, but with an amendment that the expenses shall not exceed $3000; ought to pass in a new draft on the bill to accept the grant of money from the United States for the Agricultural college.

Bail was furnished. She spent Wednesday night in the police station, her parents making no efforts to have her released on bail, and in the court room she sobbed bitterly, the sight touching the hearts of the officers and all who were present. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has been notified, and the district court committee of the Salem branch of the Massachusetts Prison association has been urged to do all in their power to save her. It is claimed that she had been employed in the mill, where she earned $2.30 a week, contrary to law, as no permit had been granted by the truancy committee for her to work there. In the court room a stockholder of the Naumkeag mills stated that the directors were liable to be indicted for having employed a girl so young. It is thought that she will be sent to some institution where she will be cared for and educated.

CAPTIVITY OF ISRAEL

LESSON VIII, SECOND QUARTER, IN. TERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 24.

Text of the Lesson, II Kings xvii, 6-18, Commit Verses, 16-18-Golden Text, II Chron. xxiv, 20-Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

(Compiled from Lesson Helwer Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadel.

6. "In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria took Samaria, and carried Isra away into Assyria."

After more than 250 years of continued rebellion against God, during which time nineteen kings reigned over them, not one of whom did right in the sight of the Lon Shalmanezer, king of Assyria, besieged Samaria, the capital of Israel (I Kings IV) 24) in the sixth year of Hoshea, and after three years took it and carried Israel into captivity (vs. 1-5). That God would do this if they refused to obey Him He had plainly foretold by His servant Moses (Lev. xxvi, 27-33; Deut. xxviii, 63, 64), and by the prophets He had given them many a warning, so that they were without excuse.

7. "For so it was, that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, etc."

TREASURY RECEIPTS Don't Forget that we sell for Cash Only,

Rumor Concerning the Itata Denied Gen. Raum Hasn't Resigned, and Top Round Steak, Doesn't Intend To-A Commission Appointed to Investigate Immigration.

WASHINGTON, May 22. - Mr. Mason, commissioner of internal revenue, has pre pared a statement showing that for the month of April,1891, receipts from internal revenue decreased as compared with April, 1890, $2,190,695. For the ten months ended April 30, the increase in collections of principal items compared with the corresponding ten months of the preceding year, were: Spirits, $2,448,358; tobacco, $434,993; fermented liquors, $2,168,084; oleomargarine. $239,845. Commenting on the decreased receipts during the past month, Commissioner Mason says: It will be noticed that there is a decrease in the receipts for special taxes on rectifiers, wholesale and retail liquor dealers, and manufacturers of stills for the month of April of $1,254,389; in special taxes on brewers and wholesale and retail dealers of malt liquors of $115,425, and in special taxes on manufacturers of and wholesale and retail dealers in oleonargarine of $11,880, making an aggregate loss rom these items of $1,381,690. This is due to the fact that the last congress changed the special tax year so as to commence on July 1 instead of May 1. Collectors, therefore, on May 1 collected only two months' taxes from May 1 to July 1, instead of twelve months'

The total amount of special taxes collected during the last fiscal year was $7,356,063 Congress, however, has repealed all the special taxes relating to cigars and tobacco, thus taking off $1,515,481, leaving a balance of special taxes which would have been payable the first of May, but for this change in the law, of $5,-826,682. So that of nearly $6,000,000 being due on May 1, there was in fact less than $1,000,000, May I was paid in April, there was a decrease in special taxes for Mr. y of $1,381,694. This will be made up, however, in the months of June and July, when taxes for the new fiscal year will be collected. There is a decrease in the amount collected from tobacco and snuff as compared with the amount collected during the same months of the last fiscal year. This is due to the change in this law reducing the tax from 8 to 6 cents per pound. Notwithstanding all of these reductions, there is still an increase in these reductions, there is still an increase in the total amount collectel of $5,399,482 for the ten months ended April 30, 1891, as compared with the same months of the previous year.

The President Watching Finances. The president is taking an active inter st in the financial condition of the treas ury, and has directed that he be furnished with an estimate of the probable revenue from all sources for the next fiscal year, based on the changes made by the last congress in the customs and internal revenue laws. The result of the changes are now becoming apparent in the daily receipts of the treasury department. The customs receipts show a continued falling off, the receipts from this source, by statement issued at the treasury yesterday, for the first twenty days in May, being less at the port of New York by $1,690,934 than they were for the corresponding pe-riol of last May. The same ratio of decrease is reported at o her ports. Internal revenue receipts also show a decrease, but not so marked. The American seal pirates are recruiting not surplus in the treasury, despite the decrosse in receipts, is crawling up, the drain from direct tax expenditures being almost over, and at the close of business yesterday was more than $15,000,000.

The treasury statement is sued vesterday shows that the treasury had, May 20, $262,057,483 in gold bullion and coin, being a decrease since the first of the month of more than $12,000,000, and since Jan. 1 of more than $32,000,000.

COLLECTIONS THAT MANUFACTUR ING CONCERNS HOARD.

Why the First Production of a Machine or a Piece of Ornamental Ironwork Cost Many Times More Than Subsequent Du plicates-Government Plates.

Fortunes are invested in models and patterns used in various branches of manufactures. The pattern room of any of the large iron molders or machine shops that have been long in operation presents an array of woodwork that has cost a good deal of money. Take, for in- which the pupils of the master carried on stance, the iron front of a building. The | their studies, and had to grind the colors, various columns, panels, cornices, sills | clean the palettes and wait on the youths. and ornaments have all been made in wood, which is used to mold the sand in which the iron is cast.

Generally the cost of the patterns is paid for on the first order. Subsequent orders for castings of the same patterns are executed more cheaply because the patterns are ready made. Sometimes the foundry owns the patterns and supplies duplicates to all customers, but in many cases owners of buildings prefer to own their own patterns, so that no other building may look like theirs.

The preservation and duplication of patterns is a feature and source of great profit in many manufacturing operations. It is a characteristic of all kinds of printing. The type founder procures matrices of various fonts of type at great cost, but having once secured his mold he can go on producing any number of duplicates at trifling cost. The first cost of the mold is the main cost, compared with which the cost of metal and casting when day after day they found additions, is trifling. The same is true of all pro- and sometimes corrections, made on their cesses of printing pictures.

The wood engraving, the lithographic stone, the steel plate, all cost much at the outset, but, being once produced, they may be duplicated by various processes at comparatively trifling cost. Thus a picture may be sold for a profit at a penny, although to produce the first one may have cost thousands of dollars. GOVERNMENTAL PATTERNS.

The application of duplicating processes to the building trade has worked an about it, as he slept in the room every industrial revolution. It is true that one result is to produce buildings much alike. The designs for doors, windows, stairways, stoops, vestibules, towers, locks, bolts, mantels, sideboards, pier glasses, cornices, and, in fact, all parts of a building are used over and over again, and the cost of building is therefore much cheapened. The fact is that many parts of buildings may be purchased ready made and in any desired quantities, and buildings constructed of such material are put up very cheaply. But when new designs are needed, odd shapes, fancy styles, novel ornamentation, the cost is greatly increased.

Before the war all the paper money in the United States was printed by private companies, who owned all the plates and patterns. Even the United States government did not own the plates from which its notes were printed, and in one | Sebastian only asked for his father's free famous case the counterfeiter, by subterfuge, procured from these private parties, giving him his own liberty also, received for a nominally honest purpose, the use of the devices used in printing a United guished himself and became a celebrated States treasury note; and the devices thus fraudulently obtained were actually used to produce a spurious treasury note, which was in many respects an exact duplicate of the original. That risk led to the adoption of a new plan by which, when the government got any notes printed, the contractors were compelled to surrender all the designs, patterns, dies and plates used to produce the issue, so that they could not by any possibility be used for any but legiti-mate purposes. Ultimately that led to the establishment of the bureau of engraving and printing, and the government now controls all the patterns of its paper money in the same way that it controls the dies of its metal coinage. The expense of steel engraving is so great that it is only by duplicating and using the same design again and again that it is made who makes five wins the game. expense is very great. There are a thousand and one ways of using the same pattern for duplication in various branches of industry. The most beautiful products of the sculptor's art are duplicated in plaster. The modern parlor stove is a marvel of the use of models in castings. Lots of things are stamped. All kinds of brass and tin ware-pots, pans, kettles, ash cans, waiters, dishes and the thousand articles of domestic use that are made from metals-go through the stamping machine. The very best talent is therefore used to produce the original patterns. Sometimes artists of very high repute, who would be very much averse to have it known that they do purely commercial work, are tempted to furnish designs or pictures for advertising purposes, and occasionally they are so good that their excellence betrays the Stealing patterns is one of the unpunished crimes of the age. When a great firm of American jewelers showed at the Paris exposition an entirely novel set of jewelry made to imitate the rarest and most exquisitely formed and colored orchids, the Frenchmen stole the idea at once and had copies out in a few weeks.

MURILLO'S MULATTO

How the Little Slave Became a Celebrated Painter.

The famous Spanish painter, Murillo, had a little mulatto boy named Sebastian, the son of Gomez, a negro slave. The little fellow was employed in the workroom in MURILLO'S LITTLE SLAVE BOY. One morning one of the students found part of his work completed which he had left unfinished the previous day, and the amazement of the young men increased canvases. They accused each other of tampering with their work in their absence, but this was denied, and matters reached a climax when one of them, who had begun a picture of the Descent from the Cross, on going to his work in the morning found the head of the Madonna painted in it. How it got there they could not tell, and it was better than they could have painted. So they told the master and showed him the head. He was surprised at its excellence, and thinking Sebastian must know night, he told the boy that unless he found out the unknown artist by the following morning he should be whipped.

The poor little negro was in an agony of terror, for he himself was the mysterious painter. It appeared that he had a natural genius and great love for art, so had secretly studied and painted on the canvases of the students before they arrived in the morning. Fearing punishment if he was found out he decided to expunge the Madonna's head and never paint any more. When early the next morning he looked at the beautiful face he had not the heart to rub it out, but set to work to finish it instead. So absorbed was he as the time went by that it was only on hearing a rustle behind him that he turned his head and beheld the students, with the master himself, looking on in admiration. The poor little slave fell on his knees imploring pardon. But Murillo, kindly raising him up, asked him what reward he should give him for his skill and industry. dom, which Murillo at once granted, and painter; but he was better known as Murillo's mulatto than by his proper name of Sebastian Gomez. He died in 1690. His principal paintings may yet be seen at Se-

Let an umpire be chosen, equipped with a dictionary for consultation, and a pencil and paper. Let all the rest stand in line, and number one spells the first syllable of any word that occurs to him, but does not mention the word. For instance, the word 'constantly" may have occurred to him, so he says c-o-n con. The next-person spells the next syllable, thinking perhaps of "consequently." The next in the line may think the word "consecutive," so spells his syllable. As each syllable is spelled and pronounced the umpire writes it down; every one who makes a mistake goes to the foot, the rest moving up. Every one who completes a word scores one; accounts are kept, and the person suit the dictionary. Avoid proper nouns and slang and keep to the English lan-guage.—Home Queen.

A Hint.

At this season of the year not a week passes but some one from the city wishing to find a pleasant summer home, and attracted by the beauty and advantageous situation of the Point, seeks in vain for a boarding place. Teachers and people whose business is temporarily here are compelled to live in the Centre. If there was a hotel, or even a summer boarding house in the place, it would be filled by many very desirable people, who started as temporary would become permaneut residents. Will He Go Next? A certain young man in Asteria is feeling decidedly shaky over the report of a homicide in the San Francisco papers of Sunday. It is not the report of a single tragedy, however, that affects his nerves, but the fact that he was once in timately connected with the victims of four homicides. In 1883 five young men four homicides. In 1888 live young men were expelled from a California military college for dragging a pompous and in-sulting drill master from his bed and pelting him with frost bitten potatoes and decayed apples. In 1888 Dan Greenwell, one of the five was shot and instantly killed in a row in Bodie. 1n 1889 Marshal Nicholson, another of the insubordinate students, was killed in northern California by an unknown assassin, and who lay in wait by the roadside and shot him through the head with a charge of buckshot. In 1890 Percy Williams, the third student, a brother of Sherrod Williams, who was formerly employed here by William T. Coleman & Co., was shot in a quarrel in Tulare, Cal., the result of a dispute over a horse race.

Recently in San Francisco Russell L. Phompson was shot through the head by his insane father-in-law while asleep Thus four of the five students have been shot, one in each year since 1887, leaving but one, who is meditating a dose morphine to baffle the fate reserved for him in 1892.—Astoria Bulletin.

A Rooster's Fast.

Some two weeks ago Mrs. Martha For sythe missed a favorite Cochin rooster, and, thinking that some one had stolen it, she purchased another. One evening about two weeks later Mrs. Forsythe went out to lock the coop, and seeing a box near the coop determined first to put it in the dry, that it might be used when occasion required. On picking up the box she was surprised to find the lost rooster, for Sir Chanticleer stepped out as gayly as if he had lived on corn by the bushel. The chicken had not had one grain of food for fourteen days. He had been picking his way through an old celery trench, and stepping on the him like Genevra in the chest.-Monongahela Republican.

Dutch Steamer With Many Passengers Aboard Disabled at Sea.

NEW YORK, May 23.-The Dutch steamer Veendam, belonging to the Netherlands line, is disabled at sea with 620 passengers on board. A cablegram from London states that the steamship was passed Sunday last in lat. 44 N., lon., 48 W. Her engines were stopped and she was proceeding under sail. A strange steamer was alongside, presumably to render assistance. The Veendam is bound for this port from Rotterdam. The Veendam left Rotterdam May 9, and under favorable conditions ought to have been here on Sunday. The agents here say that she will try to make St. Johns, N. F., or Halifax, as the place where she was sighted is off the coast of Newfoundland. The agents are not at all apprehensive, as the Veendam is a good, sound ship.

The Conservatives, however, must first find their Schnadhorst. The open discussion resulting from Disraeli's letter has given the Liberals an insight into the disorganized state of the Tory ranks.

Foreigners are debarred from the right of acquiring freehold rights in property, holding railway and mining shares, or taking part in the Japanese trade. The Brit-ish government has exchanged communications with the German government regarding these proposals. The two governments have agreed to oppose the changes as illiberal, and will demand that Japan reconsider. Food for Discussion.

Art and religious circles are engaged in an excited debate over Calderon's academy picture "St. Elizabeth of Hungary." The lady is depicted taking the vows, renouncing the world, while kneeling nude at the altar. The press comments aroused a protest from Catholic priests declaring the painting historically untrue. Calderon re-plied by quoting a Latin record in which plied by quoting a Latin record in which the saint is described at the altar "exuit et nudavit." Catholic authorities responded that the words were used figuratively. Professor Huxley intervened in support of Calderon and quoted a record proving that the same saintly queen, with her maids, as a penance, was stripped to the shift and well whipped. Crowds flock to see the painting which the authorities of the academy have bought for £1200.

The Longevity of Animals. What is the maximum longevity of anials? La Nature replies to the oft repeated query as follows: It has been found that the herbivores, especially those that are compelled to work, are generally longer lived than the carnivores. Thus, an ass died a few years ago at Cromarty at the age of 106 years. It had belonged to the same family since 1779. We have a record of several horses that reached the age of 40, 50 or more years. A towhorse died at Washington at New York aged 38 years, and had worked delphia there was a mule that reached the respectable age of 42 years. Another mule, aged between 40 and 45 years, is still working at a place near San Francisco. A ewe, born at Kalinowitz in 1829, remained fertile for 20 years, and died in 1850. As for carnivores, a Spanish slut recently died in America at the age of 28 years, and the case is cited of a cat that died at the age of 22 years and 2 months.

After Dinner Rest Awhile.

Francis I dined at 10 a. m., but by the time Henry IV had ascended the throne of France the proper hour, as prescribed by his medical advisers, and which was more and more adhered to by the upper classes, was between 10 and 11 a. m., after which it is advisable to remain at table without moving about for at least half an hour, talking pleasantly with your companions.
With Louis XIV the hour of dinner had already been put back to 1 p. m., and he took his supper as late as 10 p. m. But this hour was shortly afterward rejected, and a 7 o'clock supper was instituted, be-cause, as Pierre Gontier said, "It is a dangerous leap to jump from table to bed." The interval between what was then called dinner and what now is luncheon, and the evening meal being too long for a good many people, a gouter at 5 p. m. became the fashion, and this repast, now known as "five o'clock," is again the order of the day, together with the same hours for the chief meals of the day. The Bottle Chart. In 1843 a chart of bottle voyages in the Atlantic was constructed by Lieutenant Beecher, an English naval officer, with the idea that by such means the determination of currents might be illustrated. The time which elapses between the launching of the bottle from the ship and the finding of it on shore, or the picking of it up by some other ship, has varied from a few days to sixteen years, while the straight line distance between the two points has varied from a few miles to 5,000 miles. The chart is marked by several hundred straight lines, each drawn from the latitude and longitude of immersion to the latitude and longitude of the finding. The Duration of Copyright. The original term of copyright runs for twenty-eight years. The Road to Opulence Lies Knee-Deep Through Printer's Ink.

SUNSET ON THE MARSH.

Willows and willows in two gust worn rows, The fading sunset and the marsh between; A road beneath where little pools lie keen At twisted roots, and faint the last light glows

The yellowing leaves flame down each wind that blows And choke the pools and heap the rushes lean. Wheels rumble; up the road a cart is seen; White in a whirl of dust it lumbering shows; Eastward, beyond the wall of gust worn trees,
A rotting boat drawn up among the reeds;
Creeks that past foggy alders, blazing slip;
Salt scents; the stir of solitary bees;
A startled bird that shoreward clamoring

speeds;
And leagues of water empty of a ship.

PARADISE FOUND.

We had endured life in all its varied phases of housekeeping, boarding, restauranting and co-operative dining, and now as the summer season drew near my wife and I resolved on spending our vacation in a novel manner. We felt that fresh, pleasant face and a well fed apour experiences in the past had prepared us for whatever unknown hardships awaited us in the future.

After many vexatious delays we were at last ready to start.

Our electric road cart was all that could be desired. It was of the latest invention, and was provided with the necessary conveniences for light housekeeping. It was in fact a miniature house on wheels.

Early in the morning of a bright June boo chairs, bade our friends goodby, and closed the door of our new home. My wife was somewhat excited at first, owing to the novel situation, but she soon grew calm. I pressed the electric button, the engine began to purr, and away we went. We had no definite plan as to our destination other than this: We would start out on the street that ran directly north from our native village, and follow every branch road that led to the right. By doing this we hoped to lose ourselves in a very short time, and expected to meet with many strange adventures. We rolled along at a rapid rate. The indicator over the door marked the miles with a regular click, click, like the ticking of a clock. A continuous line of green spun out along each side of the road dotted with telegraph poles, that really appeared to be only a few inches apart, so swiftly were we moving. Of course I was obliged to hold the rudder with a firm hand, and keep a good lookout from the front window to avoid a collision, for we were continually meeting conveyances of every kind.

As the hours passed by we began congratulating ourselves. By following the several right hand roads we were, as we had hoped, decidedly lost. Everything about us was new and strange.

"How delightful," my wife exclaimed, as she drew the tea table near my chair. 'The very air we breathe is filled with a primitive newness that is charming. It is as if one had been suddenly transported to another planet."

When night settled down and the dusky road made it unsafe to proceed farther we followed a broad path that led from the highway into a grove of ow spreading trees, and, fastening the doors and windows securely, retired for we had ever seen or imagined: For a of a broad river, from which the land arose on either side to a great height, in a succession of natural terraces. Fields perfect men and women. of vegetables and grain and flourishing fruit orchards alternated with pasture lots, where droves of plump cattle and flocks of sheep waded knee deep in red clover. Everything wore a thrifty, prosperous look. We rode slowly along, admiring the beautiful scenery. A few houses, exceedinly all and tall apparently built from the same plan, were seen in some of the most sheltered spots. In the disas we advanced we could hear the low hum of machinery. We were evidently approaching large manufactories of some sort, and my wife expressed a hope that we were nearing some town, as our supply of provisions, owing to the wonder-ful appetites we had acquired, was fast diminishing.

Her hope was soon realized, for a sudden turn in the road gave us our first view of a most remarkable town. The streets ran at right angles with each other, which gave the place the appearance of an immense checker board. The houses were of the same uniform style as those we had seen in the surrounding country-very neat, but extremely small. My wife remarked on one peculiarity of their construction. Among them all there was no sign of the kitchen addition in the rear, to which we had been accustomed.

The tall chimneys we had first noticed were a part of the one story buildings, which stretched along the bank of the river for several blocks. It was quite early in the morning, and none of the inhabitants were astir, but feeling the pangs of hunger, we began to look around for a corner grocery.

Just as we were opposite one of the low buildings on the bank of the river a boy wearing a red uniform came rushing through the door and started on a run down the street. He carried a red tin box in his hand. I called him and asked to be directed to a provision store. He stared at me as if in doubt of my sanity, and while I waited his reply I noticed a very peculiar expression on his countenance, a sort of an infantile expression which I was at a loss to account for, until his lips parted as his amazement increased, and I discovered that he was toothless.

Without giving the required information, much to our surprise he ran away. And then another and another, wearing the same striking uniform, and with the same baby face, darted through the several front doors of the buildings, and followed in the track of number one. They all carried the red tin boxes, decorvegetable, animal, cereal, saccharine

that were entirely new to us. We saw them stop at each house where boxes of the same style they carried were hanging from the front door knobs. Our curiosity was excited, and forgeting for the moment our hunger, we hastened our speed, determined to investigate. We saw one of them take a small quantity of something that resembled the homeopathic pellets we kept in our medicine chest and drop them in the box that hung from the door knob. Then away he ran to the next house and repeated the operation. As far as we could see these red robed boys were darting here and there, crossing each other's paths like June fireflies before a storm.

We watched them a while, but our clamoring appetites sent us again in search of food. We turned many corners and followed long lengths of streets, but not a sign of anything eatable could we discover. Just as we were becoming thoroughly discouraged a man with a pearance opened the door and lifted the box from the knob. Not without some misgivings I called to him and made known our situation.

He stared at us a moment as the boy had done. I began to grow impatient. "We are strangers, sir, and are hungry," I said. "Will you kindly direct us to a provision store?" "It is a surprise to me," he replied, "to meet with the people who are so very far behind the times. From what distant planet do you come that you enter a civilized city and ask for a provision store? Why, my dear friends, there has been nothing of the sort in this part of the world for many years." "How, then, do you manage to live?" f asked.

He tapped the box with his plump forefinger, and nodded his head signifi-

"Here, sir, is my provision store," and without more ado he lifted the lid. It was divided into several compartments, in each of which was a small quantity of pellets of different shapes and colors.

"You surely don't mean to say that you eat nothing but these nasty pills," said my wife in rather a sarcastic tone. "And why not, my dear madame?" said he, holding a brown pellet between his thumb and forefinger, and eyeing it fondly, "here is the nutriment from a pound of beef. And here," picking up another, "is a pound of potatoes. Then here I have my bread and fruit, in proper proportions, besides many other compounds, equally nourishing and satisfy-

Of course we were very much interested, and asked for some further information concerning this wonderful country with its condensed diet. After swallowing half a dozen pellets with evident relish, he continued: "It was many years ago that a party of chronic dyspeptics, who were traveling in search of health, discovered this beautiful valley and decided on making it their future home. As might be expected, their thoughts turned inward. and their minds were a unit in their anxiety to discover a remedy for their ills. Great rewards were offered, and science was tested to its extreme limits. Behold," said he, pointing proudly to the smoking chimneys and buzzing factories, "behold the results! The products The second day's journey brought us of the surrounding country are entered into a strange country, unlike anything at the rear of these buildings as raw material, and are distributed from the long distance the road followed the bank | front doors in this condensed form. And now, after several generations of pellet fed people, we have become a race of

"Our latest achievement is a generation of toothless children. As we have no use for teeth with this diet we are well satisfied with this improved condition of our race. There is only one drawback to our perfect happiness. We are beginning to fear that we shall never die, but continue to multiply until we are crowded off into space.' "Oh, Tom," my wife exclaimed, "what a delightful existence we have stumbled tance were tall chimneys, from which great clouds of black smoke arose, and are built without kitchens. It settles the whole vexatious servant problem at one stroke. Just think of it-condensed meals that one can easily carry in their bonbon boxes are delivered the same as our daily papers. Think of the annoyances these people escape, the time they save, besides the perfect health they enjoy. Tom, my dear, we will go no farther in search of a home. Here is an earthly paradise, and here we will re-

The idea of getting a visual expression for musical vibrations occurred to Chladni, a physicist of the last century. He fastened a plate of glass by its center, and then having scattered some sand over the surface threw it into sonorous vibrations by means of a violin bow. Imagine the delight with which he saw the sand stir and form into line on the plate, forming a star of twelve rays. Square plates of glass or metal screwed er even glued to a central support can be made by the merest tyro with tools, and give wonderful results.

A plate, like a string, has one rate of vibration which belongs to it, but again, like a string, by "dampening" it with a touch of the finger or fingers in different points along the edge the note changes, and with it the figure made by the sand. The lines on the plate where the sand settles are the nodes, the lines of comparative rest. The violent agitation in the parts left bare can be shown by mixing a little lycopodium powder with the sand; this is excessively light, and is caught in the little whirlwinds of air generated about the vibrating segments. -Sophie B. Herrick in Century.

Boston High School Girls Make Study of Chemistry Useful.

A writer in the Hingham Journal says: "In a recent exhibit at the Boston High school (girls) the fact was clearly shown that the study of chemistry is sought to be made of practical value. The visitor's attention was first claimed by numerous loaves of bread, each labelled as an evidence of the fact that every member of the class had furnished one, and every loaf was up to the average standard of a good housewife's baking. On another table there were cards on which were fastened samples of colored worsteds, showing in some cases the most perfect gradation of shades from A legal friend reminds me of old Colonel the first remove from white down to a dark

"Again, attention was called to the tests of girls learning the fact that arsenic exists, often in harmful quantities, in many of the pretty papers they handle, the goods they wear and the colors they admire, and RICHARDS—In Quincy, May 16, a son to still more valuable is the knowledge of the tests which shall prove such existence. Even if in after life they do not have at hand the appliances for testing, they nevertheless have had occular proof of the dangerous fact and will not be likely to forget it. Much of the danger to life and health which lies in arsenical coloring, sewer gas, coal gas, poor ventilation, etc., etc., lies in the fact of the popular ignorance on these points, and certainly these girls of the chemistry class have escaped that.

Etching on glass has been practiced so successfully that pitchers, tumblers, wineglasses, etc., had been handsomely and in many cases elaborately ornamented with initials, crests, vines, etc.

"All kinds of geometrical figures had been made from mica, and the delicately thin substance had been cut so evenly that when joined to form cubes, rhomboids, triangles, etc., the angles showed not a hair's breadth of space between the sides. The accuracy of the cutting, which left no opening, was remarkable, and the nicety of joining betokened a skill as creditable as it was extraordinary.

"The whole exhibit was a full and decided answer to the affirmation sometimes heard that "It's no use to fill a child's mind with these higher branches." Most of the so-called higher branches can be made of practical benefit; and the broadening out of the mental faculties, the training in power of concentration of thought which omes of these studies cannot fail to be benefit to the veriest idler in existence.

Jerusalem Road Extension A beautiful fifteen-mile drive now open along the South Shore, Jerusalem road extension in Cohasset, the building of which has been a bone of contention for several years, is now a thing of reality, and, apparently, "a joy forever." The road is practically completed, and affords one of the longest and most beautiful shore drives to be found in the country. The opening of this new section of roadway gives an unbroken shore road from Windmill point, near Hotel Pemberton in Hull, to North Scituate beach, a distance of fully fifteen miles; and during this entire; distance there is not a single stretch of road of over 100 feet in length from which the waters of old Massachusetts bay cannot be plainly seen. - Hingham Journal.

Horses in Spectacles.

One of the curious effects of the unwonted cold weather in Europe during the past winter was observed in Austrian Moravia, where the inhabitants are said to be very fond of their horses and humanely inclined toward them.

For many weeks the ground in Moravia was covered with a thick coating of snow. As this was unusual, and the people found that their own eyes were unpleasantly affected by the intense whiteness of the snow, it occurred to them that their horses must be affected in the same way, and needed protection for their eyes.

The labors of the late Thomas H. Wynne and of Mr. R. A. Brock have rescued from oblivion and decay the church's records, and having been edited, annotated and published, they are part and parcel of the glorious history of this commonwealth.

It was in this church, before the Virginia convention, that Patrick Henry uttered the trumpet note of the Revolution in the stirring sentence, "Give me liberty or give me death," and it has been the scene of many other interesting occurrences. Though of wood, it stands in good condition, having escaped multitudinous fires, including those built in the city by Benedict Arnold's men, the great conflagration of 1786, and that of Evacuation Day.—Richmond Dispatch.

Tramps in Luck.

All the tramps who have wandered to the immediate vicinity of Mount Holly, N. J., in the past week have, to use the parlance of their own tribe, been "right in de royalest kind o' luck." They have had one continual round of bacchanalian revels, and all growing out of the murder trial from which John Price escaped.

One of the chief witnesses for the state during the trial was John McClain, a true specimen of the tramp tribe. He was an eyewitness of the killing of "Bonner" by Price, and immediately after the tragedy was locked up to assure his appearance at the trial to testify. After the trial closed McClain was released and paid off, his per diem allowance amounting to seventy dollars.

The result of the introduction of this fortune into the realms of the tramp kingdom just at the close of a hard winter was demoralizing.-Philadelphia

A ROMANTIC STORY

A COUNT AND A SOUTHRON

Engage in a Duel Because the Latter Made a Disparaging Remark About a Young Woman of Whom the Former Had Become Enamored.

CHICAGO, May 25 .- Chicago was yesterday the scene of a duel growing out of a genuine romance. The principals were an Austrian nobleman and a young southerner whose name is unknown. A pretty actress caused all the trouble. Baron Rudolf Kalnoky de Korospatak, a nephew of Count Kalnoky of Vienna, made his first visit to Chicago about a month ago, registering at the Richelieu merely as "Rudolph Kalnoky" of New York. He was handsome and distinguished, appeared to have unlimited means, and, while evidently suffering from habitual melancholy, soon became a favorite with the few to whom he gave his friendship.

The object of his stay in Chicago was a mystery to all except Manager Carlson of the hotel, to whom he partially told his story. Kalnoky, according to his own confession, was at one time the staunch defender and passionate admirer of the erratic Natalie of Servia during her sometimes embarrassing visits to the Austrian capital. He had also been companion in the revels of the gay young crown prince, whose spicide shocked all Europe. That event only drove Kalnoky to wilder dissi-

Seeking change in America, he accidentally met Miss Mattie Atherton, a member of the Duff company, during its last Chicago engagement, and fell in love with her. She told him she was soon to marry another, and when the company left Chicago, Kalnoky remained behind. Ten days ago he weakened and made a flying trip to Louisville in one last effort to conquer the pretty actress. While there he met one of his numerous rivals, though not the successful one. Last Friday morning he returned to the Richelieu and that night the man whom he han encountered in the south dined with him at the Richelieu restaurant. After a too free indulgence in wine Kalnoky knocked his companion down for speaking disrespectfully of the woman he loved.

A Challenge Followed

and was accepted. All the arrangements were made for a meeting with rapiers at the tourist. Jackson park early Sunday morning Saturday night Kalnoky told Mr. Carlson that if he had the luck to fall, his opponent's blade would but take the place of a weapon in his own hand, as his wild life had caused him to be disowned by his family, and suicide alone remained for one without home or love. Mr. Carlson, be lieving that the affair would not end seriously, let it take its course. The baron settled his bill, left word that if he did not survive all his belongings at the hotel | the Veendam was sufficiently repaired to were to be sent to the woman for whose honor he had fought, and quietly retired to LaFlandre left the Veendam at 9:45 p. m. bed. was given and like a flash The Southerner Commenced. After some sharp fighting the southerner succeeded in inflicting a slight wound in the right leg of the baron. A little later the baron made a clever lunge which pricked the skin on the right shoulder of his adversary. The latter, however, parto slip and literally to fall on the point of his 'adversary's sword, which entered his n ck. A stream of blood gushed from the wound. The seconds at once stopped the combat.

Baron Kalnoky was assisted to an ad joining knoll and his wound hastily dressed. After ascertaining that the result woult not necessarily be fatal, the southerner and his friend left the field. Kalnoky's opponent is unknown. He is believed, however, to be the son of a prominent citizen of Atlanta, famous in the south as an authority on the code of duello, and who, though quite young, has taken an active part in several affairs of hours after the termination of the combat. Baron Kalnoky's exact whereabouts are kept secret, but it is said that he has been well cared for, and that his life is not in immediate danger.

The Robert and Minnie Case. Los Angeles, Cal., May 25.—United States District Attorney Cole has filed a libel in the United States district court against the Robert and Minnie, praying her seizure and condemnation on charge of violating neutrality laws in said vessel fitting out and arming itself to go to the assistance of certain rebels in Chili, known as the Congressional party. The marshal took the necessary warrants to seize the vessel. The writs are returnable June 16.

The Style in the Northwest. WALLA WALLA, Wasl., May 25.—The court of injuiry into the lynching of Gambler Hunt by soldiers, so far as taking testimony is concerned, closed Saturday The soldiers say the reason they lynched Hunt was because they heard that Prosecuting Attorney Blanford would not con-vict the prisoner, as the gamblers had contributed to the campaign fund at his elec-

MONTREAL, May 25.—The most disastrous fire that occurred in Montreal for a long time, broke out last evering. It started in Friedman's liquor wareho and extended to a large stone block of warehouses. The total loss is estimated at officers say the liabilities will amount to over $100,000, and is probably covered by $300,000. No other concerns will be em-

PRACTICALLY DECLARED OFF.

Coke Strikers Will Return to Work After a Long Period of Idleness-Many Agitators Refsued Employment.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 25.—The coke strike was practically declared off Saturday. Since Wednesday the leaders have been very reticient, but Wise gave in, and to those of his friends who asked advice he said it would be best to return to work. The coke companies have been overrun with applications, and are now wondering what to do with all the men. It was de cided Saturday not to start any new works until there was a good demand for coke, but the men flocked to the office in such numbers and begged so piteously that the Frick company concluded to put four more plants in operation to-day. This will leave only two of the plants idle. The McClure company closed down their Enterprise works Saturday. No reason was given for the action. The Bessemer and Hazleton plants of this company remain idle yet, and are likely to do so for some time.

Complaints are coming in to the leaders to the effect that at every works from three to fifteen of the local agitators are being shut out from work. The list will amount to several hundred. At the headquarters an appeal to the men who are returning to work is being made out, asking them to see that their brothers are not left in want. The national assembly also will be asked to contribute to their support.

The general opinion is that the operators are making a mistake in throwing these men out. If they remain idle they will continue to agitate and make trouble. The district officers seem to be at their wits' end to know just what course to pursue. The officers are prodding them with a sharp stick on every side for what they have done, and the labor people who have been so disappointed in losing the strike are denouncing them for what they have not accomplished.

ACROSS THE CONTINENT.

A New Bedford Man Will Make the Trip on a Bicycle.

NEW BEDFORD, May 25 .- Allen W.Swan, member of the New Bedford Cycle club, started yesterday on a cycling trip to San Francisco. He will go first to New York through Rhode Island and Connecticut, then he will go to Philadelphia, Gettysburg, Wheeling, Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Salt Lake City, Leadville and Colorado Springs, and make a side trip into Denver.

He will go by train across Nevada, on account of the sandy plains. Mr. Swan's only baggage is carried in a leather pouch, made to fit between the bars of his safety. He expects to be a little over 100 days on his trip out. Thirty members of the New Bedford club rode as far as Fall River with

STRIKE AT AN END.

Illinois Miners Have Gained Nothing by Their Long Battle.

CHICAGO, May 25.-The miners' strike in Illinois is practically at an end. The wood and Wilmington resumed work Saturday. One or two of the smaller places are still in a state of agitation, but it is expected that the example of those already named will have its effect and induce them to settle matters. The men gained nothing by the strike, for they have all signed contracts which in no way differ from those that bound them last year.

An Uncommon Happening. JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 25.-A singular result of the fire in Mohawk block Monday night is the embarrassment under which it places the United States court for the northern district of Florida. The fire made a clean sweep of all the papers and records of this court. Many of the papers on file there dated back to 1740, old Spanish records which can never be reaced. Clerk Walter inclines to the opinion that the fire made an end to most cases, among them the famous Gregg elec-

NEW YORK, May 25.-Mrs. Margaret Mulhaney, who was buried yesterday, weighed 650 pounds. She lived at 43 Hamilton street. The coffin was a plain, cloth-covered box, thirty-seven inches wide and twenty-six inches high. The corpse was carried from the house by twelve brawny men and an undertaker's wagon bore it to the cemetery, no hearse being large or strong enough. A double grave was needed, and it required the strength of sixteen men to lower the body

Vessel and Crew Missing.

NEW YORK, May 25 .- The bark Lansdowne, 1486 tone, Capt. Newcombe, is still missing. She sailed from Hokadati, Japan, Oct. 12, with a cargo for J. F. Whitney & Co. Her crew included fourteen men. In the cargo was $15,000 worth of sulphur. The usual length of the voyage is from 114 to 150 days. As the bark has been out over 210 days, there is but little hope of her safety. The bark belongs at Windsor, N. S.

crimes. It was shown that he murdered

FARMERS WITH GUNS

in Eastern Connecticut.

NORWICH, Conn., May 25.-The farmers f eastern Connecticut are fighting hordes of tent caterpillars with shot guns or long barrelled revolvers, for it is impossible to stay their ravages with kerosene torches and other ordinary means.

Caterpillars were never so numerous be fore. In many orchards the apple trees are enveloped in their silky webs, and have been killed outright. The trees look as if a conflagration had swept through them. Almost every wild cherry tree has been killed, except those in thick forests.

Every evening the farmers and their hired men go through the orchards, firing blank cartridges into the caterpillar tent, and a person driving among the country hills hears an almost continuous fusildale of shots from small arms.

Yet the pests seem to thrive despite the combardment, which has to be repeated

Their Characteristics Compared with Those of American Trotters.

There are hundreds of horses called Arab in America which have no right to the name. Almost every spotted horse or "calico" horse is said to be more or less Arab, while it is stated as a positive fact by no less an authority than John H. Wallace that an Arab may be of any color in the world but spotted. No Arab is a ealico in color. It is an exceedingly difficult thing to get a pure bred Arab. The Bedouin chief will not sell one at any price, and the only ones procured are secured by raids on the tribes of the Euphrates valley.

In the whole United States there are only three strictly pure bred Arabian horses. Two of these are the stallions Leopard and Linden Tree, which were presented to General Grant by the sultan of Turkey, and a mare called Naomi, which has been imported from England. Of the two Grant stallions Leopard is not at all a prepotent horse and is a getter of few foals, and Linden Tree is the possessor of one of the ugliest tempers of any living horse. He is said to be a fiend incarnate, though his colts are gentle and kind enough when properly treated. It is a peculiarity of the Arabs that if used kindly and treated with consideration they are gentle and lovable.

"To one that has gained the confidence of an Arab horse there is the pleasure of knowing that he associates with a brute endowed with a soul." Abuse one of them, and you have aroused a devil that can never be subdued, for of their courage there is no limit, and they will resist abuse while they have life. General Grant's stallion Linden Tree is said to have been made vicious because the manin charge of him did not gain his confidence and abused him.

There is a great deal of foolish sentiment existing about the Arab horse however. He has many good qualities, is highly intelligent, quick to learn, has rare beauty of form and rich quality, is for saddle purposes beautifully gaited, quick and active in his movements, and of much endurance; but when compared with the thoroughbred race horse or the American trotter he suffers much by the comparison.

He lacks the size and speed of the thoroughbred, and what a spectacle a Maud S, a Jay-Eye-See, a Stamboul, a leagues of land, and they live like the Nelson would make of the greatest trot- patriarchs of old—with two or three genting Arab that ever lived could they meet | erations of children under the same roof on a trotting treck!

As a race they are handsomer than the American trotters, many of which have inherited Roman heads and cat hams from the great progenitor, Rysdyk's Hambletonian. If it could be done without a loss of size and speed, for the purpose of giving beauty and finish to the American trotter, it might be well to add more of the Arab blood to the composite article which goes to make up the American trotter, but the experiment has been tried and not found successful. No Arab known to civilized man is so handsome as Mambrino King.-Boston

While hunting antelope on the prairies interesting chase between an eagle and a lownward sweeps of the eagle attracted the reason. I put spur to my horse and succeeded in gaining an elevation from which a good view of the chase could be had. The rabbit, to all appearances, was very much bewildered, and would run first in one direction and then another, and sometimes in circles, its pursuer, the eagle, following its every turn.

Finally the eagle, as if tired of this sport, with a vicious downward swoop and a stroke of the wing laid the rabbit out lifeless on the prairie. At this moment I gave a tremendous yell, and at the same time rode rapidly toward them, which had the desired effect of frightening the eagle away, leaving its victim in my possession, which turned out to be the only game I bagged that day .- Forest and Stream.

Reading Selections from the Paper. It was one of those wild nights you read of in nine novels out of ten.

The cold spring rain splashed viciously against the panes, and the shutters rattled and banged as the fitful gusts of wind swept through the deserted streets. It was lodge night, but Brother Fay concluded to stay at home for once, particularly as his mother-in-law was on her periodical inspection tour, and spend-

Characteristics of the Uruguayans. The whole Banda Oriental and its inhabitants strike one as being more refined, more amiable and more gentle than the land and people of the sister republic. Nevertheless, in the country everything is very primitive, and one is astounded at the rough way in which many of the rich estancieros live on their estates in the simplest and most comfortless houses. These men own leagues and and eating at the same table-in the old fashioned creole way. Such men, as may be imagined, are not progressive; they continue their pastoral industry in an indolent, apathetic manner, leaving to nature almost everything except the operation of selling and receiving the money; and, above all, they cannot be persuaded to subdivide their lands and let them out for farming.

Uruguay is being kept back chiefly by the conservativeness of the creole land holders, who possess immense estates that are inadequately developed. The law of inheritance and the obligatory subdivision of property among the heirs will modify this state of affairs in the course of time, and these vast holdings will be gradually broken up and developed in full of water and place it upon the floor | detail. Yes, comrades, if you inquire where the enemy is located today, you will find him entrenched behind the bar of the liquor saloon. The saloon system is an organized working, scheming, havoc-breathing enemy wherever it gains a foothold. It is the enemy of the home, the school, the factory, the Sabbath, the church. It degrades and stultifies the mind and debauches the conscience. It throws around its victim seductive charms that transform him into a blind devotee and defender of the very curse that destroys him. Not one good thing can be said in its favor. We can settle the conflict. We must destroy the saloon system or it will destroy us. The remedy should be as radical and as extensive as the evil to be cured. That is to say, it should embrace the principle of prohibition, and it should apply that

But let us beware how we rest in a false security in regard to the future. What guarantee have we that this fair fabric of constitutional liberty will not go down in the seething tide of anarchy and social strife? What guarantee have we that these institutions, the bulwarks of our liberties, will not be sacrificed to the greed of the demagogue and

Many a lonely moon was bright upon the battle ground, and many a star kept mournful watch upon it, and many a wind from every quarter of the earth blew over it before the traces of the fight were worn away.

They looked and lingered for a long time, but survived in little things; for Nature, far above the evil passions of men, soon recovered her serenity, and smiled upon the guilty battle ground as she had done before when it was innocent.

So altered was the battle ground, where Thousands Upon Thousands had been killed in the great fight. Yet not why they rejoiced. Not half a hundred wounded and people were the better for the gain or loss. Not half a dozen men agree to this hour on the course or merits, and nobody, in short, knew anything distinct about it but the mourners of the slain

With but few exceptions this description applies to all the battles that have been fought since the birth of time, until the Sun of Liberty arose on this continent. Then for almost the first time in the history of wars you beheld men fighting The spirit of Concord and Lexington was latent in the hearts of the heroes of '61. They knew the blessings of freedom, and were resolved that the splendid possibilities that this country afforded to the average man, should not be lost to the generations yet to come. The president and his advisers were filled with doubt and fear, failing to measure correctly the depth and strength of the loyal purpose. Not until the guns of Sumter startled the people from their dreams of compromise did the chiefs realize the full_support they were to receive in all measures for the safety of the Union. Then the great heart of the nation warmed -men who think, read and work-the great producing class in all lands, and in this favored country our chiefest reliance. The great middle class I dare assert were

I have but little to say about the Grand Army of the Republic, believing as I do that this is the time to speak of the older Grand Army and its deeds. You, Comrades, know full well what has been accomplished by this Post since its organization. You, citizens, have heard its purposes eloquently set forth on many occasions. With your three watch-words, Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty, you have lived through good report and through evil report until this day. This seemed to me a fitting time to speak of the great struggle which made us soldiers.

If we, the survivors of the veritable Grand Army of the United States, owe any Explanation or Apologies surely these are fitting occasions to render them. A distinguished Union general struck the key note when he used the-following words in submitting a map and report of his operations in West Virginia.

"This map contains all our known to-Potomac to the Jame river, and from the Blue ridge to the Chesapeake; a region whose characteristics are a dense forest of oak or pine with occasional clearings, rarely extensive enough to prevent the Incidents of the Great Conflict Told riflemen concealed in one border from That is, if the Majority Report of the shooting across to the other side; a forest which with but few exceptions, required the axe-man to precede the artillerist from the slashing in front of the fortification of Washington to those of Richmond A report of the services Memorial Sun- No pains have been spared to make the day was given yesterday, and below will be forest topography of this map as complete found an abstract of the interesting address as possible. It will be of great assistance delivered by Comrade James Burrows, of in future operations, and it will aid those bloody battles fought between the armies Once upon a time, it matters little when of the Union and the secessionists should and it matters little where, a fierce battle have been so indecisive. A proper underwas fought. It was fought upon a long standing of the country, too, will help to scene of strife. Thus the generals on either Burke of Quincy.

We should not wonder that such battles often terminated from the mutual exhaustion of both contending forces, but rather it petitioned. that in all these struggles of Americans against Americans no panic on either side gave victory to the other like that which the French, under Moroau, gained over the Austrians in the Black forest.

And what is true of Virginia is true of the West and South. Deeds of heroism were enacted in these mighty forest battles many of them chronicled, and many forgotten or unobserved, as worthy of a painter's brush or poet's song as any the old world has ever seen.

Comrade Burrows here described the a hundred people in that battle knew for under Hooker; the crossing of the river; of the inconsiderate rejoicers in the victory, the second day's battle; how he had been and afterward paroled with many others. As this month of May comes around each year, so full of interesting anniversaries of march and battle, how our hearts go out to distant spots in this great country made sacred by the death of a dear comrade. I call to mind now a little mound far away in the Chickahominy swamps where we laid to rest the first comrade of my company who fell a victim in this great war. This death came very near to me, as we were companions in the little shelter of those days, and that night I crept into my tent alone. I seem to feel on occasions like this as though these comrades gathered to rest in the land of their fathers are already crowned with blessings and rewards, and that all our praise and tears should be for those far away in unknown graves.

When you place a wreath over a fallen hero inwardly whisper "Not for you alone, dear comrade, but for the glorious cause you died to save, and for all the noble dead sleeping on land or in sea.

Now as we return to the busy world, let to its work, and the men from the plow, land of strangers. "After life's fitful work-shop and office sprang into the ranks fever they sleep well." They are many in us think kindly of those laid to rest in the number, and are scattered from the Potomac to the Gulf. Could the earth yield up its dead what huge armies would arise in village of Andersonville would be startled should the martyrs of that "Hell on earth!" suddenly appear as 13,000 men walking clothed in the flesh. Ab, comrades, this is one of the dark, unexplainable spots that will not out.

I am not unmindful of the scriptural injunction: "Judge not, that ye be not judged, for with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure Improvement Association has reported that ve mete, it shall be measured to you on Arbor day eighty-three trees were set again." It is not a judgment that we renout and $28.70 expended. $15 was approder, but an accusation that we make; and priated for public squares, and $5 to schoolwe should be false to the memory of our house yards, dead comrades who died in those dreadful prison pens if we did not denounce the one man who had the power and might by a single stroke of his pen have changed their starving condition to one of simple re-

Employments for Women in France. In all trades connected with food in France women are largely employed. In biscuit making they need to serve a somewhat arduous apprenticeship. The manufacture of shawls is very well paid, but is fatiguing. Taken as a whole there are not so many men employed in factories in Paris as in some other French towns. Sorting rags is a very unhealthy occupation. In this women are much francs a week. Women are also employed in leather manufactories preparing the leather which is afterward pressed in machines.

In the making of military equipments women work equally in shops and in their own homes. Several large firms have the monopoly of this work, which is chiefly done by means of the sewing machine. In the making of perfumery, too, women are much employed; this and soap making needs but a very short apprenticeship. Tobacco employs 1,500 women out of 1,800 workpeople. For this six months' apprenticeship is needed, and the lowest salary is 31 francs a day. Weavers of fine stuff for furniture are apparently as far from settlement toreceive three francs a day. The weaving of galloons for carriages and ribbons for decorations is done entirely by women .- New York Sun.

Clothing the Eiffel Tower.

Two Frenchmen appeared at a linen factory in Jaroslav, in the Volga, four weeks ago, and told the manufacturer that they were French government commissioners with an order for a cloth case in which to wrap the Eiffel tower in winter. They presented so many sealed documents and letters with the signatures of celebrated Frenchmen that the manufacturer swallowed their marvelous story and agreed to take the huge contract. The "commissioners" required from him $1,200 as an earnest of his intention to turn out the tower's new clothes, and left him with directions that he should go to Paris at once to communicate further with the city officials and to measure the tower. He went, with several assistants who were to help him determine the details of the undertaking, and thereby spent $300 more to learn that he had been swindled. -New York Sun.

The Mother Died First.

Tuesday there was a case before Judge Freeman in the probate court of a peculiar kind. Some weeks ago Mrs. Ellen O'Neil died intestate. At about the same time her new born child also died. The question to be decided was whether the mother or the child died first. If the mother died first the child would have inherited her estate, and at the child's death its father would be its heir. If, one-half of the estate would go to the the other to her husband. Judge Freeman gave his decision, which is that the mother died first. In accordance with this the estate goes to the father.—Hart- with him. ford Courant.

MORMONS' CHURCH.

SOFT SNAP FOR SEALERS.

The Commercial Company Taken Steps to Improve an Opportunity-A Montana Troop Rewarded for Gallant Services-Original Package Decision.

WASHINGTON, May 26 .- When the supreme court at its last term upheld the constitutionality of the Edmunds law by which the property of the late corporation of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, otherwise known as the Mormon church, was escheated to the United States, it found itself in a somewhat embarrassing position. The doctrine of escheat was quite unknown in this country and no purpose considered laudable and proper of a similar nature to that for which the property was formerly used was known for what the property could be was known for what the property could be mon church, was escheated to the United was known for what the property could be devoted. The court, therefore, instead of sending the decree down, withheld it, a strong intimation being conveyed of the desire of the court that congress should by law direct the disposition to be made of the property.

Congress having failed to accept the suggestion made, the court, through Justice Bradley, yesterday made its final order in the case and modified in some respects the decree it entered at the last term. The modification made recites that the Mormon corporation having been dissolved, there do not now exist any trusts or purposes within the objects and purposes for which the personal property was originally acquired, for which any part of the personal property could be used or dedicated that are not in whole or part opposed to the public policy and good morals; and, furthermore, that there does not exist any person or corporation legally entitled to any of the personality as successors of the late church. The decree then says that the personal property having devolved to the United States it should be devoted to such charitable uses of a lawful character as may mostly nearly correspond to its former des-Liny, unless in the meantime congress shall there was a strong wind and a heavy sea. otherwise direct, or a master shall report some scheme which shall meet the approval of the court for the disposition of 94 minutes, the vessel was pitching and the property. The vessel goes under instructions from the Commercial company to commence at once the catch of seals, under the order of Secretary Foster, issued some time before the more serious complications arose, in which the maximum limit of catch was fixed at 60,-000. Even should the Rush leave for the seal islands immediately, the Commercial company's vessel will have been on the ground for ten days, the time from San Francisco to the islands at best being

CHICAGO, May 26,-Capt. E. P. Ewers, Indian agent on Tongue river, arrived in the city yesterday and had an interview with Gen. Ewers has completed a tour of the Indian camps within a radius of 200 miles of Tongue river agency, and he says that the people now to be feared were not the Indians but cattlemen, who want all the land they can grab for their cattle to roam over, and will not allow anyone else to establish themselves. A MILLION INVOLVED

Boston Boot and Shoe Firm Forced to Assign.

BANKS WILL BE LOSERS.

Manufacturers in New England - The Bookkeeper Not to Be Found-A Shock

Boston, May 26 .- Potter, White & Bayey, one of the largest manufacturers of boots and shoes in New England, have assigned. The assignees are George S. Bullens, president of the Revere bank; William H. Allen, of Allen, Field & Lawrence, and Edward H. Dunn, of Dunn, Green & Co. The firm has done a business of over $2,000,000 a year, and the liabilities are estimated at from $770,000 to $1,000,000. The principal creditors are banks, chief among them being the Revere bank, of which Mr. Bullens, one of the assignees, is president. The announcement of the failure was as much a shock to the street as that of E. &. A. H. Batcheller & Co. a few years ago. The financial soundness of the firm had, however, frequently been questioned, but the continual ability of the firm to meet its bills had removed this doubt until the failure of the Hill Shoe company of Memphis, which owed Potter, White & Bayley nearly $200,000. With reference to this failure the firm on Saturday last sent round a statement affirming that the concern was on a sound financial

It was said by the cynical on the street that the statement was certain to be fol-lowed by the failure of the firm, but the Cause of the Assignment is summed up as being immediately caused by the Hill failure, while the slump in the western and southern trade from March 1 to May 1 had much to do with it. This trade is generally active between those dates, but this year there was practically no business done.

The firm consists of John C. Potter, Howard M. Stephens and Frank C. Pot-ter. The last named is the son of John C. Potter, who is the only member of the original firm who is now living, Mr. Bayley having died in December, 1883, and Mr. White having died in June, 1885. Mr. Bayley left an estate of $344,000. The interest of Mr. White expired in June, 1886, at which time Mr. Potter admitted his son (Frank C.) and Mr. Stephens, the latter having long been an employe of the house. The firm's factories are at Farmington, N. H., and at Cochituate, Mass. Until recently it also manufactured at M. N.

Arnold's factory at North Abington, Mass. Mr. Arnold withdrew his connection with Potter, White & Bayley about two months ago, and it is understood that he is a creditor to a considerable amount of the failed firm. Potter, White & Bayley manufactured heavy shoes for the southern and western trade at Cochituate, at which place they ran their largest factory.

Bookkeeper Away. A friend of John C. Potter called upon that gentleman at his residence in Newton last evening, said that he found him in bed, greatly agitated, and that he looked as if he had grown 10 years older in the past two days. Mr. Potter said he could not tell the firm's liabilities, but the amount had been greatly exaggerated. The firm's bookkeeper had been away for the past week and until he had examined the books no definite amount could be given.

He said the first news he had received of the assignment was through the evening papers, and he was rather surprised, but he did not say he had not expected the firm's collapse. Mr. Potter admitted that his firm was a large creditor or that concern, but that he had securities which would enable them to continue busi-

Without Being Crippled.

Mr. Bullens could not estimate Potter, White & Bayley's liabilities. He also said the amount of business done by the firm yearly, was nearer $2,000,000 than $20,-000,000. Mr. Bullens also said that John Cheeney Potter was a director of the Revere bank and that the bank was one of the large creditors, but he could not give the amount. He thought the bank would not sustain a loss exceeding $30,000 or $40,000. "The bank," said Mr. Bullens, "has a large surplus and will not sustain any shock. If the loss should amount to $100,000, it would only take $100,000 from $4,000,000 and the bank would continue business just

Mr. Bullens did not seem to be agitated in the least by the failure. He spoke of John Cheeney Potter as an honest, conscientious man, and having known him for years he knew him to be square as possi-

Awarded to Burge on a Foul, to the Great Surprise of Sports.

NEW YORK, May 26.—A special dispatch to The Police Gazette says the often postponed prize fight between Dick Burge of Newcastle and Jemmy Carney of Birmingham for £1000 and the lightweight championship of England, was decided vesterday. The battle was fought in the Hon Malt Exchange boxing rooms, in the borough. Betting was 100 to 80 on Carney and several heavy bets were registered. Carney had the best of the fighting from the start, and punished Burge terribly. After the men had fought eight rounds was any odds that the champion would win, and 100 to 50 was laid by Chippy Nor-

In the ninth round Carney fought the Newcastle man to a standstill. In the tenth round Burge showed great pluck and made a game effort to turn the tables, but Carney landed his left heavily on Burge's neck and fought him to the ropes. In the eleventh round Burge clinched Carney. Desperate fighting followed until they broke, when Carney knocked Burge down by a tremendous blow on the left an altercation. Suddenly, so witnesses ear. The fact of the issue of this warrant makes the writ of protection issued by the court of no value to Hatch. He is now a fugitive from justice and liable to arrest anywhere.

WEST INDIES NAVAL STATION.

San Domingo Offers Privileges Refused by Hayti at Mole St. Nicholas.

NEW YORK, May 26.—A Washington special to The Herald says: The question of a naval station in the West Indies is being very seriously discussed by the government. The failure of the negotiations for the Mole St. Nicholas will probably result in an attempt to obtain the desired privileges on the eastern side of the island from the Dominican government. The recent visit of Admiral Gherardi to the navy department was undoubtedly in connection with this project. It is, perhaps, not generally known that Admiral Gherardi left Port au Prince four weeks ago, under cable orders to go direct to Samana bay and examine into its fitness for a coaling station, and that while he was there Gen. Heureaux, the president of San Domingo, came from San Domingo city in his yacht, and was closeted with the admiral for several hours. Only his secretary of war and Lieut. Heuse of the admiral's staff were present at this interview, but there is ne doubt that the subject of the conversation was the establishment of a naval station on Samana bay and that the price is the friendship and moral support of the United States in the present difficulty between San Domingo and Hayti.

It is too early to say that the United States will receive the proposition favorably, but Mr. Tracy is very much in earnest, and the late action of the Haytian government has created a feeling here which Is far from friendly to Hayti. It is therefore very probable that, as between the two negro republics, the preference will now be given to San Domingo.

Etheridge of the lifesaving service. Capt. Etheridge and the captain of the vessel remained on the beach in charge of the vessel, with the life saving appliances at hand in case it should become necessary to land the crew. It was thought, however, that the steamer would float if the sea remained smooth. Owing to a break in the government coast telegraph line south of Kittyhawk, it is impos-

PEOPLE'S COLUMN.

The Swede Girls.

QUINCY, May 23, 1891. To the Editors of the Daily Ledger:

DEAR SIRS: I beg leave to correct a statement which appeared in the LEDGER of the 21st inst., under the heading: Swede Help." The writer complains that the Swedish girls of this city are striking for higher wages, and asks: "Why do not the women of this city get together same as the Swede girls have done, and agree on some scale of wages to be paid

Further in showing the injustice of such an alleged strike the writer pathetically speaks of how these poor, green, helpless Swedish girls have out of pure sympathy been received into American homes, and is shocked to think that "those girls, who Vice-Commander Sanborn made a short owe us so much have struck for more pay."

Now this is certainly news. For in the first place there has been no such gathering of Swedish girls, and secondly the Swedish girls are not striking, though the advance in wages.

Consequently the writer must have either lantic are rehearsing for a drama to be been ill-informed, or over-zealous to correct a supposed wrong. nature." One was the spirit of rebellion, full of hate and bitterness then, and by its own admission, unrepentent now. The other was the spirit of the Union, with malice towards none, with charity for all. In emulation of the martyred President, we might drop the veil over all this, and in the fullness of the present and the promise of the future, find compensation for the blindness and errors of the past.

Let us think kindly of the unknown dead this day. It may come to pass that when the deeds of all men are weighed according to their exact worth, that the truest hero of the great war is at this moment resting under the simple inscription, "Unknown U. S. Soldier."

We trust that those of our comrades gone before are now enabled to see clearly both the future of our country and the worth of their sacrifice. If it could have been given to any of those poor comrades, dying amidst all the horrors of the prison or on the battlefield, to have had the veil of the future lifted for an instant to even see, what we now see, how unspeakable the joy! He might have said to those about him:-"Comrades I see the

One Day's Command.

The plumed staff officer gallops Along the swaying line, That shakes as, beaten by hailstones, Shakes the loaded autumn vine; And the earth beneath is reddened,

But not with the stain of wine

The regular shock of a battery The rattling tumult stuns, And its steady thrill through the hillside Like a pulse beneath it runs

The many are dead around it, But the few still work the guns "Who commands this battery?" And Crosby, his clear, young eyes

From the sliding gun sights lifting
As the well aimed death bolt flies,
"I command it today, sir!" With a steady voice replies. With modest words and few,

Whose hearts and hands to duty Even in death are true, Though its awful light is breaking Full on the blenchless view

With a less troubled eye, The words and the look unshaken Bids every wild doubt fly; He knows that young commander

To do AND die; for the battle And day of command are done While stands unmoved on the hillside Each shattered, blackened gun, And Crosby in death beside them A deathless name has won.

A Plea for the Knife.

We are not so enamored of the knife as to favor its use in preference to the fork as a means of conveying one's food to one's mouth. On the contrary, we are as much opposed to this use of the knife as any one possibly could be. But we hold, nevertheless, that the knife should not be utterly ignored at the ta-

Samuel only succeed in cutting into the sensibilities of your hostess. By using your knife, on the contrary, your pie crust is divided into eatable portions with neatness and dispatch, and its firmness of texture is remarked by no one.

We are sure that no genuine pie lover will deny that in cutting one's pie with one's knife and carrying it piece by piece to the mouth by aid of the fork, ample recognition is accorded to the demands of etiquette; for, to thoroughly enjoy one's pie, neither knife nor fork is necescary. As a matter of fact, either is an impertinence. The true and only satisfying way to eat pie is to take it up in one's hand, and by gently but firmly pressing the pointed end of the wedge in one's mouth to slough off its beneficence with grateful teeth until its richness is all your own. This is the way to enjoy pie. But we are not talking of enjoyment.

Our business is with etiquette. Therefore we will relegate the true form of pie eating to the privacy of the cupboard, where the hasty snack is taken. All we insist upon in the name of true etiquette is that the knife should do its share of the labor, and that the fork should not be compelled unassisted to bear the heat and burden of dissection.-Boston Tran-

LADD IS GOVERNOR.

A REPUBLICAN VICTORY,

By Which the Party Gains Complete Control of the State Government-State Officers Chosen-Scenes and Incidents of the Day.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 27 .- 'Lection day opened with the usual confusion and with the disagreeable addition of a rain storm, which somewhat interfered with the demonstration accorded the retiring governor. There was the largest attend-ance of spectators that has been seen at the state house for a long time, and much interest seemed to be taken in the proceed-

After the roll of the house had been called, and the secretary of state, E. D. McGuinness, had administered the oath to the members-elect, nominations for speaker were called for. The result of the ballot was: Capron (Rep.), 52; Brown (Dem.), 14. For reading clerk, the vote was: Lee, 5; Sheehan, 19.

For recording clerks, Raymond G. Mowry had 49 votes, Stephen O. Edwards

The house was now organized, and prayer was offered by Rev. G. W. Hunt. The first business was the adoption by the house, the joint and the grand committee rules of the last session. Mr. Heffernan in behalf of the Democrats moved an amendment to joint rule 27 so as

To Prevent Secret Ballots for governor and others in grand committee, and to call for an aye and no vote on the call of the roll, and that such a call shall be ordered at the request of any ten The Republicans opposed the passage of the amendment. Mr. Smith urged the necessity of the amendment as a means of

then it was voted to invite the senate to meet in grand committee for the counting of the votes on the state proximate. The senate promptly accepted the invitation, and with Governor Davis entered the hall. When the grand committee was organ ized, Mr. Wilson moved that a committee of five from Providence county and three from the other counties be appointed to count the vote for state officers. The motion prevailed, and Governor Davis, in naming the committee, put as many Democrats upon it as was possible.

A long and vexatious delay was experienced in the official count of the state vote. It was found, when the seals were broken on the packages from several cities and towns, that the wardens of the Fourth ward in Pawtucket and from one of the districts of the Ninth ward, Providence, had failed to send to the office of the secretary of state the certificates of the official

A Plurality for Ladd. Governor Davis felt much disturbed by this, and expressed a desire that the whole vote should be counted. This would make a three weeks' job, but, after scanning the return a bad error was discovered, and when this was righted the report was completed, and the special committee returned to the grand committee, and an nounced that there had been no election of any of the general officers.

The highest vote was that for governor, namely, 45,457, of which 22,729 were necessary for a choice. Davis (Dem.), had 22, 449; Ladd (Rep.) 20,995; Larry, 1829; Bur

For general treasurer the total vote was Clark, (Rep.), 76; John G. Pery, (Dem.), 24: Clark was declared elected. This gave the Republicans

Complete Control of the state government.

A committee was appointed to present the officers-elect before the bar of the house that they might be sworn.

As Governor-elect Ladd entered the hall he was given a grand ovation. Governor Davis welcomed Governor-elect Ladd to the high position he was to occupy, and wished him abundant success in his administration. Governor-elect Ladd was then sworn into office, and, addressing ex-Governor Davis, thanked him in a cordial manner for his kindness, and acknowledged the faithful services he had rendered the state. Governor Ladd then administered the oath to the other four officers. Immediately the bugles sounded in the square below, signalling the artillery that the elections were completed. The aged town sergeant, by order of Speaker Capron, stepped to the front balcony and made the time-honored and as he did this the cannons blazed, the trumpets sounded and the small boys contributed to the confusion by discharges of fire-crackers.

In the senate the governor announced the appointment as members of his personal staff of Roscoe S. Washburne, Henry A. DuVillard, John D. Lewis, Joseph T. Perry, Henry D. Hayden, Addison S. Hop kins; also, as executive secretary, Charles H. Howland.

The governor was presented by Serator Douglass with a gavel made from a piece of the old Gaspee house in Providence, which dates back more than a century and

The Quarantine on Canadian Cattle and Sheep-Supreme Court Has Been Hard Worked—News of Importance from the where to prove that they had been practically ruined by commercial Treasury Department.

WASHINGTON, May 27.-The statement is made unofficially that Lord Salisbury, within two days, through the British minister, has made a suggestion to the presisea. But this report cannot at the present time be authenticated. It is certain that no communication has been received at the British minister, however, has communicated to the president the information that Lord Salisbury appreciates the importance of the subject, and desires it to be understood that he is not seeking needless delay. He has hesitated, however, because of the strong opposition which has developed all over British North America to a closed season.

The protests, it is said, have come to London not only from the people of British Columbia but from those of Canada. Lord Salisbury is greatly embarrassed by this opposition in Canada, which it is said he does not wish to affront, although he would like to reach an amicable agreement for a closed season. For that reason he sent the British minister to the president to make his position clear and to show that he is not intentionally delaying action, but that he is studying the question with a view to a solution.

The president and the cabinet, however, are inclined to be of the opinion that there is no time for any longer consideration of the subject, and that a final decision must be reached at once. If nothing more shall be received probably within a day or two the United States will announce its policy.

SECRETARY RUSK'S ORDER

Relative to the Quarantine on Sheep and Cattle Call. Forth Protests. WASHINGTON, May 27.-The recent order of the secretary of agriculture relative to the quarantine on the Canadian border as to all sheep, lambs and cattle imported from Canada is being made the subject of very lively protest. Secretary Rusk has received recently several requests from representatives of railroads and from commission men that the order issued last week imposing fifteen days' quarantine on sheep and lambs from Canada shall be re-

A Manor for a Soup. William I had a fine sense of what was becoming at a royal table. He was so well pleased at one of his little dinners with a savory soup compounded by his cook. Tezelin, that he sent for him and asked how it was named.

"I call it dillagrout," was the reply. "A poor name for so good a soup!" cried the king. "Nathless"-everybody said "nathless" in those days-"we bestow upon you the manor of Adding-

This manor, I may add, reverted to the crown. In the reign of Henry III we find it in the hands of the Bardolfs, and held on the tenure of "making pasties in the king's kitchen on the day of his coronation, or providing some one grout, and if suet (seym) was added it was called malpigernoun."

At James II's coronation the lord of the manor claimed to find a man to make a dish of grout in the royal kitchen, and prayed that the king's cook might be the man. The claim was allowed, and the claimant knighted. But what was this grout? Was it identical with Tezelin's dillagrout and the Bardolf's malpigernoun? And was a pottage called Bardolf, of which a Fourteenth century recipe has been printed by the Society of Antiquaries, identical with these? If so. as among the ingredients were almond milk, the brawn of capons, sugar and spice, chicken parboiled and chopped, etc., it was doubtlessly a dish for a king. -All the Year Round.

Harvard and Yale Make an Unsuccessful Attempt to Patch Up Peace. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 27.-Harvard and Yale graduates held a long conference in this city yesterday afternoon and discussed the question of athletics. No reto say that there will be no Harvard-Yale ball games this season. The conference was at the invitation of Harvard's advisory boards, who asked the Yale base ball management to authorize graduates to meet them in the hope of solving the difficulty. Harvard men submitted their proposition to arrange a schedule of ball games between Yale and Harvard without regard to the other colleges. The Yale men held to the position set forth in Capt. Calhoun's letter, and insisted that the undergraduates had absolute control of their athletics. As the schedule, which included Princeton, had been set aside, they declined to enter a new arrangement this year. The question of a dual league was touched apon, but the chief discussion was on base ball. The representatives announced that absolutely no progress had been made by the meeting, and there would certainly be

Is the Sentence Imposed Upon Spaulding, the Defaulting Cashier of the Ayer National Bank.

Boston, May 27.- In the United States circuit court yesterday afternoon the grand jury returned an indictment against Harry E. Spaulding, the defaulting cashier of the Ayer National bank. charging him with the embezzlement of $36,000. He pleaded guilty and Judge Aldrich sentenced him to five years in the jail at Fitchburg. -District Attorney Allen, who represented the government, stated to the court that he HARRY R SPAHLDING. did not ask for a severe sentence inasmuch as Spaulding had voluntarily returned to the country after going away and had done what he could to help straighten matters out.

George J. Burns, Spaulding's counsel, called President Fessenden of the Townsend National bank and Edward Ordway, late cashier of the same bank, both of whom spoke in favor of Spaulding. Mr. Burns also made an eloquent plea for clemency. Judge Aldrich said that the fact that the prisoner had voluntarily returned to take his punishment inclined him to impose the minimum sentence, which is five years.

Spaulding is 33 years old and has a wife and two small children.

CAPE TOWN, May 27.-It is rumored here that H. M. S. Magicienne, Capt. J. P. Ripon, which vessel on May 23 was announced to have arrived at Beira, Mashonaland, a Portuguese settlement in South Africa, in company with the British gunboat Pigeon, has landed a force of marines and blue jackets and has occupied that post on behalf of the British government.

LONDON, May 27.-Lord Randolph Churchill telegraphs from South Africa as follows: The Portuguese have reclosed the Pungwe route and have enforced exorbitant passport and customs duties for a short period. The open position of the South Africa company's victorious forces at Unitheli is now serious, owing to their inability to secure supplies. Portuguese soldiers have brutally assaulted two British subjects, named Somershield and Dangerfield at Lorenzo Marques, inflicting serious bayonet wounds. The immediate British occupation of the coast seems imperative.

Quincy has a police officer, who last week ordered His Honor Mayor Fairbanks of a majority of land owners on a street, to "move on," and enforced his orders notwithstanding the protest of that high official. The Mayor was standing on the sidewalk, talking with a friend, and when spoken to by the officer, claimed that he was the chief of police, and that the officer had no authority to give orders to his superior officer. The officer on the contrary said that his orders were to keep the inner sidewalks clear-and he did it.

Were this officer a soldier, and thus did his duty, when put to the test, he would be commended by his superior. Being only an officer, in the piping times of peace it is doubtful, if he received the merit which is is his due. He should be placed

The ordinance originally brought up the estate of Susan Burrill of Needham. made it necessary to secure the signatures before that thoroughfare could be watered

The aldermen did not like this restriction, and said that the city could not send to Lynn, or wherever else the property owner might live, to get his name, and neither would they take it for granted that the owner would give his permission. So the aldermen crossed out the section, and made it a question for the street commission to decide, whether or not a street should be watered.

The council last night, declared that this amendment gave the street commission altogether too much power; that the citizens of Malden would be helpless in their hands, etc., and finally recommitted in the direct line of promotion.—Cape Ann the ordinance back to the committee, with instructions to have it printed, with and without the amendments.

La Mort D'Amour. When was it that love died? We were so fond. So very fond a little while ago. With leaping pulses, and blood all aglow, We dreamed about a fairer life beyond

When we should dwell together as one heart. And scarce could wait that happy time to come Now side by side we sit, with lips quite dumb, elves a thousand miles apart.

How was it that love died? I do not know, I only know that all its grace untold Has faded into gray! I miss the gold From our dull skies, but did not see it go.

Why should love die? We prized it, I am sure; We thought of nothing else when it was ours; We cherished it in smiling sunlit bowers; It was our all; why could it not endure?

Alas! we know not how, or when, or why This dear thing died. We only know it went, And left us dull, cold and indifferent— We who found heaven once in each other's sigh.

How pitiful it is, and yet how true, That half the lovers in the world one day Look questioning in each other's eyes this way, And know love's gone forever, as we do!

netimes I cannot help but think, dear heart, As I look out o'er all the wide, sad earth And see love's flame gone out on many a hearth, That those who would keep love must dwell apart -Ella Wheeler.

About Book Reviewing.

An expert book reviewer does not need 11½ in. The former record of 82ft.9¼ in., was also beaten by two other contestants. to read a book thoroughly in order to describe it sufficiently for his purpose. Most newspaper book reviews are mere descriptions and not criticisms, and such notices can be written quickly by one who has had experience and has the necessary ability. When a publisher sends in a book of sufficient importance to deserve a careful criticism, either the editor takes time to read it or he delegates the work to somebody else. There are a few papers that always give careful reviews of the books they notice, but their number is very small.-Writer.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL MEET

Proves to Be the Most Successful of the Series - Boston, Cleveland, New York and Cincinnati Victorious in Yester-

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 28 .- The fifth annual meet of the New England Intercollegiate Athletic association held on Hampden park yesterday afternoon was the most successful of the series, both in attendance, general interest and records made. The light rain Tuesday had just the right effect on the track, which was in splendid condition, very hard and smooth. The fine weather brought out a big crowd, prominent among them being delegations of Smith and Mt. Holyoke college girls and the inevitable large number of college men. Amherst men predominated to an overwhelming extent and the athletes from the college won a brilliant victory, taking first prizes in half of the contests and twice as many as any other college. This result was entirely expected, although Dartmouth men had strong hopes of making a good showing. Following is the Record of Prizes:

Amherst, nine firsts, four seconds; Dartmouth, four firsts, six seconds; Wesleyan, two firsts, one second; Williams, one first, three seconds; Worcester, one first, three seconds; Brown, one first; Vermont, one

After the meet closed the Amherst men formed a procession, with the athletes in carriages and Dr. Hitchcock at the head, and paraded Main street.

From an athletic standpoint the meeting was a remarkable one. In eleven out of the seventeen events the best previous association records were broken, in one other the time was within 3/4 of a second of the record, and in another the former time was equalled twice. Especially note. worthy performances were the running of Pellett of Amherst, and the hurdling of Ralsten of Wesleyan. The former, a freshman, who has been running only a few weeks, ran the 100-yard dash in 10 3-5s., only 1-5 of a second slower than the record and captured the 220-yard dash in the fast time of 223/4s. Ralsten broke the records in both hurdling contests, taking the 120 yards in 17s. (former record 17)(2); and the 220 yards in 26 2-5s. (former record 28). Russell of Amherst fell over the last hurdle in the 120-yard race and broke his

Champion Forced Out. In the half mile Dadmun of Worcester, the amateur athletic champion was forced out by the other contestants in 2m. 12-5s., two seconds better than the record. The puarter mile also developed some fast ones, Shattuck of Amherst reaching the tape in 50 1-5s. (former record 52 1-5). Gregg of Amberst had an easy thing in the mile walk, making it in 7m. 17s. (old record 7m. 22s). Barrows of Brown cleared the bar in therunning high jump at 5ft. 8in. (previous record 5ft. 6in). Potter of Dart-mouth carried off the pole vault and runwiped out the old shot-put record with a put of 37ft. 41/in., and Little of Dartmouth followed suit in throwing the Presbyterian General Assembly on Dr. Briggs' Case.

THE COMMITTEE'S REPORT

Disapproves of His Appointment to the Chair of Biblical Theology-Final Action Not Yet Agreed Upon-Reports on Foreign Missions and Finances.

DETROIT, May 28.—The case of Professor Briggs was brought up in the Presbynoon by Dr. Patton, who asked leave to read so much of the report on theological seminaries as bears on the case of Dr. comes up for action.

Sixty-three presbyteries, whose names he read, have overtured the assembly as to the utterances of Dr. Briggs. Some ask specific action, but most leave to the assembly what it shall be. The committee praised the presbyteries for their zeal and thinks their requests should have weight. The committee replied to so much of the report of the Union Theological seminary as bears on Dr. Briggs' appointment, or transfer, to the chair of Biblical theology. Our duty is a delicate one, especially as the presbytery of New York is trying him on a charge of heresy-as we must not prejudge a case which at some time must come before us on appeal. The question before us is not that of his doctrinal soundness, but that of the approval of his election by the assembly. We have examined the constitutional requirements as to the duty and power of the assembly in assenting to or forbidding such appointment or transfer. Dr. Patton quoted from the records as well as from appointments of professors that have convinced his committee that the assembly has power To Forbid the Transfer.

We should have been willing to recommend the reference of the subject to a committee, to report to the next assembly. But the control of the assembly over the matter ceases with the present session, and so we must act now if at all. We admit that in one view the trustees may have ground for their denial of the assembly's right to veto the transfer of a professor from one chair to another. Besides, the assembly is one party to a compact with the Union Theological seminary, and must be cautious in acting on it. The trustees of the seminary consider that the original appointment gives status, and that this assembly has a right to forbid; but a transfer simply assigns duty, and with that the assembly has no right to inter-

Now, while we think the assembly has control of both yet, in view of the cordial relations always existing between it and the trustees of this seminary, it would be proper to appoint a committee of conference with these views the committee recommend that the assembly disapprove of the appointment of Dr. Charles Briggs to the Edward Robinson chair of Biblical theology of Union Theological seminary and that a committee of conference with the trustees of that institution be appointed by this assembly to report to the next. Dr. Patterson quoted the following:

Basis of the Decision. Summary acts and resolutions of the general assembly and the boards of Union and other theological seminaries connected with the appointments of professors:

The directors of Union Theological seminary, in the city of New York, presented the following memorial to the general assembly on May Resolved, That the board of directors of the Union Theological seminary, in the city of New York, being all of them ministers or members of the Presbyterian church, do hereby memorialize the general assembly to the following effect viz.

lowing effect, viz: That the general assembly may be pleased to adopt it as a rule and plan, in the exercise and proprietorship and control over the several theological seminaries, that so far as the election of professors is concerned, the assembly will commit the same to the respective boards of directors on the following terms and condi-

First-That the board of directors of each theological seminary shall be authorized to appoint all professors for the same; second, that all such appointments shall be reported to the general assembly and no such appointment of professor shall be considered as a complete election, if disapproved by a majority vote of the assembly; and be it further

Reso ved, That the board of directors of the Union The logical seminary in the city of New York, persuaded that the plan proposed in the memorial will meet the cordial approval of the patrons, donors and friends of all the seminaries and contribute to the peace and the patrons, donors and friends of all the seminaries and contribute to the peace and prosperity of the church, do hereby agree, if the said plan shall be adopted by the general assembly, that they will agree to conform to the same, the Union seminary in New York being in this respect on the same ground with other theological seminaries of the Presbyterian church. terian church.

The time within which the Presbyterian assembly may express its disapproval of or exercise its right of veto in the election of a professor was determined by the assembly of 1871 as follows:

That the assembly declare that the true meaning of the act subjecting the election of a professor to the vote of the assembly is that such election be reported to the next general assembly thereafter; and if not vetoed by that assembly, the election shall be regarded as complete, according to the plan ratified by the assembly of 1870.

An Old Soldier

Among the names of those who have been decorated with the medal of hone is that of Sergeant James Fegan, who for thirty-five years was a soldier in the United States army. His record show that he enlisted in 1851, re-enlisted ser. eral times, participated in thirty battles, and was wounded five or six time Army regulations ordain that the funeral escort of a sergeant shall consist of six teen privates, commanded by a sergeant and accompanied by the non-commissioned officers of the company wearing side arms only.

When Sergeant Fegan died at Fort Shaw, Mon., the celonel ordered out the whole garrison to follow the remains of a man whose years of faithful service and brave deeds were thought worthy of extraordinary honor.

Fegan was an Irishman who loved the service, and delighted to participate in its duties and dangers. One day in 1867, when his regiment was at Fort Dodge, on the banks of the Arkansas, Fegar called at the abode of his lieutenant accompanied by his wife and son.

He called to put $2,800 in the lieuter ant's hands to keep for him. Standing erect, 6 feet 2 inches in height, he pu his left hand on the boy's head, saluted with his right hand and said: "Liftinint! the proudest feather in his father's cap it will be when he sees this lad idducated like an officer and a gintleman. An' we've got the money to de it, too-haven't we, ou'ld woman? Dhrop a curtsy, woman! Right hand salute. James, to the liftinint!" When the son grew up he enlisted in the father's regiment. He was promoted to be first sergeant of the company, and thus there was presented the singular spectacle of father and son serving a sergeants in the same regiment. Fegan senior was respectful and soldierly in his demeanor to officers, who were to him of the "quality," and heeracted similar respect to himself when on duty. One night at the guard house, he being the sergeant of the guard, was addressed by a recruit as "Jim."

Whack! and the raw recruit was sprawling. "Jim, is it?" roared the irate sergeant 'Whin I'm on dhuty it's 'Sergeant Fargan' ye'll call me. Whin I'm off dhuty, thin, an' not till thin, I'm Jim. D'y mind it? D'ye mind it?"-G. A. R. Gazette.

A Woman's Answer. "Why do I belong to the Woman's Relief corps?

"Well my father was a soldier-a strong, large man, with an iron constitution, we thought, when he went into the army. When he came home he was thin and gaunt, with lines of pain on his face and streaks of gray in his dark hair. Uncomplainingly he suffered a few years and died. An uncle, a plain, kind and generous man, left his little comfortable home among the northern pines followed soon by his son, the eldest of the family, but scarce sixteen-tall, straight as an arrow and graceful as the pine trees he had played beneath. "The father, after lying in the hospital for months, was brought home, and, though still alive, has never seen one day free from pain, is bowed and bent, a helpless cripple from rheun he was paid in full for his services, and has never secured one cent of a pension because some paper is wanting. The son died in the hospital of fever.

"Another—the dearest and best cousin of all-fresh from college, with the promise of a bright career in life, enterd the ranks, was shot through the heart, and his dead body brought home and buried in the old cemetery near by. "A playmate I had grown up with

lost a leg, and now hobbles around a crutches. "The man I married was a soldier too, and today suffers untold agonies of pain from exposure to wet and cold while bravely defending his country. "These, my friends, are some of my reasons for joining the Woman's Relief corps, hoping in a quiet way with these loyal women to relieve some suffering widow or orphan, or at least to offer one word of sympathy. And I never meet an old soldier, poor, dirty and raggel though he be, without thoughts filling my mind of the suffering and privations he heroically endured while serving his country, and I feel like grasping his hand in token of the friendship and respect I feel for him."

They Dallied Too Long.

One day a detachment of General Basil Duke's troops was moving through the northern part of Kentucky. Dick Wintersmith's son was in the band and its leader. The guerrillas were worn out and hunted down. Their horse were nearly foundered. The men were dirty and ragged. They halted for rest near a seminary for young ladies, all sympathizers with the Confederacy. Out came the young ladies when they saw the gray coats. They brought out food, drink and armfuls of flowers. They hung flowers around the necks of the hunted men, and sang in a musical chorus, "Oh, you darling Confederates." A straggling Confederate, fat, greas and ragged, came up flogging a jaded hack along, and swearing because he could not keep up with his associates

"Yes, you darling, sweet Confederates, the Yanks are coming!" At this there was a bolt. The laggard pounded on be hind, saying, "Oh, you sweet darlings," hope the Yanks will get you!" The Federals were indeed right at his heels, and the flying Confederates ahead wheeled in their saddles, expecting to witness the capture of the slow rider. Suddenly the tired horse stumbled and fell and threw the fat rider over into 3 ditch, where he escaped notice, while a

To fix the price per can at 3 cents would make the rate per single can 23 per cent. higher than the rate per can when taken in carload lots, and this, in the opinion of the board, would be a fairly proportionate rate, considering the character of the business. At this rate, if a railroad company shall carry on an average 900 cans in a car, it would receive $9855 per annum, while sity for action on the part of the authori- an average of 731 cans would bring in $8000

NEW YORK, May 28.—The question of fixing a day for the trial of the indicted New Haven railroad directors came up before Judge Van Brunt in the court of oyer ated with foreign odors. Take and terminer. Counsel for the directors said they were ready for trial any day the court might set, but the district attorney said he did not know when he would be ready. The court suggested June 15, but the district attorney said a number of murder trials would preclude his getting ready by that date. Judge Van Brunt then said he would set the case for June 22, but District Attorney Nicoll replied that he could not say that he would be ready at that time. "Then the indictment will be dismissed," retorted the court.

"All right, sir," replied Mr. Nicoll, to which the court replied sharply, "I don't propose that the district attorney shall try cases just when he pleases." The case will come up again before final action is taken.

Fraternal Endowment Companies-The Public Bar Bill-An Eight-Hour Bill Refused a Third Reading.

Boston, May 28.—In the senate, Mr. Bennett presented a memorial from the Massachusetts State Board of Trade asking for such legislation as shall speedily check and put an end to certain so-called assessment endowment corporations now in operation in this state.

Mr. West presented the memorial of the Boston Executive Business association, asking for the rejection of the Champlin amendments to the house bill relating to paternal beneficiary organizations, and the adoption of the Gilman amendment. Mr. Champlin opened the argument on the bill by making a personal explanation, in which he severely arraigned Theodore Parker Dresser for his contemptible methods in seeking to defeat Mr. Champlin's amendments. Mr. Champlin said that the Order of Nemo, with which his name had been connected, had not entered for business in the commonwealth of Massachu setts. He proceeded to argue that if the principle under which the Massachusetts organizations was a correct one, there is no reason why the foreign companies should not be allowed the same privilege that is accorded to the Massachusetts associations. It was the officers of these Massachusetts associations, and not the people of Massachusetts, who were trying to keep out the foreign companies.

Mr. Champlin went on at length to argue in defense of the endowment companies, and said, incidentally, that the Louisiana lottery was pure and sweet compared with some of the razzle dazzle schemes of the old-line insurance companies. By adopting his amendments and the amendment of Mr. Gilman the bill would be a good one, but it would be useless to adopt the Gilman amendment unless his (Mr. Champlin's) were adopted. Mr. Coveney protested against the passage of the bill. He received the impression that certain people had the preference in these companies, but it was not true, as the poor as well as the rich holding certificates of the same date were treated panies and the Massachusetts organizations to cut off these foreign companies from competition. In the House. The municipal lighting bill came back from the senate with the question in concurrence on amendments. On motion of Mr. Quincy the house concurred in all of the amendments without debate. By 93 to 34 the house voted, on motion of Mr. Day, to assign to June 2 the bill to repeal the public bar law. Mr. Wardwell said a few words against the eight-hour bill for employes of the state, counties, cities and towns, that the clerks and laborers in their employ did not need eight hours nearly as much as the mass of workers upon whom falls the burden of taxation. Mr. McEttrick said he would not take the time of the house to defend the bill, for he knew it would be iseless, as every member had decided how to vote. Mr. Bullock moved to amend by adding a $50 penalty for violating the act, but this was rejected. The vote on ordering the bill to a third reading was 62 yeas to 90 nays. Many other speakers took the floor, and finally the senate finished its debate upon the bill, which it advanced a stage, after admitting the so-called Champlin amend

The arsenic bill was engrossed without change. The subterranean railroad bill was referred to the rapid transit commis sion.

An Amateur Bummer. We were at Baltimore, near Warrenton, in November, 1862, General W. H. T. Brooks commanding the division in place of General Slocum, who had been called to lead the Twelfth corps. Brooks had lead a brigade in another division, and when we asked his soldiers what sort of a leader our new man was, they answered: "Oh, he's all right. We call him 'Bully' Brooks." A few days after of our men came in from a foraging expedition with half a lamb, well wrapped Gazette. up and slung over his shoulder. The most utterly miserable man in the state of Minnesota is McHale, the anti-tights champion. Up to the time the senate passed his bill he had been left comparatively free from criticism. He was rudely awakened the next morning to find that "the world had turned against him" in one night.

Then came the guying. He would start for a drive, and find that some solicitous friend had incased the legs of the animal in old trousers. Did he go into a hotel restaurant or dining room, some wag would see to it that the bill of fare would read "frog's limbs" instead of frog's legs. He would order spring chicken, and the leg of the fowl would be wrapped in paper. Even the girls would giggle when they met him, and with expressive glances look down at their dress to see it was not disarranged. Then the old man's mail began to increase, until it seemed that everybody in the United States had determined to take a crack at him.

The letters-many of them were abusive-made the old man wild. The writers called him by every name known, and some of them were addressed, "Old-Man-Ashamed-of-His-Shape McHale," "Nude-in-Art McHale," etc.-St. Louis

Poisoned by Centipede Venom. A family of six persons by the name of Boulding, moving by wagon from Tennessee to Texas, camped on the line of Baxter and Boone counties, in Arkansas, one night. They had coffee at supper, which was prepared in a tin vessel without a cover. Next morning Mrs. Boulding warmed over the coffee that had been left, of which she and two of the children drank freely. Scarcely had the breakfast been finished when the entire party-father, mother and four children-were seized with the most excruciating pains. Their screams brought a neighbor to the rescue, who summoned a physician. When the doctor arrived the mother and two of the children were dead, and the other members of the family were only saved by the skill of the physician, who administered antidotes for poisoning. Examination of the coffee revealed the fact that a mountain centipede had crawled into the coffee pot during the night, and had been boiled for breakfast.-Cor. Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

In the year 1400, or thereabouts, workmen were employed to put choir stalls in Lincoln cathedral, England, and were told in the early English vernacular of the day to hurry the job up, as several big functions were soon to come off. But lots of things happened; money got to be exceedingly scarce, and the men weren't paid very promptly. Although there were no Knights of Labor then, human nature was pretty much the same as it is now, and the men knocked off, remarking, "No pay, no work." The clergy were so busy running the county political machine that they didn't have time to arrange the matter, and the finishing of the stalls was postponed from time to time until the present day. At last, however, dean and chapter think they see their way to complete this Fifteenth century job, and are calling for estimates from woodcarvers. England is a little slow, but she does get there after a few centuries .- New York

French feeling against Germany runs very high at the present moment. No section of Parisian society asks them out except to purely official entertainments; they belong to no clubs, and would certainly be blackballed if they ventured to put up for any. The salary bill is a "salary grab" with many members of the legislature. But probably it is not quite that with all. There are some who reason themselves into the idea that what they propose to establish is "about fair." A man cannot, however, always be trusted to set a value upon his own public services. There will at least be an unconscious bias in favor of at least be an unconscious bias in favor of his own pocket. The present compensation is ample for any "poor man" to accept the office whom any community would be likely to choose of its own motion, and that is enough. If rich or well-to-do people who are chosen desire to spend freely, there is no reason why they should not draw upon their own private resources and not call upon the State. Nobody has the right to seek legislative position for a livelihood and then complain of the salary attached to the office when he of the salary attached to the office when he sought it, upon the ground that he isn't half paid. Lord Melbourne's Way of Saying It. The death of Lord Minto makes a vacancy in the Order of the Thistle for which a number of names are mentioned, that of Lord Strathmore being prominent. The order consists of twenty members, including the four principal royal dukes, and the decoration is eagerly sought after by Scottish peers. It consists of a star, a green ribbon and the motto, "Nemo me impuno lacessit." A good story has been revived of the reply made by Lord Melbourne to a political friend who had been importuning him to give the decoration to a peer who was more noted for his urbanity than for his great talents. "Give the thistle to -!" said Lord Melbourne, with one of his usual expletives; "why, he'd eat it!"-Scottish-American.

DEATH SAT UNSEEN

ONE OF THE MEMBERS DIES

While Speaking in Favor of Immediate Action on the Case of Professor Briggs -Previous Arguments For and Against The Report-The Assembly Adjourns.

DETROIT, May 29.-When the Presbyterian assembly's opening hour drew near yesterday there was much more than the usual attendance in and about the Fort Street church, where the sessions are being held. The interest in the Briggs case was strong enough not only to bring out a much larger attendance of commiss at the opening prayer service, but to fill the galleries with interested spectators.

When the minutes were read the assem bly squared away for the battle with heresy, which has divided the interest in this assembly with the report of the committee on revision of the standard of faith. The report of the committee on theological seminaries had been printed and was in every commissioner's hand when Dr. Patton of Princeton opened the discussion.

He spoke for the committee what he termed a few words of explanation, but what was an argument in defense of the report, favoring the veto of Dr. Brigg's appointment. He felt that all were willto do what was best. In the fullest recognition of the possibilities of mistakes, the committee had been actuated by one desire, to do what was demanded by the exigencies of the occasion, and to do it in kindness and with recognition of the rights of all concerned. Different action was not that this was best.

It was the least the assembly could do, upon to do. They had tried to consider both present and future in making up the report. If the time came during the debate they Were Ready to Give the Reasons for every recommendation. If protracted debate became necessary, it would be con ducted in the spirit which actuated the work of the committee.

Professor Henry P. Smith of Lane semi nary spoke in defense of Dr. Briggs. He nced the report as a proposition to put an end to the usefulness of a minister in good standing. The adoption of the report would put a stain on the minister, harm the church and cripple a school already hurt by a death. Professor Smith was caustic in his references to Dr. Green of Princeton.

Continuing, Professor Smith said that in the Presbyterian church a man was a heretic who violated the system of doctrine. The general opinion seemed to pre- false returns, and with making both. vail that a man charged with an infraction was guilty. If the verbal form of the confession was to be insisted upon most of those present would have to leave the church

Briggs for his presbytery to consider. They progressive sanctification and infant damlished a book showing that certain portions of the New Testament were irregular. Should not he also be proceeded against? Dr. Briggs desired only to find theological grounds for the doctrines set up in the confession of faith.

The Most Serious Point was that of progressive sanctification. He did not fully understand what Dr. Briggs meant on this point. Perhaps Dr. Briggs could explain

The Bible and the confession had been misunderstood, why not Dr. Briggs' position? The doctrine of the Presbyterian church meant that every minute of time thirty human beings dropped into hell. This went on for centuries. Did they ever reflect and face the problem and keep out of the lunatic asylum? He thought that possibly God might find some relief for

Rev. S. C. Logan, D.D., of Scranton, Pa., wanted the action proposed by the committee modified. In the second resolution he wanted a change made, adding the name of Dr. Briggs to those to be conferred with. Not only was a professor to be tried, church if this could postpone action.

President Patton said he admired Dr.

Briggs as a friend. The committee would not put a straw in his way, nor would it make the position of the directors of union embarrassing. They had hired the man in good faith, and were not responsible for the utterances in his inaugural. The only

Interpretation of the Compact between the union and the Presbyterian assembly. If that compact permitted the exercise of the veto-and he thought it did-the duty of the assembly now lay in the direction of exercising the veto or stopping once for all. He did not believe in qualified or moral condemnation. The assembly must make its condemnation direct, if it made it at all.

Dr. Dickey of Union seminary said he saw no sense in condemning Dr. Briggs. The assembly might, in its haste, do somether thing that could not be repented at leis- N. J. ure. He asked for a year's delay, and if he were alive through that time he would a French play while in London, and his do all in his power to bring about reconciliation.

The debate on Dr. Briggs was resumed in the afternoon, and Judge S. J. Breckin-ridge of St. Louis, a member of the committee on theological seminaries and one of the most eminent lawyers in the south, stated the legal points in the case. Years ago, he said, Union seminary was independent, but in 1871 became Presbyterian, and and Bayley. Liabilities about $150,000. of course the assembly from that time controlled the appointments. If we do not veto now, said he, we never can. Dr. desire for a naval station, says San Do-Logan's amendment for deferring action is impracticable. We view transfer from one chair to another the same as an appointment. We can do nothing wisely except disapprove. I think it is wise not to have started a movement toward founding assign reasons. A judge some times cannot give all the reasons for his decisions on the bench. But without assigning other reasons it does seem to me that the mind of the church for some months has been anxious that we should relieve it.

ing in Fort Street church. The prayer meeting was held in Fort Street church at 8 o'clock last evening Many will recall the similar and sudden death of ex-Governor Washburn at the great meeting of the American board at Springfield, Mass., which so greatly softaned the heated discussion which there, as here, was going on over doctrinal matters.

AN EXPLANATION

From the Federation of Labor Concerning the Mine Workers' Strike.

NEW YORK May 29.—An address is soon to be sent out by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor directed to the organized wage-workers of America. It opens with the official information that the United Mine Workers have receded from their position and declared the eight hour movement off. It goes on to say that the miners were selected to make the fight at their own request, they stating that they had assurance of help from the Knights of Labor. The general executive board of the knights failed to attend a best. conference with the executive council of the federation and the miners' officials, as requested by the last-named, March 31, nor did they give any reason for their failure to appear, though the miners belonged to the Knights of Labor.

Very reluctantly and by request the coke strike was endorsed. The mine workers were allowed to advance $2500 to the striking coke workers and the same was guar anteed on the condition that the miners ing to credit the committee with the desire made the demand for the enforcement of the eight-hour working day. The condition was made to maintain good faith with those who contribute for the miners strike, and because information had been received the that knights' officials were conducting a s cret agitation to work upon the fears of the miners, predicting certaken, because the committee was clear tain defeat, discouraging them in every way, and urging them not to make the move On May 1 the council received offiand the most the assembly was called cial notice that the eight-hour movement was declared off. President and Treasurer of the Sus pended Spring Garden Bank Arrested. PHILADELPHIA. May 29.—Francis W. Kennedy, president of the suspended Spring Garden National bank, was arrested yesterday morning on a warrant sworn out by Bank Examiner Drew, charging him with making false entries in the books; false returns to the comptroller of currency, and with the embezzlement of $100,000 and upwards of the bank's funds. Henry H. Kennedy, cashier of the bank and brother of the president, was also arrested, charged with conspiracy with Francis W. Kennedy to make false entries,

When the two accused men heard that warrants were out for their arrest, they at once went before United States Commissioner Bell and gave themselves into cus hurch.

There were three charges against Dr. tody. Counsel for the Kennedys stated that they were willing to waive a hearing, and enter into bonds for their appearance were his claims of errors in the Bible at court. MR. BLAINE OVERWORKED

He is Sound in Mind, If Not in Body-Gen. Greely Reports the Signal Service in Excellent Condition Through-

WASHINGTON, May 29 .- The president yesterday afternoon received a cipher dispatch from Minister Lincoln, at London, saying that official notice had been given in the house of commons that a bill would be introduced on Monday to authorize the queen to prohibit British subjects from taking seals in Behring sea. The question engaged the president's principal attention yesterday and he had conferences at dif-ferent times on its various phases with Secretary Foster, Secretary Tracy, Secre-Proctor and Acting Secretary Wharton. One point considered was the advisability of sending war vessels to Behring sea to reinforce the revenue cutters in preventing the taking of seals in case closed season is deci 'ed upon. This fleet would, of course, co-operate with the English warships now in those waters in the enforcement of the agreement as concluded. It is understood that the secretary of the navy reported that there are three naval vessels that could be prepared for this service without much delay.

The news of Mr. Goschen's action was received with satisfaction at the state department. Generally, it is taken as an indication that the British government is preparing to accept the condition imposed by the president as a preliminary to arbitratation and cause the British vessels to refrain from sealing meantime.

The impression is that the Behring sea matter is Settled for This Season

by the maintenance of the status quo. It is not deemed probable, in view of the pending negotiations with Great Britain, that the revenue cutters have received orders to make seizures. Should seizures be made, it is not unlikely that they will be merely formal and that any Canadian vessel captured would be placed in the hands of one sailor as a prize crew. It will be remembered that under the Cleveland administration that was done, and that the captured Canadian poaching vessel ran away with this prize crew and landed him at Victoria, where the United States coun-

SECRETARY BLAINE'S SICKNESS.

His Body Needs Rest, but His Mind as Vigorous as of Yore.

WASHINGTON, May 29 .- One of the most eminent members of the diplomatic corps, referring to the talk about Blaine's health, and consequent delay in public business. says: "I had several long conf with Secretary Blaine shortly before he left Washington, and I certainly saw no sign of that mental decadence which the report in question attributed to him. The secretary may not have been very strong in body, but his mind is still most emphatically the vigorous mind of Mr. Blaine. I have had a great deal of business with the secretary of late, and I have had ample opportunity of noticing that his mind was all right. I have certainly failed, absolutely, to notice that in-termittent flashing of his intellect, followed by collapse and despondency, which I have seen described. The report is very ridiculous. As to those alleged complaints by the diplomatic corps, I am sure they have never been made. I have never heard a word of complaint uttered at Washington about delay in the transaction of business. As a matter of fact, there has not been any such delay, and I am perfectly certain that there exists no feeling upon which such a complaint could be based. I can tell you for myself that since the beginning of the year I have had to send a great many communications to Mr. Blaine, and there was not one of them that was not answered within twenty-four hours. Mr. Blaine was worked very hard ever since the Pan-American congress met in Washington. He attended most of the meetings himself. He may have overworked himself. I think he has. No doubt he requires rest for the body, but he needs no physic for the mind.'

reported to Secretary Proctor that he found everything in excellent shape. There was a screw loose here and there, he says, but the great machine was generally working smoothly. He is actively making preparations for the transfer of the weather bureau to the agricultural department, and has detailed Capt. Craig to hunt for new quarters for the signal service. No selection has been made as yet of a chief of the weather service, and a good deal of competition is going on for the place. It will be a presidential appointment and will not take place until the last of July, when the transfer takes place by the operation of law. Gen. Greely is urged as the proper head of the bureau, and it may be that he will be detailed for this duty, to continue for a time, as the

4. "And it came to pass after this the Joash was minded to repair the house the Lord.' We now go backward in the history to period about a hundred years earlier than the last lesson. Joash was the seventh king of the two tribes, and began to reign about a hundred years after the death of Solo mon. Only seven years old when he began to reign, he reigned forty years (vs. 1). 5. "And he gathered together the prisa and the Levites."

"Go out unto the cities of Judah, and gather of all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see that ye hasten the matter." This would have been a sort of compal sory taxation for the house of God, and was contrary to the principle laid down in Ex. xxv, 2-"Of every man that giv eth it willingly with his heart ye shall take my offering." And again in Ex. 1111, 5, "Whosoever is of a willing heart is him bring it, an offering of the Lord." 6. "And the king called for Jehoiad the chief, and said unto him, Why has

It was not in their commission to go out collecting money, but it was commanded that the people should bring in their offerings according to their ability

(Deut. xvi, 16, 17; Mal. iii, 10). 7. "For the sons of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken up the house of God." This was the woman who counseled he son Ahaziah (the last king) to do wickedly, and who, after his death, reigned six year (chap. xxii, 2, 3, 12). See her miserables in chap. xxiii, 15. She was the daughter of Ahab (xxi, 6), and when we remember that Jezebel was Ahab's wife we cannot wonder at her conduct and that of her sons "And also all the dedicated things of the house of the Lord did they bestow upon

Baalim.' 8; "And at the king's commandment they made a chest, and set it without at the gate of the house of the Lord."

There was a hole in the lid of this ches and it was set beside the altar on the right side as one cometh into the house of the Lord (II Kings xii, 9). Things are looking better now; this is more like God's way, and there will surely be a blessing 9. "And they made a proclamati to the Lord the collection that Moses, the servant of God, laid upon Israel in th wilderness. This is more fully stated in II Kings rii, 4, 5, and carries us back to Ex. xxx, 11-16 where all who were numbered were to give a half shekel as an offering unto the Lord to make an atonement for their souls, the rich not giving more and the poor not giving less than half a shekel. 10. "And all the princes and all the people rejoiced, and brought in and cast into the chest until they had made an end."

This pleased the Lord, for "God loveth a cheerful giver," and "if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not (II Cor. fx, 7; viii, 12).

11. "Thus they did, day by day, and gathered money in abundance. As the chest was filled it was emptied counted, put up in bags and set in its place again (II Kings, xii, 10). At the building of the tabernacle of Moses the money and material from the willing hearted offerers came in so abundantly that orders had to be issued to restrain the people from bringing, for they brought much more than enough (Ex. xxxvi, 6, 7).

12. "And the king and Jehoiada gave it to such as did the work of the service of the house of the Lord."

And they laid it out to the carpenters and builders, and to masons and hewers of stone, and to buy timber and hewed stone to repair the breaches of the house of the Lord (II Kings xii, 11, 12). They did not, like many nowadays, get the work done first and then look for the money to pay for it, but they first saw the wherewithal on hand and then went forward with the work It does seem so unscriptural to have a debt upon any building dedicated to God, or to undertake any work for God without se ing how to pay for it.

work was perfected by them." King, priest, people and workmen, all laborers together. So now every preacher, teacher, missionary, evangelist, or the humblest scholar who gives a penny to help send the gospel to others, are all laborers together in building up the great temple, the church or body of Christ, which shall in due time be perfected (Eph. ii, 19-22; I Cor. iii, 9). A strange thing is written concerning the overseers of this work to whom the money was given to pay the workmen, which is also written of others in the days of Josiah-viz., that they dealt so faithfully that no reckoning was kept with them (II Kings, xii, 15; xxii, 7)

14. "And when they had finished it they brought the rest of the money before the king and Jehoiada." Why did they not use up all the money, or put in a bill for extras? What fools they would be in the eyes of many today! they would be in the eyes of many today. How easy to say that the work cost more than they expected! But see their faithfulness. The surplus was made into versels of gold and silver for the house of the Lord. Let the surplus of wealthy Christains be devoted to sending forth vessels of mercy to the unsaved, and what joy such faithfulness would bring both in heaven and on earth!

This good priest lived to the extraordinary age of 130 years, but when he died there was a sad change in Judah, both on the part of the king and the people. See the rest of this chapter, and notice the idolatry, and the murder of the priest Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, and also the murder of Joash, the king. How sad a termination to a reign that began so well! We are Christ's disciples, indeed, only if we continue in His word (John x, 27-29). If, on the other hand, we are only good because an older and wiser triend is charter that the same continue in the same continue is the same continue in good because an older and wiser friend is controlling us then when we lose that friend we shall be apt to fall. THE TWO COLOR BEARERS

Philip Larrabee came of good stock. He was descended on his father's side when she hears of my being missing. I from one of those hardy seamen who first am ready, colonel. Enterprise and the British brig Boxer, Philip's ancestor bore a gallant and conspicuous part. It was into his arms the youthful Commander Burroughs fell, refusing to be carried below; he, who when the sword of the vanquished enemy was presented to him, clasped his hands and exclaimed: "I am satisfied. I die contented."

On the other side of the family tree the fires of patriotism burnt equally as

Time and time again had Philip, when a lad, begged his father to tell him the story of that memorable fight on the village green at Lexington, where his grandfather sealed with his life's blood his devotion to a just and noble cause.

The life of Philip Larrabee, like that of his father, seemed destined to be an eventful one, but one of those fatal epidemics which periodically sweep through a community left Philip and his sister 16c. Martha, some three years his senior, 10c. alone to struggle against a cold and un-23c. sympathetic world.

Philip and his sister had a widowed aunt who lived on the outskirts of one of those villages that so picturesquely sit on the rugged coast of the old Bay State, overlooking the blue waters that continually kiss its shore. In the humble abode of this good woman, who in every way tried to heal their griefs and fit was not to be found. The villagers said them for the stern realities of life, the she had at last given away to her grief two orphan children found a home and and sought consolation and rest in the a loving heart. in the sailing of little craft. Martha, under his tuition, in time could handle a boat almost as well, and often she would, while Philip was away, be seen at the helm managing it with the ease and grace of her brother.

"I wonder where Phil can be?" said no sign of him yet." But in this she was mistaken, for colors.

glancing out of the window she saw Philip rapidly coming up the road, open the gate, and running up the neat gravel | valleys of the Shenandoah. The briwalk leading to the house, burst into the gade, of which Philip's regiment formed room before her aunt had replied to her

"Why, Phil! What is the matter? Has anything dreadful happened at the village?" exclaimed Martha. "Yes-yes, everything has happened!

Fort Sumter has been fired upon-the president has called for troops, and-I have enlisted!" As Philip said this he clasped Martha in his strong arms, and before she could recover from her amazement at the startling news, he pressed a warm and loving kiss upon her lips and continued: "Don't discourage me from going, Martha - please don't! "Pail, if you had done otherwise I believe I should have hated you as much as to the ground, death stamping its seal I now love you!"

The next twelve months were most mingled with fear and anguish, Martha followed, through the accounts in the papers and letters from Philip, the movements and deeds of his regiment—especially so when after one of those desperate engagements that occurred in the earlier period of the war she read of Philip's promotion to sergeant and color speaks to soul, a light of unutterable joy bearer. He had seized the regimental flag from the hands of him who relinquished it only in death, and had bravely carried it through the rest of that sanguinary day till victory at last perched upon its tattered folds.

Philip's regiment, thinned by death and disease to less than one-half of its original number, now enjoyed a brief eyes fastened upon its torn and bloodseason of rest.

ters, apparently in deep thought and awaiting his coming. "Philip," said he, turning and gazing steadily into his eye as though he would read his inmost thoughts, "the general has requested of me a man, one that I know to be brave, discreet and to be depended upon under the most trying circumstances. He desires him for a service which will not only require nerve and courage, but will at times place him in positions of the most desperate and dangerous character. I know no one in the regiment whom I could so trustingly rely upon as yourself.

Do you care to volunteer? Without a moment's hesitancy Philip calmly replied, "Colonel, I am ready at all times to serve my country in any capacity duty requires."

As the colonel proceeded to unfold to him the mission the general wished to send him upon, and the manner in which he was to leave, a deathly pallor for a moment overspread Philip's face.

The colonel stopped. "Do you hesitate?" said he. "This is to be voluntary on your part; you are not obliged to go if you do not wish to do so."

"No-no," Philip replied, "I wish to go-it is my desire to do so, but I was thinking for a moment of Martha, my sister, and of the pain she would suffer

It was late when Philip left the colonel's quarters. As he did so the old veteran grasped him warmly by the hand, and while a tear trickled down his bronzed cheek said: "God bless and protect you, Philip. I hope to be the first to welcome you back."

The next morning Philip Larrabee, for the first time since his enrollment as a soldier, failed to answer his name at the roll call. Doubt, uncertainty and innuendoes are as great a load for a loving heart to carry as the deepest sorrow. Martha, alarmed at first in not hearing from Philip as usual, felt her heart sink within her when she learned that he was reported as missing. Everything relating to his strange disappearance was of the most vague and unsatisfactory character. He was missing from his company, that was all that was known. Whether he had deserted, whether he was alive or dead, no one seemed able to tell. But Martha believed him to be alive, although she could not fathom the mystery. She moved about as in a trance, and seemed oblivious to all her surroundings. Soon after this the little boat, once the constant companion of these two loving hearts, was found in a battered condition on the rocky shore of the bay some distance from the village. Its mistress

The army had now moved forward and was in close proximity to the enemy. Among those who stole into the Union lines after this advance was a person apparently a farmer. He proceeded at once to the headquarters of Philip's regiment, and the colonel, so the sentinel on a sturdy, well formed young man. The thunder of battle once more resounded through the peaceful hills and a part, laid on its arms under cover of some woods opposite one of the enemy's strongest intrenchments. From these works the Confederate batteries kept up a most active and deadly fire. These guns must be silenced, and to do so the brigade is ordered to take them at the point of the bayonet. At the command the troops move out from under the cover and take position in full view of the enemy. The lines are formed, orders given, and the command moves forward under a ter-

When the edge of the potato pand is reached Philip, still carrying the colors, stops, staggers in his tracks and falls forward. The line hesitates, wavers, as though unable to proceed farther. As Philip sinks upon his noble face, a comrade catches with one hand the staff, now stained eventful ones in the life of Philip Larra- | with the warm life blood of its faithful bee. With feelings of pride and joy, but guardian; then, bending over his almost lifeless form, exclaims in tones of indescribable anguish and tenderness: "Phil! my dearest Phil!"

What voice is that? At its tender and appealing tone the dying man looked into the face of his comrade-a look of happiness-a recognition in which soul for a second steals over the shadow of death, and in a dying whisper murmurs "Martha!"
